24 Mine Executives, 23 Deputies Indicted As Harlan Terrorists

Blanket Bill Charges Wide Violations of Wagner Act.

Names Middleton And Ben Unthank

Bond Set at $5,000 and $2,500; Action Result of Senate Inquiry.

By the Associated Press.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 27 — A blanket indictment charging violation of the national labor relations act was returned by a grand jury in Federal District Court late today against 22 Harlan County coal companies, 24 executives of the companies, and 23 sheriff's deputies or former deputies.

Among individual defendants were Sheriff Theodore R. Middleton and former Deputy Sheriff Ben Unthank, the latter described as chief gunman for the Harlan County Coal Operators Association in testimony given the Senate Civil Liberties Committee during its recent investigation of conditions in Harlan County.

The defendants were accused of having, since July, 1935, "unlawfully and feloniously conspired to intimidate employes of the aforesaid company defendants . . . in the free exercise and enjoyment of certain rights and privileges" guaranteed by the Federal Constitution, "to wit, the right and privilege of the said employes to self-organization and to form and join and assist labor unions and to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing, and to engage in concerted activities for the purpose of collective bargaining and other mutual aid and protection."

10 Years Top Penalty.

Amos W. W. Woodcock, of Baltimore, and George P. Jones, of Washington, Special Assistant Attorneys General, who developed the charges in co-operation with Department of Justice investigators, said the maximum penalty upon conviction was 10 years' imprisonment.

Judge H. Church Ford, before whom the indictment was returned, set bond for Middleton and the company executives at $5,000 each and for the other defendants at $2,500 each. The defendants are to appear at the opening of the Federal District Court session at London, Ky., on November 22.

Operators Indicted.

"Operator defendants" indicted were Silas J. Dickinson, Charles S. Guthrie, George S. Ward, Kenes Bowling, Charles E. Ralston, Elbert J. Asbury, William H. Sienknecht, Armstrong R. Matthews, Denver R. Cornett, Robert E. Lawson, George Whitfield, Roscoe J. Petrie, Lewis P. Johnson, Pearl Bassham, John E. Taylor, James Campbell Stras, W. Arthur Ellison, Elijah F. Wright, jr., Robert C. Tway, Elmer D. Hall, Robert W. Creech, Charles B. Surchfield, C.

That 'Tiger Rag' at Journey's End

Fearful stevedores, refusing to believe that Hari, the Sumatran tiger, is quite tame, took to their heels yesterday when he was let out of his cage after the Silverash docked in New York. But the 7-month-old mascot was as tame as ever, as shown by the affectionate hug he's giving Keeper Roy Jennier.

1,000 Animals for D. C.'s Zoo Will Be Unloaded Here Today

Two Carloads en Route From New York; Collector of 'Mann-agerie' Is Back After Farewell to Silverash's Crew.

By Gerald G. Gross

Still wobbly on their sea legs, the Mann-agerie of animal curiosities which would have warmed the cockles of P. T. Barnum's heart were en route to Washington last night by train, headed for exhibition in the Washington Zoo.

Unloading of the nearly 1,000 mammals, reptiles and birds will begin immediately upon arrival of the two carloads of wild cargo from New York at Union Station early today.

Dr. William M. Mann, Zoo director and head of the expedition which brought back the collection from the East Indies, and Mrs. Mann reached the Capital last night.

Of the other members of the National Geographic-Smithsonian party, Malcolm Davis and Lyang Gaddi will arrive today with the animals and Roy Jennier was in Athenia, N. J., where the 18 crates of ruminants, including the four giraffes, must undergo a 15-day quarantine period.

The Zoo director, who left Washington last January to bring back the best exhibition animals of the Far East, was jubilant last night at his home because the ship-to-truck-to-train transfer had been made without casualty. He said that the entire collection, except those specimens in quarantine, should be at the Zoo by 7 or 8 a. m. today.

Parting was sad for Capt. Hilton Rowe, of the British freighter Silverash, who became attached to the collection in general and several individual members in particular

Idaho Applauds Roosevelt as He Praises Borah

President and Court Plan Foe Beam on Each Other in Boise.

By Franklyn Waltman.

A Staff Correspondent.

En route to the Pacific Coast with the President, Sept. 27.—Entering Oregon tonight on the last leg of his journey to Seattle, President Roosevelt spent today greeting between 20,000 and 30,000 in an 80-mile automobile tour of Idaho.

Spending the morning in Boise, where he spoke to a large throng gathered on the capitol grounds, Mr. Roosevelt created the highlight of the day by his cordiality to Senator Borah. And the Lion of Idaho reciprocated in full measure.

Although Borah was understood to keep in the background, Mr. Roosevelt referred twice to him in a favorable manner in his speech at the Idaho capitol, and invited him

Count of Idle To Be Made Nov. 16-17

Questions to Be Taken by Mailmen Into 31 Million Homes.

Officials Still Undecided on What to Ask Jobless.

By William V. Nessly.

Thirty-one million families in the United States on November 16 and 17 will receive copies of the unemployment census questionnaire from which the Government hopes to obtain an accurate, comprehensive picture of the involuntary idleness situation in the country.

A campaign reminiscent of the World War bond-selling drives and the NRA observance appeals was being mapped. Efforts to agree on the questions to be asked of the Nation's jobless kept in session until after dark last night a conference between John D. Biggers, administrator of the special census, and leaders of industry, labor, agriculture and Government.

When the conferees left the Cabinet room of the White House office wing at 6:30 p. m., the questionnaire to be broadcast had not been completed. Another meeting of the "statutory committee" provided by law to work with the administrator will be held this morning in an effort to complete it.

Sheets Go In Mails.

Following the conference, Administrator Biggers announced that the questionnaire blanks will be distributed by mail carriers on the two November days, with the urgent request that they be filled out by unemployed persons and be placed in the mail by November 20.

In the six weeks following, a house-to-house canvass will be conducted in typical communities throughout the country to test the accuracy of the voluntary registration. Checks against "exaggeration and falsification" also are being considered. The Bureau of the Census will tabulate all the data obtained.

Though the questionnaire has not been entirely completed, it appears likely to be no longer than 14 questions. That goal was previously set by Biggers.

No Penalties Planned.

No compulsion or penalties will be resorted to, Biggers said and none of the unemployed will face any threat of refusal of future relief because of failure to co-operate.

Dependence will be placed, instead, the administrator said, on convincing everyone eligible that "it is to his interest and for the welfare of the country that he register completely and accurately."

In addition to the house-to-house canvass to follow the registration, Biggers said further checks as to accuracy may be made by the WPA in various localities and by the United States Employment Service, as well as by private agencies, such as social service federations, "primarily to detect exaggeration or falsification."

The final report on the census will be prepared in conjunction with

Duce, Hitler Pledge Unity, Snub Russia

Offer Friendship to All Other Nations at Gay Berlin Reception.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, Sept. 27.—Benito Mussolini and Adolf Hitler, in an exchange of toasts at a gala reception in the chancellery, tonight defied attempts "to divide our two nations" and held out the hand of Nazi-Fascist friendship to every nation except Soviet Russia.

More than 200 guests, the privileged few from among thousands who had cheered the two dictators' triumphal entry into Berlin a few hours earlier, shouted their approval as Reichsfuehrer Hitler declared the Rome-Berlin axis must not be interpreted as "the formation of a bloc aimed against other European states."

"On the contrary," he said, "we are convinced that we serve not only the best purpose of our own lands by this co-operation but also the goal of general international understanding."

Work "Side by Side."

"In this spirit Italy and Germany will examine and deal with their political tasks side by side, in order thus to counteract every possible attempt to divide the two nations or even to play one off against the other."

Then, turning to his host, Il Duce declared:

"Conversations which I have had with your excellency in these recent days have strengthened our friendship and immunized it against every attempt to disturb and divide it—from whatever quarter it may come."

Mussolini, fresh from witnessing extensive war maneuvers in north Germany, praised the spiritual atmosphere of "brown-shirted Germany" and eulogized Hitler as the creator of a new nation.

Italo-German solidarity, he said, is not merely the result of political calculations, but the expression of community of interests.

Shuts Out Russia.

It in nowise constitutes "a self-contained bloc which fearfully and suspiciously shuts itself off from the rest of the world," Il Duce declared, asserting "Italy and Germany are ready to co-operate with all other peoples of good-will."

"What they demand is respect and understanding for their necessities and their justified demands. As the sole prerequisite for their friendship they demand only that no attempt be made against the foundations of our glorious European civilization," he added.

This concluding remark was interpreted as closing the door to Soviet Russia, whom Germany and Italy have accused of attempting to undermine the established order of Europe through Communist propaganda.

Earlier tonight Germany's capital gave Premier Mussolini a tumultuous welcome.

On the third day of his visit to the Reich, Il Duce rode with Hitler in an open automobile through streets lined with 800,000 cheering, flag-waving Germans.

Mussolini and Hitler arrived late in the afternoon from Essen, where Der Fuehrer had shown Il Duce the Krupp munitions works—Europe's greatest.

Berlin outdid Munich in its welcome. The six-mile route from the railway station to the presidential palace was lined with huge pillars bearing Fascist insignia.

Mussolini remained at the palace while Hitler went to his residence, where he prepared the state reception for the Italian delegation.

Lost Endeavour Seen Off Ireland With Crew Safe

By the United Press.

London, Sept. 27.—The British racing yacht Endeavour I, buffeted about at sea for two weeks after parting from a tow line in a storm off Rhode Island, was reported sighted today making her own way under sail about 260 miles off the southwest tip of Ireland.

Capt. Vernon H. Alcock, master of the British tanker Cheyenne, wirelessed that "the yacht looked most shipshape and reported that all was well, and mentioned no casualties."

"The men were on deck and looked fit," he said.

The Cheyenne reported to Lloyd's, and Lloyd's, after investigating, announced that this time the 1934 America's Cup challenger really had been sighted.

Huge Siege Guns Rock Shanghai; League Unit Assails Bomb Carnage

Advisory Committee's 23 Powers Rush to Sign Denunciation.

China Delegate's Plea Wins Cheers

'Horror of World' Cited; Resolution Goes to Assembly Today.

By the Associated Press.

Geneva, Sept. 27.—Japanese aerial bombardment of Chinese cities was condemned by the League of Nations advisory committee today in a strongly-worded resolution which denounced the killing of "innocent civilians."

The resolution, declaring such bombardments have aroused "horror and indignation throughout the world," was prepared for submission to the League Assembly tomorrow.

Dr. Wellington Koo, China's delegate, urged the League to brand Japan the "wrongdoer of the world" and the aggressor in the undeclared Sino-Japanese war, if it cannot go further and "enforce international law and principles of the covenant."

Denunciations of Japan's repeated air attacks likewise came from Great Britain, France, Sweden and Russia. Sentiment was so pronounced that Foreign Minister William Munters, of Latvia, president of the committee representing 23 nations, called a recess so the resolution could be drawn up immediately.

"Distress" Voiced.

Prepared by Munters, the British and the Russian delegates, the resolution asserted:

"The advisory committee, taking into urgent consideration the question of aerial bombardment by Japanese aircraft of open towns in China, expresses its profound distress at the loss of life cause to innocent civilians, including great numbers of women and children, as the result of such bombardment, and declares that no excuse can be made for such acts, which have aroused horror and indignation throughout the world, and solemnly condemns them."

The resolution was adopted immediately.

England, leading the move for immediate action, was seconded by France's foreign minister, Yvon Delbos, who declared:

"If we close our eyes we would be guilty of failing in our duty."

The United States was represented on the committee in an advisory capacity by Leland Harrison, Minister to Switzerland.

Cites Hull's Protest.

Dr. Koo called attention to the protest of Secretary of State Cordell Hull as an example of the world-wide reaction to the Japanese acts.

He envisioned destruction "that might come later" to other cities of the world if Japan's air bombardment goes unchallenged. He was loudly applauded.

Reverberations of the Spanish civil war were heard by the League committee on political questions. Julio Alvarez del Vayo, Spanish government representative, demanded the League "call the bluff" of Germany and Italy.

Del Vayo demanded adoption of five proposals presented by Juan Negrin, Spanish government premier, to the League Assembly. They were:

1. Recognition of Italian and German aggression; 2. Study of ways to restrain it; 3. Granting of rights to the Spanish government to buy war materials freely; 4. Withdrawal of all non-Spanish combatants; 5. Extension of the protection of the Nyon anti-piracy patrol to the Valencia regime's shipping in the Mediterranean.

Soviet Papers Launch Drive Against Japan

Mass Meetings Protest War on Civilians; Troops in Border Maneuvers.

By the United Press.

Moscow, Sept. 27.—The government of the Soviet Union tonight began organizing public opinion against Japan.

Newspapers, all of which are controlled by the government, printed columns denouncing "Japanese aggression in China," while mass meetings were held to adopt prepared resolutions denouncing "murder" of peaceful Chinese populations by Japanese aerial bombings and threats to Soviet diplomatic establishments in Chinese cities.

The agitation was on the largest scale since Japan's invasion of Manchuria in 1931.

For the first time in more than a year newspapers subordinated reports on the situation in Spain to those from the Far East, and it was indicated Russia is ready to join in any international movement which may be proposed by Britain or other nations "to aid victims of aggression and the cause of peace" in the Orient.

[Reports from Tokyo declared Russia and Japan were concentrating troops along the frontier between Siberia and Japanese-dominated Manchukuo, according to the Associated Press. The Japanese newspaper, Hochi, said the Siberian port and Soviet army post of

108 Arabs Seized, Troops Called in Murder of Britons

Jerusalem, Sept. 27 (AP).—Police investigating the assassination of Lewis Andrews, British Commissioner of Galilee, held 108 Arabs for questioning in Nazareth, Haifa and Nablus today.

Impressive military funerals were given Andrews and his bodyguard, Constable Peter McEwan, who were shot down in Nazareth yesterday in a terrorist ambuscade as they left church services.

A detachment of British troops arrived in Nazareth to patrol the streets. Most of the shops were closed because of the tense atmosphere.

Tokyo Sub Sinks 12 Junks; 300 Die

By the United Press.

Shanghai (Tuesday), Sept. 28.—Japanese began bombarding Chinese positions northwest of Shanghai today with 14-inch Krupp siege guns, which they landed secretly three weeks ago, and all Shanghai rocked to a series of unprecedented explosions.

Simultaneously Japanese began a new assault on Chinese lines around the town of Kiangwan, about 4 miles north of the International Settlement.

The Chinese lines still were holding at 2:30 a. m. and a spokesman for Gen. Chu Shao-liang, new Chinese commander on the Shanghai front, said the Japanese were losing heavily from exploding Chinese land mines. He said the whole area around Kiangwan had been mined under the supervision of German military advisers.

Emplacements Secret.

Japanese said the Krupp guns were the largest ever used in the Far East. It has taken three weeks to prepare the concrete emplacements from which they are fired. Their location was kept secret, as was their number, but from the nature of the explosions foreign military attaches believed they were located outside the Settlement on the west bank of the Yangtze.

The first three shells fired from the big guns rocked buildings as far as the French Concession.

Chinese survivors of a fleet of 12 Chinese fishing junks charged in Hongkong the Japanese had resorted to submarine warfare. Only 10 lived to tell of an attack by a Japanese submarine which sank their fleet off Cheelung Point, about 30 miles from Hongkong, five days ago. They were picked up by the German liner Scharnhorst.

The survivors declared 300 men, women and children were killed when the Japanese submarine sank the fleet of fishing junks on the South China coast.

Bombed 3 Times.

Nanking, China's capital, was bombed three times. Unofficial sources estimated 200 were killed, making the death toll in 48 hours 500. Nine planeloads of bombs were dropped, destroying many homes and damaging railroad stations and the American-owned Yungli Chemical Works 7 miles outside the city.

Civilians killed by bombs since August 12 are estimated at about 7,760.

Pukow, just across the river from Nanking, was said to have been bombed by a Japanese air fleet from Shanghai. Chinkiang, strategic city 40 miles east of Nanking on the Yangtze, also was attacked.

For the first time in the present warfare a member of the Japanese Emperor's family was wounded in action. Prince Hiroyoshi Fushimi, commander of a Japanese destroyer flotilla, suffered a slight wound during an artillery engagement between Japanese warships and Chinese land batteries.

Far to the north at Potowchen, south of Tsangchow, Japanese planes attacked in an attempt to destroy Chinese supplies and munitions concentrated there for Chinese troops on the Tientsin-Pukow railroad.

'Man in Gray Cap,' Seen Talking to Victim, Is Sought as Key Figure in Ross Kidnaping

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Sept. 27 (AP).—A mysterious "man in a gray cap" was hunted today as a key figure in the kidnaping of aged Charles S. Ross.

He became the object of an intensive search after 42 hours passed without word from the retired manufacturer or his abductors.

Ross, 72, and in delicate health, had dined at the Fargo Hotel, in Sycamore, Ill., about 50 miles west of Chicago, with Miss Florence Freihage Saturday night. His captors—believed to number three—forced Ross from his expensive sedan and carried him away in their car.

Hotel employes said a man with a gray cap pulled over his eyes approached Ross in the lobby while Miss Freihage was in a drug store, conversed with him for several minutes and left. They described the man as about 32, 6 feet 2 inches tall, and weighing 165 pounds.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Ross awaited the receipt of a ransom demand. She said: "I am sure we will hear from them. But we have no great amount of money."

Relatives reported her on the verge of a nervous breakdown.

Detectives were assigned to strategic stations about the city, ready for action the moment any communication was attempted.

They expressed fear Ross, suffering from high blood pressure and a heart ailment, might have died of shock.

Police Capt. Daniel Gilbert believed the kidnaping real, but executed by "young punks."

Only one of the kidnapers—a youth about 20 and 5 feet 7 inches tall, with brown, wavy hair—was seen by Miss Freihage, a plump woman of 45, who served as a secretary in the greeting card firm headed by Ross until his retirement several years ago. This youth covered them with a revolver and was quoted as saying:

"This is a snatch; my boss told me to bring you along."

Miss Freihage reported he took $85 from her purse and asked:

"Is he good for half a million or a quarter million?"

Gilbert said: "The curly-haired man was so nervous that the woman was afraid the pistol would go off any moment. Another hint of their amateurish nature was the fact that the man was unmasked."

Ross once engaged in the real estate business. Miss Freihage said he later entered the greeting card manufacturing field but sold his interests for $90,000. She contended it would be impossible to raise a large ransom.

'Secret Service' Bandit Gang Head Identified by 4 Victims

A burly, gorilla-like Washington underworld character was identified at police headquarters last night by the victims of four sensational robberies in which a band of gunmen, in one instance posing as Secret Service agents, pocketed a total loot of $10,000.

Police gave the man's name as Carmen Quantrille, 32, of the 100 block N street northwest, a last name identical, except for the addition of the final "e," with that of the notorious guerilla fighter who ravaged Missouri and Kansas during the Civil War.

Mrs. Dorothy Biser, who will become a mother in a few days, identified Quantrille, according to police, as one of three gunmen whom she admitted to her home in Arlington under the impression they were agents of the U. S. Treasury. They showed badges, she said, and, once inside the house, drew guns and forced her to hand over $7,000, most of which was locked in a safe and represented receipts of her husband's concession business at Beverly Beach, Md.

The prisoner, a short, stocky, powerfully built man, next was pointed out by Mrs. Biser's husband, Beverly Biser, who said, according to police, Quantrille and his band

U. S. Facing Another World War Unless Neutrality Act Is Invoked, Nye Warns

Further Delay By Roosevelt Illegal, He Says

Senator Urges America to Curb Trade 'Appetite' in Far East.

By Robert C. Albright.

Calling for immediate invocation by the President of the neutrality law, Senator Gerald P. Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, last night said America is approaching a situation nearly identical with that which forced entry into the World War.

Nye declared Japan, not China, would suffer from neutrality act inforcement. In failing to invoke the law, the former Senate munitions inquisitor said, the President is taking advantage of the clause in the neutrality act giving him "discretionary" powers.

In Washington over night before starting a cross-country lecture tour on neutrality and munitions, the North Dakota Senator said sympathies in the Sino-Japanese conflict already are hardening, influenced by commercial considerations.

Warns of Trade "Appetite."

"We find ourselves once again letting our commercial appetite lead us off innocently in directions which in the past have been the paths to war," Nye said.

"We are building today a situation of temptation which is nearly on a par with that existing prior to our entry into Europe's war. We are building up a degree of prosperity on a war-boom basis which might easily affect our sympathies as the war trade affected our sympathies in 1915 and 1916."

Advocate of mandatory neutrality and of stronger "cash and carry" provisions than the present law provides, Nye said there "can't be any ignoring that war exists" and the President has no legal alternative but to invoke the act.

"The neutrality law declares that 'when a state of war exists' the President shall issue such proclamations as will forbid trade in munitions with nations at war, loans by American investment bankers to nations at war and generally invoke other provisions of the act," Nye said.

Designed to "Prevent Boom."

He said the act was designed to "prevent creation of a boom of any kind by reason of war elsewhere in the world."

Meanwhile, the Chinese Embassy in a statement here accused Japan of disguising combat planes with the Chinese national emblem. It said the embassy had been officially advised from Nanking that two Japanese monoplanes, with Chinese insignia painted on their wings, dropped two bombs at Kwangteh, southeast of Nanking.

The embassy statement said:

"It is evident that Japan intends to shift the responsibility to China when loss or damage is deliberately caused to third parties."

Nye conceded pro-Chinese sympathies dominate in this country, but suggested America should guard against crystallization of sentiment.

"Puzzled" by Johnson.

Nye said he had been "puzzled" by the sudden evacuation and return of Ambassador Johnson to the American Embassy in Nanking, but declined further comment on diplomatic developments or State Department policy.

United Press dispatches from Geneva yesterday said the United States has rejected a proposal for convoking a Pacific conference to deal with the Chinese-Japanese conflict.

At the State Department last night it was said no formal proposal for a Pacific conference to consider Far Eastern hostilities has been made by the Government.

LaGuardia Makes Pledge to Labor

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia today challenged those who call him "radical" by pledging that if he is re-elected he will continue his present and past attitude in labor disputes.

His challenge was offered in an address to a meeting of A. F. of L. supporters.

LaGuardia is Republican nominee but an outspoken New Deal supporter. His opponent is Jeremiah T. Mahoney, Democrat sponsored by a local New Deal coalition. The election is November 2.

Maritime Factions Use Sound Trucks

San Francisco, Sept. 27 (AP).—Three thousand A. F. of L. teamsters and 5,000 C. I. O. unionists—at bitter odds in jurisdictional stride—held mass demonstrations at the same time on the San Francisco water front today, but confined their activities to sound truck speeches.

Each side shouted its interpretations of the labor conflict, in which the A. F. of L. teamsters and C. I. O. longshoremen have been at loggerheads over control of warehousemen, now claimed in a new C. I. O. union of water front workers.

From other sound trucks police appealed for peace.

Many Maryland Drivers Still Lack New Permits

Baltimore, Sept. 27 (AP).—The Office of the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, hoping for the best, but fearing the worst, reported today 318,000 Maryland motorists have not yet applied for the new driving permits they must obtain before December 31.

Harry Bullen, in charge of the reregistration of motorists required under a law enacted by the 1937 Legislature, said that unless daily applications are doubled "we'll be in for a really serious 'tag rush' in December."

O'Mahoney Incident Reveals Difficulty in Chastisement of Court Foes.

By Franklyn Waltman

EN ROUTE with President to Pacific Coast Sept. 27.—Senator O'Mahoney's situation in Wyoming affords perfect example of the difficulties confronting President Roosevelt in any effort to build backfires of public sentiment against those Democratic Senators who opposed his Supreme Court plan.

WALTMAN.

At the mere hint that Mr. Roosevelt was considering taking punitive action against O'Mahoney, the people of Wyoming rallied behind him. The leading Democratic newspaper in the State, which is pro-Roosevelt, warned the President reprisals against O'Mahoney would be dangerous. O'Mahoney's friends quickly arranged to give him a banquet to show their loyalty to him. The people made it plain they liked O'Mahoney as well as they did Mr. Roosevelt. Thus the President's visit to Wyoming has made a hero out of O'Mahoney instead of hurting him and has given him national prominence he would not otherwise have attained.

The same situation exists in Montana, where Senator Wheeler has behind him the Governor of the State, the State Democratic chairman and a large part of the party organization, in addition to the support of a number of newspapers, which also are friendly to Mr. Roosevelt. There are 500 Federal job holders in Montana who owe their jobs to Wheeler. It is true they were named by Mr. Roosevelt, but it was Wheeler who recommended them.

This group, which exerts great influence in Montana politics, is reported to be greatly disturbed over the break between Mr. Roosevelt and Wheeler. They would much prefer to see the two men remain close friends. They would not undertake to buck Mr. Roosevelt, but at the same time they have no intention of bucking Wheeler.

If it were a case of Mr. Roosevelt running directly against either O'Mahoney or Wheeler, the President would win easily. The crowds which greet him at every station leave no doubt he is very much of a popular hero out here.

But Mr. Roosevelt, of course, cannot run against either Wheeler or O'Mahoney. Someone else must assume that task if either or both of them are to be defeated for their recalcitrancy, and Mr. Roosevelt cannot transmit his own great popularity to the challengers of Wheeler and O'Mahoney.

Another fundamental factor in this situation is the fact, pointed out wherever you go and by everyone with whom you talk, that the mass of voters in all these States is thoroughly indifferent to the President's Supreme Court issue. Not nearly as much has been published out here as in Eastern newspapers regarding that issue. Only the lawyers really understand it and most of them are hostile to the President.

Gov. Cochran of Nebraska told the President the people of his State did not care a thing about the court issue. Mr. Roosevelt heard the same story in Wyoming. Montana newspaper editors who spent the week-end with the party in Yellowstone Park reported the same attitude. All were agreed that the average man cannot see how tampering with the Supreme Court will help his own situation. To the man on the farm and the ranch, the court fight is said to be something vague, academic and nebulous.

* * * *

Still another fact becomes evident when this country is visited. It is that O'Mahoney and Wheeler cannot be placed in the same classification with Senator Burke of Nebraska. In the first place, the latter is a conservative and is sour on much of the New Deal. What is more important, he is sour on Mr. Roosevelt. Had the President stopped for a speech in Nebraska, and criticized Senator Burke, even by inference, he would have been playing right into the Nebraskan's hands.

Senator Burke wanted Mr. Roosevelt to take a crack at him so he could crack back. That explains why in the Gallup poll a majority of Nebraska Democrats was reported opposed to Burke, even though he had the support of the majority of those voting in the poll.

Senator O'Mahoney, on the other hand, has differed with Mr. Roosevelt only on the court issue. Otherwise, he has been a loyal New Dealer. Though a Catholic, he defends the Hugo Black appointment. In doing so, he unwittingly criticizes the President, for he says that anyone who knows his way around in politics should have known Justice Black had close Klan affiliations.

He said he knew that, but he believes Justice Black has outgrown the Klan, and O'Mahoney thinks it silly for Senators who voted to confirm the nomination to take refuge now in statements they would not have voted so had they known Mr. Black was a Klansman. Mr. Roosevelt has indicated he knew nothing of Black's Klan affiliations and intimates if he had, he would not have made appointment.

Moreover, O'Mahoney does not want to break with Mr. Roosevelt. Indeed, as he illustrated last week, he will turn heaven and earth to prevent such a break. While Senator Burke sat at home in Omaha and ignored the presence of Mr. Roosevelt in that city's station for 15 minutes, O'Mahoney canceled engagements and made a dash across three States in order to be present to greet the President. Nor did he let Mr. Roosevelt snub him by failing to invite him in advance to board his train. He came at the last minute, got an oral invitation to ride along, and he did.

Incidentally, all Democratic Senators and Representatives through whose States and districts the train is passing have received telegraphic invitations from McIntyre to join the party through their territory; that is, all except O'Mahoney and Burke.

Wheeler's situation differs from those of both O'Mahoney and Burke. He has a good New Deal record, but lately he has become sharply critical of Mr. Roosevelt. Whether he is looking for an open break with the President will be seen when the train re-enters Montana next Sunday. At present, he is reported at Sacramento, Calif. If he does not return to Montana to greet Mr. Roosevelt, it will indicate he does not care what his relationship with the President is.

In this space on Thursday Mr. Waltman will discuss the political situation in Idaho.

Walker May Lose Pension of $11,500

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—James A. Walker indicated today he probably would not receive the $11,500 annual pension upon retirement, which he might have had, and characterized as "a political move" and "the old army game" the opposition to his recent appointment as assistant counsel to the transit commission.

17 Power Firms Fail in Attack on Validity of TVA

New Deal Agency Wins Sweeping Victory on Procedure in Suit.

By the Associated Press.

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 27.—The Tennessee Valley Authority won a sweeping victory today on points of preliminary procedure in the Federal Court suit of 17 private utilities attacking the agency on constitutional grounds.

The three-judge court set the suit for hearing at Chattanooga November 15. Judge Florence Allen, of the Circuit Court of Appeals, Cincinnati, emphasized the court would expect "co-operation" of attorneys in expediting the hearing.

Depositions Refused.

Preliminary questions on which the TVA won were motions of the private utilities for court orders to do three things:

Permit attorneys for the utilities to take a deposition from Harold L. Ickes, public works administrator whose PWA has authorized loans to municipalities to construct electric systems in competition with existing utilities.

Permit the taking of a deposition from John M. Carmody, rural electrification administrator whose REA has financed rural electric co-operatives.

Compel the TVA to produce or permit inspection of numerous maps, reports, estimates, engineering data and the like.

All these motions were overruled.

Regarding a suggestion that a special master be designated to take certain testimony, Judge Allen said this will not be done and the three-judge court "will hear it all."

Validity Challenged.

Sitting with the circuit judge, were District Judges John D. Martin, of west Tennessee and John J. Gore, of middle Tennessee.

Attorneys estimated the trial will last six or eight weeks.

Pending a hearing of the suit on its merits, Judge Gore in December issued a temporary injunction curbing TVA activities, but this was dissolved by the Circuit Court of Appeals in May and the case was remanded for a full hearing.

Charles M. Seymour, of Knoxville, of counsel for the utilities, said they wished to take Ickes' deposition to establish that the TVA, PWA and other New Deal agencies co-ordinated their efforts into one system having as its purpose the placing of the Federal Government into the power business.

This, he contended, is an unconstitutional endeavor.

CCC Staffs Cover 3,000,000 Acres in Tree Blister Fight

More than half of the approximately 3,000,000 acres of timberlands in Idaho and Northeastern Washington, most directly affected by white pine blister rust, have been covered by Civilian Conservation Corps crews control operations since 1930, it was announced yesterday by Robert Fechner, director of the CCC. Mr. Fechner estimates the CCC blister rust control work has saved millions of acres of Western white pine.

Despite these control operations, blister rust still presents a great potential danger threatening future white pine timber production, Fechner asserted. He said that for the past four years an average of 8,000 to 14,000 CCC enrollees have been engaged each summer on this sort of work and that it will continue to be a project of high priority.

The CCC men, in their control work, have destroyed more than 250,000,000 gooseberry and currant bushes, the "host" plants which carry and spread the disease.

Pneumonia Perils 'Sleeping Beauty'

Chicago, Sept. 27 (AP).—New dangers challenged science today in its attempts to restore consciousness to Patricia Maguire, 32-year-old Stenographer, who has been in a coma for 67 months.

Bronchial pneumonia complicated the efforts to strengthen Patricia by blood transfusions for the shock of a necessary abdominal operation. Oxygen was administered after pneumonia developed.

A bulletin from the family physician, Dr. Eugene Traut, said her condition remained critical, although her temperature had dropped. She showed no reaction to the blood transfusion, the doctor reported.

British Crew Quits Ship on Reef, Safe

St. John's, Newfoundland, Sept. 27 (AP).—The crew of the British freighter Lackenby were forced to abandon their wrecked ship on a mile-long reef on the southern tip of Bell Island today as breakers battered the vessel.

The captain and crew of 35 of the 5,000-ton vessel, which ran aground last night, were taken aboard the small steamers Maneco Baronet and Marysmith.

Victim of First U. S. Kidnaping Had Same Name as the Latest

Abduction of 4-Year-Old Charley Ross Is Still as Much a Mystery as 63 Years Ago; Search Covered Three Continents.

The Chicago kidnaping of Charles S. Ross has revived memories of that other Charley Ross, whose sensational disappearance in July, 1874, developed into a fantastic mystery that has retained public interest for more than 60 years.

The 4-year-old son of wealthy parents, Charley Ross was abducted with his brother, Walter, 6, from in front of their home in Germantown, Pa., by two men who offered to give them firecrackers for the Fourth of July.

Hours later, Walter was found sobbing at a busy intersection in northeastern Philadelphia. The men had given him money to purchase the firecrackers in a nearby store, Walter said, but after he emerged he could find no trace of them. Charley was never seen again.

When a letter demanding $20,000 ransom was received by the parents a short time afterward, America's first great kidnaping case was fairly under way. The investigation was conducted by local authorities, as no Federal agency existed for the purpose at that period.

One of the most extensive manhunts in the Nation's history ensued, spurred on by the appearance of no fewer than 23 letters from the kidnapers, giving instruction for the payment of the ransom. Actual contact with the abductors, however, was never effected.

Five months after the kidnaping, two burglars were shot at Bay Ridge, Long Island. One of them, Joseph Douglas, confessed as he lay dying that he and his companion William Mosher, had stolen Charley Ross, but only Mosher knew the whereabouts of the child—and Mosher had been instantly killed.

In the 63 years that have passed since that December day in 1874 when Douglas and Mosher died, many persons have claimed to be Charley Ross. Yet none of the claimants was able to establish his identity as Ross, though the search extended through America, Europe and Asia.

Fixed Low Rate Sighted on Soft Coal in Month

Commission Urges Speed by Producers in Submitting Schedules.

By the Associated Press.

Persons close to the National Bituminous Coal Commission last night predicted the commission would fix minimum prices for the soft coal industry in less than a month.

At the beginning for formal hearings on prices suggested by the industry, Chairman Charles Hosford of the commission urged producer representatives to expedite co-ordination of their 30,000 schedules "so our work can go forward without delay."

Singling out regional districts 1 and 7, composed of producers in eastern Pennsylvania and northern West Virginia, respectively, Hosford said:

Must Agree By Noon.

"One of the most important co-ordinations is between districts 1 and 7. In the event this co-ordination is not completed by 12 noon, tomorrow, this commission will proceed to act in this matter. At that time, unless an agreement is reached, the commission will appoint an examiner before whom representatives of each will be called. Then, the commission will proceed to a determination of the issue as promptly as possible."

At the same time, the commission sought to dissipate what it termed widely-expressed fears that minimum prices, authorized by the Guffey-Vinson act, might cause an increase in the price of soft coal for domestic purposes.

It recalled in a statement that railroads, utilities and large industries consume 80 per cent of the Nation's annual production of 450,000,000 tons of soft coal, most of which they buy in the summer market at a cost below production expenses.

"If the 80 per cent that has been buying at less than cost are brought up to a cost level," the statement said, "it might well be that the 20 per cent who have been buying at or above cost should at the very least suffer no increase."

The commission rejected the schedule of classification of coal for price determination proposed by District 2 of western Pennsylvania and ordered it to prepare a new grouping not later than today.

Industry Gains, Nearing Spring Level in August

Reserve Board Finds Production 117 Per Cent of '23-'25 Average.

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday that industrial activity, advancing during August, almost reached the level of last spring.

Industrial production for the month reached 117 per cent of the 1923-25 average on the board's seasonally adjusted index, compared with 114 per cent in June and July, and 118 per cent in the spring.

Declaring steel production rose slightly last month, the board's busines survey added that automobile production was "maintained in considerably larger volume than is usual."

Reserve System member banks continued liquidation of Government holdings during the week ended September 22 the board also said in its weekly condition statement. Reports of banks in 101 cities showed holdings of direct Federal obligations declined $192,000,000 to $7,930,000,000. This was $1,447,000,000 under the holdings for the same week a year ago.

At his press conference yesterday, Secretary Morgenthau asserted that "the Government bond market has behaved beautifully during the last two weeks."

Aluminum Firm Seeks To Hurry Court Action

By the Associated Press.

The Aluminum Co. of America asked the Supreme Court yesterday to expedite arguments on its effort to prevent the Government from proceeding in New York with an anti-trust dissolution suit against the concern.

The court probably will announce late next month whether it will review a ruling by a three-judge circuit court at Philadelphia permitting the Department of Justice to prosecute litigation filed in the southern New York Federal district court.

Fish Urges G. O. P. Aid For All Court Plan Foes

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 27 (U.P.).—Representative Hamilton Fish (Republican), New York, called on Republicans tonight to support Democratic Senators against whom President Roosevelt "pursues a policy of reprisals" for opposing his Supreme Court reorganization plan.

Addressing the Irvington Republican Club, Fish urged the party "to carry this challenge against our form of government to the people and let them decide whether they favor . . . an independent judiciary or not."

American Bar Association Cheers Attacks on Roosevelt Supreme Court Plan

Lawyers Asked To Sift Black's Link With Klan

'Honest Fanatic' Assailed by Reed as 'Most Dangerous Beast.'

By the Associated Press.

Kansas City, Sept. 27.—The American Bar Association loudly applauded speeches from some of its leaders against President Roosevelt's Supreme Court proposal.

In reply to the President's description of the Constitution as a "layman's document, not a lawyer's contract," Frederick H. Stinchfield, the Bar Association's president, told the convention's opening session:

"Of 55 men who participated in framing the Constitution, 32 were lawyers. * * * If the Constitution of the United States is a layman's document we may bow in respect to the 23 men of the Constitution Convention who were not lawyers."

Hogan Defends Leadership.

Earlier, Frank J. Hogan, of Washington, who defended Edward L. Doheny in the Teapot Dome oil case and represented Andrew W. Mellon in his tax litigation with the Government, said, "Recent assertions that the bar has lost its leadership have come from sources so high they cannot well be ignored."

He cited that 24 of the Nation's 31 Presidents have been lawyers, and said:

"For 60 years the American Bar Association has served our country and our profession. Often it has been subjected to splenetic attack. . . . In this year as the attacks increased in virulence, the association increased in membership."

Silas Strawn, of Chicago, who has been president of the Bar Association and of the United States Chamber of Commerce, said in an interview he hoped "the hysteria of experimentation has run its course."

"Honest Fanatic" Scored.

White-haired James A. Reed, former Democratic Senator from Missouri, greeted the lawyers as "protagonists of the Constitution."

Waves of applause echoed through the packed auditorium as he declared the framers of the Constitutoin "knew that an honest fanatic, whether of church or state, is the most dangerous beast ever turned loose to curse the earth—all the more dangerous if his cruel purposes are masked by gentle smiles and friendly protestations calculated to lull the intended victims into security.

"Reason cannot appeal to nor compassion mitigate the fury of a fanatic. . . . The degree of fanaticism is often the measure of sanity."

Election Significant.

Joseph B. Ely, former Democratic Governor of Massachusetts, told the bar tonight he would "like to see the lawyers of this country interest themselves in the drafting of constructice legislation."

"The President of the United States has made a direct attack upon the profession as the obstructors of the progress toward economic security and rational constitutional interpretation," he said. "Not only that but we, as a body and as a profession, are held up to the public scorn as being responsible for the Civil War, the depression and the sabotage of the New Deal program."

Ely said he considered next year's Senatorial elections involving political futures of court plan critics as "one of the most significant events of the times."

"If Sentor Joseph C. O'Mahoney, Senator Edward R. Burke, Senator Bennett C. Clark and Senator Burton K. Wheeler should be re-elected or even only half of them re-elected, it would tell us a lot about where we are bound.'"

Youth Who Broke Back While Diving July 31 Dies Here

Edward Cannon, the 25-year-old youth who broke his back last July 31 when he dived into shallow water at Crystal Beach, Md., died yesterday at Emergency Hospital.

Soon after Cannon was received at the hospital it was reported he could not obtain proper attention and a necessary operation because of lack of funds. These rumors were immediately denied by W. S. Busick, assistant superintendent of Emergency, who said, "We will do all we can for Edward, regardless of cost."

The young man's father, who is 56, is a WPA painter, works only 48 hours a month and supports a family of seven on his meager wages. The Cannons, who live in a basement apartment at 424 Third street northwest, had not completed funeral plans last night.

George Abell Here To Negotiate Again For Return of Son

After a chase that led to Europe and through the Eastern United States in an effort to retain custody of his child, George Abell, Washington newspaper columnist, was here last night to make further negotiations for the return of Tyler Abell, 5.

Drew Pearson, also a Washington columnist married Abell's wife shortly after she obtained a divorce in 1936. In August the Pearsons flew to the Channel Islands and regained possession of the boy after Abell had taken him from America.

Despite Abell's efforts to have police restrain the Pearsons from taking the child, he was released in their custody after it had been shown that a court order awarding Abell semestrial custody of the boy provided he did not leave United States territory, had expired.

stopped his car at Fourth street and Rhode Island avenue northeast on the day of the Arlington robbery.

The gang, apparently believing he was carrying his business earnings with him, forced Biser's car to the curb, but Biser jumped out and called police and the holdup men fled.

Willard F. Dolf, 33, of Lorton, Va., who was beaten unconscious at the Department of Agricultural Experimental Farm in Arlington County, September 23, identified Quantrille, police said, as the man who beat him and robbed him of $75.

At gunpoint, Dolf said, the suspect forced his way into his car as he stopped at Fourth and M streets northwest and made him drive to a spot not far from the scene of the Mary Baker murder. Dolf's unconscious body was thrown to the ground and left there, to be found 14 hours later.

Again Identified.

Police said Quantrille was identified also by Leroy Richardson, 40, of 3 Florida avenue northwest, as the bandit who robbed him of $156 two weeks ago at Nineteenth and E streets northeast.

Quantrille's underworld activities have drawn the attention of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, whose records show him to have been arrested nine times in Washington and Baltimore in the last nine years, but convicted only once and that for a Federal offense for which he served a year in Lorton Reformatory in 1931.

But more typical of the prisoner and of the notorious wartime raider was the alleged crime for which Quantrille was arrested last week. That was the brutal beating of a 70-year-old Prince Georges innkeeper, Andrew J. Gill, who was robbed of $1,700.

Held Incommunicado.

Quantrille was indicted in connection with the crime April 2, 1936, and it was on this charge he was arrested by Detective Sergts. Hugh Robey and Herbert Wannamaker, and Precinct Detective Herbert Moore. They locked him up in the Eleventh Precinct Station, and ordered him held incommunicado.

Police then had nothing with which to connect their prisoner with any other crime. Detective Sergt. Robert Barrett began a long period of grilling. Quantrille was surely, admitted nothing. But he did answer a few questions, and from these answers Barrett drew several conclusions which led him to suspect Quantrille of connection with the holdups in which police last night anonunced he had been identified.

The last time Quantrille was arrested, about two years ago, police reported finding eight pistols and a large amount of ammunition in his apartment in the first block of N street northwest, according to the records. Quantrille was held for a few days and then released without formal charge.

It was about this time a well known Washington gambler was compelled to turn over $5,500 in a daring robbery. An attempt was made to bring charges against Quantrille, but arrangements were made for return of the loot, and the gambler, satisfied, asked police to "forget it."

William Clark Quantrill.

William Clark Quantrill was the name of the leader of "Quantrill's men," a band of desperate, bloodthirsty irregular horsemen, capable of raiding a farmer's henhouse or sacking an entire town with equanimity.

They did sack a town, undefended Lawrence, Kans., ravaging, burning and killing until here was scarcely a house left standing and few of the able-bodied of its 2,000 population alive.

A member of the band, called bushwackers, was the notorious Jesse James, who later launched his career of dime-novel banditry.

For many years the Quantrill family lived in Maryland and one branch of it moved to Washington. William Clark Quantrill was born in Hagerstown.

New Deal Aims For Monopoly, Hamilton Says

Tree of 'Abundant Life' Yields 'Shriveled Fruit,' G.O.P. Head States.

John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican National Committee, told a radio audience last night the New Deal "stands for and is bringing about a system of monopolistic enterprises publicly controlled."

"The Republican party holds and encourages the ideal of an economic system of competitive enterprise publicly regulated, and this is in direct opposition to the ideas of the New Deal," Hamilton said.

His speech followed a meeting of Young Republican leaders here, the fourth in a series of G. O. P. conferences called in preparation for the 1938 Congressional campaign.

Finance Chairmen to Meet.

Hamilton will confer with State finance chairmen on Thursday, and in early November the full National Republican Committee will meet here to consider proposals for a mid-term Republican convention in 1938.

Hamilton told newsmen he thought a majority of the committee is in favor of the convention proposal.

He said "its voice would be heard with a new attentiveness now by the public in general" because "the actual fruits of New Deal policies are now beginning to be apparent."

The conference of 15 Young Republican leaders considered two major questions—State organization and finances. J. Kenneth Bradley, of Connecticut, chairman of the Young Republican National Federation, was authorized to name committees to study each question.

In his speech, Hamilton charged the New Deal's tree of "more abundant life" has yielded "shriveled fruit."

"The New Deal's attempt to reach the desirable objective of 'more abundant life' for our people is running in reverse, for in the last year the production of consumers' goods has declined," Hamilton said. "People are spending 5 per cent more in retail stores than they spent a year ago, but prices of goods in the retail stores have gone up 9 per cent. It's the more abundant life stood on its head."

Hamilton opened his speech by addressing Republicans, Democrats "and I hope some Socialists, too." And then he paid tribute to "free speech" on the radio, a freedom he said was made possible because radio programs are "privately, competitively selected, privately, competitively produced."

G. O. P. Favors Regulation.

He said Republicans believed in "competitive enterprise, publicly regulated," but the "New Dealers want monopolistic controls." He cited the NRA and the Guffey coal law as examples of "governmental bureaucratic control" and the "New Deal ideal."

Hamilton did not mention the President, and his shafts were not directed at the "Democratic Party" as such. He attacked the "New Deal" and "New Dealers."

He said the "enemy is domination" and the Republican Party "stands for the downfall of domination of every sort."

Declaring "we are in harmony with the sentiments of the American people," Hamilton said:

"We are encouraged because we know now for sure that the majority of the American people believe, as the Republican Party believes, that our Government must be a free Government and not a dominated Government."

Charity Boxing Carnival for School Lunches Awaiting Only Nod From Board of Education

Plans for a huge boxing carnival to swell the free-lunch fund for Washington's 8,000 underfed school children were completed last night and ready for approval by the Board of Education.

While the board's sanction may not be forthcoming until its next formal meeting October 6, Robert A. Maurer, its vice president, said last night the school trustees' sympathy for the program could be "assumed."

Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, chairman of the board, is out of the city, and Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, is leaving town tonight, Maurer explained.

"It is safe to assume that the proposal," Maurer said, but he does not consider feasible the committee's suggestion he poll the members on the subject before the next meeting. "The board is supposed to be a deliberative body," he asserted, "and there will undoubtedly be questions of policy which we could discuss only in full meeting."

Approval from the Board of Education is one of the conditions under which District Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen will authorize policemen and firemen to sell tickets for the proposed fight.

The other two conditions—a permit from the Boxing Commission and permission from the WPA for the use of its central kitchen in the free-lunch project—already have been fulfilled.

Plans for the bout were discussed yesterday at a luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel, attended by members of the citizens' committee, local sports writers and boxing officials.

Other campaign activities yesterday included a committee dinner at the home of Arthur Clarendon Smith and a radio talk over Station WMAL by Mrs. Lloyd W. Biddle. A group of mothers whose children will be benefited by the $100,000 fund met at Opportunity House to address 2,000 pledge cards to prospective contributors.

Police Experts On Identity to Hear Canadian

Chief of Investigation for Mounted to Address International Group.

Expressing the theme and purpose of the twenty-third annual convention of the International Association for Identification which opens tomorrow at the Willard Hotel, Deputy Commissioner S. T. Wood, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, will discuss "International Cooperation in Identification Problems."

Arthur Muchow, president of the association, announced yesterday that approximately 400 delegates would attend the meeting, which will close Saturday.

Arriving from all parts of the United States and from several foreign countries, the members will hear talks regarding their police work.

Other Speakers.

George Royer, superintendent of New Orleans police and first vice president of the International Association of Police Chiefs, will talk on the "Police Chief and His Identification Officer."

Father E. J. Walsh, of Georgetown University is scheduled to open the meeting. Senator James Pope, of Idaho, and Edward J. Kelly, superintendent of the Rhode Island State police, also will speak.

Other talks include those of Representative Hatton W. Sumners, of Texas; Senator Frederick Van Nuys, Indiana; Dr. Albert Coates, professor of law at the University of North Carolina.

An International Force.

The criminal of today, Muchow said, faces an organized international police alliance. Eighty-one countries, including six possessions of the United States, co-operate in an international exchange of fingerprints.

"Since the inauguration of the exchange in 1932," Muchow stated, "there has been a rapid increase in its growth and effectiveness."

Through this service criminals are frequently brought to justice after eluding the law for many years. One case, cited by Muchow, illustrates the effectiveness of the exchange.

Robert Green escaped from Colorado State Penitentiary in 1921. No trace was found of him for 14 years. Then he was arrested in London by Scotland Yard on a local charge.

When his fingerprints reached the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington, he was identified as the man wanted in Colorado.

The principal speaker for the opening session, Col. Wood, graduated from the Royal Military College of Canada when 21 years old, and has served continuously in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police for the last 27 years. At present he is in charge of the Mounties' criminal investigation bureau.

Tom McCarthy

TOM McCARTHY,

THEY USED to sing it almost everywhere and I expect they still do. Sometimes they'd insert a little local color like . . . "Lift up the old silver goblet—With G. U. upon it" . . . but fundamentally it remained unchanged.

"Put On Your Old Gray Bonnet" usually supplied the tune; the local beer parlor or "snack shop" the place and lusty voices the spirit, as well as the lingering last note. Personally, I always felt that the song embodied a comfortable philosophy—if not a practical one.

I remember one classmate, rechristened as "Butch," whose daily life seem to exhibit a profound belief in what he was singing, when he bellowed out the words—

"It's a darn good college—
Though we're not here for knowledge—
But a good time while we're here."

But even while such stalwarts as "Butch," "Gus" and the "Duck" lifted their eyes heavenward, and endeavored to do the same with their voices, I fear I felt a trace of unbelief. I nursed a vague suspicion that people went to college for other reasons than a good time.

I'd never really gone about asking anybody the reason they came to college, and that probably is why my venture into three universities in the District has left me more puzzled than before. Now I'm not sure that they even come to college for a good time. I'm inclining to the belief that a lot of them don't know why they ever came to college, and I am sure that few, if any, came to college for exactly the same reason.

It doesn't make much difference whether you're interviewing freshmen at American, Georgetown or George Washington. A certain number of them will throw up their hands and look puzzled, when asked why they came to college. A few nurse ambitions which they feel college will foster. These range all the way from becoming naval aviators to writing novels. The one group of freshmen which seems to suffer least doubt as to the reason for their presence on a college campus is composed of those heading for law or medicine.

"YOUNG LADY," I asked Miss Jean Thienes, of Hartford Conn., "why did you come to American University."

Miss Thienes, whose petiteness is compensated by an animation sufficent to put her in at least a dozen places at the same time, balanced on one foot, pouted and looked skyward.

"I know some people," she said suddenly, with an air of discovery.

"Oh, isn't that the answer," she went on, noting my puzzlement. "I have it," she blurted out, "they've got good courses here."

While I waited for a more expansive explanation, Miss Thienes fidgeted a bit, before adding "Journalism and Art."

"What kind of art, Miss Thienes?"

"Oh, my," said Miss Thienes, "the man doesn't know what art is."

UP AT GEORGETOWN, one youngster, who didn't want his name used for fear it would get back to his father, had his reasons for coming to the Hilltop all figured out.

"My Dad wants me to be a doctor," he said, "and I want to be a writer—so I came to Georgetown. In the pre-med course here, you get almost as much English and literature as you'd get in the straight arts course someplace else—so Dad and I are both satisfied."

At George Washington, Mary Winsor Burklin gestured helplessly when asked why she'd come to college, but she was sure that it was going to be much more fun than Woodrow Wilson High.

"You know, it's 'collegiate,'" she said, "football games! Better looking boys!"

Dick Hearty, of Akron Ohio, and Charles Maginnis, of Chicago, Ill., Hilltop freshmen, both said that they figured college was a good investment from a financial point.

"College graduates earn more money," said Maginnis.

A more altruistic note was struck by Jane Esterline, of Altoona, Pa., who is entering American U. to study social sciences.

"I once went through the slums in Philadelphia," she said, "and I'll never forget the experience. People shouldn't have to live like that, and I'd like to find what can be done to help them out."

All of that makes Miss Esterline sound like a very serious person, but she is by no means a melancholy book worm. With excellent taste in clothes, a wide smile and a charming manner, Miss Esterline should find a good many social interests . . . outside the realm of the sciences.

ED KEENAN, of Rochester, N. Y., is only a freshman at the Hilltop, but he delivers his reasons for coming to college with all the assurance of a senior.

"No matter what line you go into—and I don't know what I want to do yet," he said, "a college background is a good thing. It helps you get more kick out of life. Gives you an appreciation of things."

John Begg charges his presence on the Hilltop campus to tradition and explains it simply enough by saying, "My brother went here."

One group of freshmen which seems to know exactly why it came to college is composed of the embryo lawyers.

John Jablonsky, of Long Island, and Ray Hansborough, of McLean, Va., both first year students, have it all settled that they'll continue right through pre-law and law school work, at American U.

Starting in at G. W. with the same intentions, Bill Reynolds, who went to Central High, here in the District, is unperturbed by the seeming abundance of lawyers.

"Sure, there are a lot of lawyers," Bill said, "but there's always room for one more—at the top."

Bill didn't seem to have any doubt as to his ability to find room.

Best answer of the day came from Elizabeth Finley, who intends to major in physical education at American. Tall, blonde and forthright, Miss Finley didn't hesitate a moment in explaining her presence.

"Of course, I know why I came to American," she said, "my parents knew the Dean."

TOMORROW: McCarthy poses as a Freshman at the annual G. W. "Mixer."

Tennis Courts Planned After Mall Is Cleared

Building F Almost Razed, Grading to Proceed Immediately.

The Mall will soon be clear of privately owned property so that Independence avenue may be widened, officials reported yesterday.

Tearing down of Temporary Building F is nearing completion and the contractor, the Hechinger Co., is ready to grade the area near Constitution avenue between Seventh and Ninth streets.

Buildings on the south side of the Mall at Maryland avenue, Independence avenue, Fourth to Sixth streets southwest, have been removed.

National Capital Parks will construct ten new clay tennis courts on Reservation A, C. Marshall Finnan said yesterday. This section is known as Seaton Park East, between Third and Fourth streets, Madison drive and Pennsylvania avenue, east of the Mellon Art Gallery.

Six of the courts will be built on the south side of the Mall at Maryland avenue, Third and Fourth streets southwest.

When Temporary Building F and the privately owned houses are removed, only Temporary Building E will remain. The World War division of the adjutant general's office, the historical section of the Army War College and the Battle Monuments Commission are now housed in this "nonconforming" structure.

Although funds are not immediately available for the demolishing of Building E, future plans call for its razing.

The project of widening Independence avenue already has been completed between Twelfth and Fourteenth streets southwest. Officials stated that when completed the avenue will carry much of the heavy traffic now using Pennsylvania and Constitution avenues.

Academy to Confer Degree on Yarnell

Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commander in chief of the United States Asiatic fleet, soon will receive a certificate conferring a bachelor of science degree upon him.

The certificate, signed by Rear Admiral David Foote Sellers, superintendent of the Naval Academy, was issued under Congressional action authorizing degrees for all graduates prior to 1931. Subsequent classes have received the degree upon graduation.

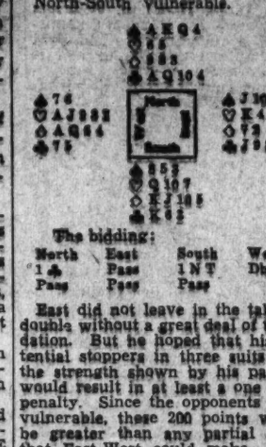
CONTRACT BRIDGE

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson

Don't Squeeze Your Partner.

Average players are apt to marvel (or perhaps scoff) at the hair-trigger penalty doubles of experts. What they overlook is that experts do not double very closely unless they can count on the utmost co-operation in defensive play. In a match-point duplicate it is not uncommon for an expert to double a contract that he virtually knows cannot be defeated more than one trick. Witness the precise co-operation between the defenders in the following hand:

Match Point Duplicate.
North, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.



The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 N T	Dbl.
Pass	Pass	Pass

East did not leave in the takeout double without a great deal of trepidation. But he hoped that his potential stoppers in three suits plus the strength shown by his partner would result in at least a one trick penalty. Since the opponents were vulnerable, these 200 points would be greater than any partial score that East-West could make. Certainly East had no reason to think that a game was possible his way. West had chosen his takeout double deliberately, even though realizing that it was a trifle shaded. He knew that his partner an.. he could wring the last trick from the hand either on defense or offense, and felt that this playing edge should be given scope in which to operate.

The heart eight was opened. East won, and returned his highest remaining heart. The ten lost to the Jack, and the Ace and nine were cashed. East discarding the deuce of diamonds and South the three of spades on the latter. At this point the impulse of all but expert players would be to dash off the remaining heart. West, however, was too far-sighted for that error. He realized that there was a distinct chance that East would have trouble in guarding both of the black suits and that if he (West) were to force another discard from East, the latter might well have to let go another diamond which might be his last. Since the diamond Ace was a sure entry, there was no hurry about cashing the fifth heart. Declarer could hardly hold the K-J of clubs and the Jack of spades, because East had signaled that he had nothing in diamonds. Surely, with only the heart King and no stopper in spades or clubs, East would not have dreamed of leaving in the double.

West, therefore, shifted to a spade and declarer could take no more than six tricks. When the spades failed to break, declarer tried the club suit, but this was stopped and, finally, two diamond tricks had to be given the defenders.

Had West cashed his fifth heart, it would have ruined the defense. Let us then suppose he shifted to a spade. East would have to let go his remaining diamond, to protect the black suits. Declarer then could run off the top spade and throw East on lead with the fourth round. It would not be difficult for declarer to read that East probably had a club stopper. East would be forced to return a club from his Jack, and declarer then could make four club tricks.

Daylight Bandits Halt Driver, Take $75 Amid Traffic

While pedestrians and motorists passed unaware, four colored bandits yesterday afternoon robbed Louis Brogan, 28, of Hyattsville, Md., a Coca-Cola Bottling Co. driver, of $75 in the 900 block Third street southwest.

Forcing Brogan's truck into the curb, the highwaymen threatened him with a revolver when they drew alongside. Brogan said one of the men got out, demanded the money, jumped back into the machine and sped away.

Brogan said the bandit car bore Pennsylvania

Several hours later the touring car was located in the 1300 block of Second street southwest. A squad of officers, under Precinct Detective Cominsky and Private F. F. Gravely searched nearby houses and arrested Bertrum Barton, colored, 37, of Philadelphia, who was identified by Brogan as the driver in the holdup, police said.

Early yesterday, Henry T. Heatwole, 22, 905 Quackenbos street northwest, a cab driver, was robbed of $9 by an armed colored man at First and F streets northwest.

Yellowstone Closing Is Delayed Two Weeks

The Yellowstone National Park will remain open for two more weeks, Secretary Ickes announced yesterday. The original closing date was September 26.

Acting on a letter sent to him by President Roosevelt, Ickes gave the order that will enable the Chief Executive to spend more time in the Yellowstone.

Fire Sweeps House Where KilleenDied

Fire yesterday morning caused $3,000 damage in the Brookmont, Md., home where Eddie Killeen, Washington gambler, was shot two years ago. The house, now the property of Killeen's widow, was occupied by William J. Jones and William P. Cady, who operated a poultry business.

In a second-floor bedroom Jones awoke to find his bed on fire. He groped his way through smoke and called the Cabin John Fire Department. Cady also escaped from the burning building.

The house was not insured. It was not known last night whether the blaze was caused by faulty heating connection or defective wiring. (Photograph on Picture Page.)

Robert D. Wyatt, 1921 Bennett place northeast, has entered the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago to train for foreign missionary service, it was announced yesterday. Wyatt is a member of the Maryland Avenue Baptist Church at Fourteenth street and Maryland avenue northeast.

China Missionary Reassures Father In Delayed Letter

A letter written August 27 at Kuling in the interior of China by Miss Katheryne Thompson, for 15 years a teacher in China for the Southern Presbyterian Church, was received yesterday by her father S. A. Thompson, of 5236 Illinois avenue. Miss Thompson wrote she was well and was awaiting evacuation instructions either from the Presbyterian Mission Board at Nashville, Tenn., or from the State Department.

The letter, which confirmed a note sent to her father August 3 by Miss Thompson, was brought to Hongkong from Kuling by a fellow-missionary and mailed from there. Miss Thompson had been teaching at Kiangyin, 100 miles northwest of Shanghai, and was spending the summer at Kuling with 25 or more other church workers.

Thomjson said Miss Thompson's failure to state her personal plans was because of the lack of evacuation instructions. He said he was informed there was still danger from Japanese bombing planes at all evacuation points.

The Mission Board has sent $10,000 to Hongkong and $5,000 to Tsingtao to defray expenses of evacuation, Thompson said. He added that the missionaries and teachers had been unable to get money from their Shanghai headquarters because of the fighting.

HERE COMES PACKARD FOR 1938
•the only cars that can make you all these promises!
MIRACULOUS RIDE—The new Packard Six and new Packard Eight (formerly called Packard 120) bring you the gentlest ride ever offered to motorists—a ride that literally re-makes roads!
UNEQUALLED SAFETY—These new Packards are outstanding in safety. Side-sway is minimized and the danger of skidding is greatly reduced.
REVOLUTIONARY REAR END—The foregoing things have been accomplished by a trio of epochal improvements which now bring the effect of independent wheel suspension to the rear end.
NEW QUIET BODY—As a result of years of research in cooperation with a great University, Packard brings you a really quiet all-steel body with an all-steel top.
MORE LUXURIOUS SIZE—Both the Packard Eight and Packard Six are seven full inches longer in wheelbase than last year. Bodies are far wider. Trunks challenge those of any cars for roominess.
SERVICE NEEDS CUT—The need for service is still further reduced. Example: Chassis lubrication is now needed, in normal usage only twice a year!
ENDURING BEAUTY—The famous Packard lines are now more beautifully streamlined than ever. But they still proclaim your car a Packard, still guard it from early style obsolescence. Only Packard gives you both long mechanical life and long style life!
EASY AVAILABILITY—YOU can afford one! See your Packard dealer. He will give you proof that, if you can afford to buy and operate any new car, YOU can afford to buy and operate a Packard!

Coal Operators And Deputies Are Indicted

Vester Bennett and Bryan W. Whitfield, jr.

"Company defendants" named were the Mary Helen Coal Corporation, the Harlan Fuel Co., the Bardo Coal Mining Co., the Berger Coal Mining Co., the Black Mountain Corporation, the Blue Diamond Coal Co., the Clover Splint Coal Co., the Clover Fork Coal Co., the Cornett-Lewis Coal Co., the Crummies Creek Coal Co., the Harlan Wallins oal Corporation, the High Splint Coal Co., the Kentucky Cardinal Coal Corporation, the Mahan-Ellison Coal Corporation, the Southern Mining Co., the R. C. Tway Co., the Three Point Coal Corporation, the Creech Coal Company, the Black Star Coal Co., the Harlan Collieries Co., the Harlan Central Coal Co. and the Southern Harlan Coal Co.

Follows Terrorism Inquiry.

The 47 indictments returned against individual coal company officers and deputy sheriffs in Harlan County yesterday are the sequel to three weeks of hearings held last April and May by the Senate Civil Liberties Committee into what the committee called a long-standing condition of "lawlessness, violence and terrorism."

But the Harlan conditions long antedated the hearings. Almost since the turn of the century "bloody Harlan" has been the target of outside criticism which its vocal element has resented fiercely. Only the civil liberties investigation, conducted by Senators Robert M. La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, and Elbert D. Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, has yielded practical results, however.

The indictments were achieved by pursuant investigation of the Department of Justice, utilizing the Senate committee's findings, and operating a statute long in disuse, one which inflicts penalties for interference with exercise of civil rights. Despite this, however, the indictments returned yesterday were based on alleged violations of the national labor relations act.

Prominent in the indictments and in the testimony before the LaFollette committee is the name of Sheriff Theodore R. Middleton, now the leading scion of a family prominent in Harlan annals.

On the stand here, Middleton's testimony was given with great reluctance, but through him and other witnesses, the committee established he has wide financial interests closely linked with those of the coal operators, and that he invested $100,000 in two years on a monthly salary of $150.

Pearl Bassham, one of the operators named in the indictments, won fame on his Washington visit because he confessed he had never heard of the labor relations act, under which he was indicted, until his lawyer informed him of it on his arrival here.

Threat by Creech.

The indictment of Robert Creech and of the Creech Coal Co. yesterday recalls the sensation produced by the arerst of Ted Creech, mine superintendent, for perjury and testimony of another witness that Creech had told him in a Senate hallway, "Wait .till you get back to Harlan and we'll send you up for another ten years.

The violent narrative of killings and shootings which the committee heard was brought to life again in the names of Deputies Frank White and Hugh Taylor in the indictment list. Another deputy named was Ballard Irvin. The committee was told by Sheriff Middleton that the sheriff knew White and "Wash" Irvin shot Taylor and left him for dead, but that "as a rule we don't dismiss them until they are convicted."

On May 4, another deputy said he saw White in an automobile from which a fusillade of high-powered bullets came which killed a union organizer's son. On April 29, Taylor himself had sworn that on his way to the courthouse in February White put a pistol to his head and told him to go home, riddled his hands when Taylor seized the gun, and shot Taylor in the back when he ran.

Unthank "Chief Thug."

Of the others named in the indictments, it was recalled Ben Unthank was named by three mountaineers as the man who paid them from $30 to $100 each to "blow up" a union organizer with 15 sticks of dynamite, and that Merle Middleton, second cousin of the sheriff, admitted to the committee he had been indicted twice for murder and was called by William C. (Thug) Johnson the "chief thug" of Harlan County.

In the midst of the hearings a furore was caused by the statement of Lawrence Howard that he had been threatened with death unless he "took the 6 o'clock train out of here," and by the slaying of a union organizer by four mine guards hired. United Mine Workers representatives told the committee, by coal operators who had just returned to Harlan after testifying here. The U. M. W. asked that Bassham, R. E. Lawson and Mrs. H. Bennett be summoned before the committee for questioning. The hearings yielded a long list of charges of beatings, false jailing and other "intimidation" of union organizers and even the dynamiting of a hotel room.

Such threats as these caused Chairman La Follette, when the hearings closed, to announce the power of the United States would be used to protect the committee's witnesses and warned they must not be molested on their return home. Nevertheless, many witnesses never went back to Harlan.

Shortly afterward several Harlan deputies named here and some who had testified were dismissed by a Kentucky judge. Then the Department of Justice announced the beginning of the investigation which led to yesterday's indictments.

Idaho Applauds Roosevelt as He Praises Borah

President and Court Plan Foe Beam on Each Other in Boise.

to luncheon on the train, along with Gov. Clark, Senator Pope and the two Idaho Congressmen. He talked at length with Borah and showed him as much consideration as he did the 100 per cent New Deal Pope.

Borah, on the other hand, referred to Mr. Roosevelt in his speech of greeting as "our great President" and beamed his delight at having a place on the program. He had reason to, since he was the only Republican asked to come aboard the train since it left Hyde Park.

Behind all this cordiality between Mr. Roosevelt and Senator Borah is the fact that, as far as Idaho goes, both men are political geniuses and are about equally popular. Although Mr. Roosevelt a year ago carried Idaho by a larger majority than Borah did the latter received 2,000 more votes than did the President. Thus it was to the mutual advantage of these two great showmen of politics to bow cordially to each other before today's audience.

Neither referred to the Supreme Court issue over which they fought bitterly earlier in the year. It was Senator Borah who assailed tampering with the Supreme Court even before Mr. Roosevelt's proposal was sent to Congress, and it was Borah who gave the court reorganization opponents their most powerful oratorical gun in that fight. Having won his fight, at least temporarily, Borah was content to let sleeping dogs lie.

Welcome Cordial.

Mr. Roosevelt seemed equally anxious to avoid that issue in this State as he has in others. Indeed, in his only speech of the day, the President told Idahoans he was "not just thinking of the more or less petty problems of the day, the quarrels, the disputes of the moment." Inspired by the multitude of children and trees in Boise, he said, he was thinking about the "bigger objectives of American life"—about long range planning in the field of conservation of water resources, better distributed and greater prosperity for agriculture, the saving of the Nation's timber, and better coordination of industrial activities and control over them.

The President was enthusiastically greeted in Boise. Thousands lined the streets as he rode about inspecting WPA projects and gathered in Capitol Park to hear his speech made from a platform onto which his automobile was driven. It was the first time Mr. Roosevelt had visited Boise. Indeed it was the first time any President since Taft in 1911 had stopped at Idaho's picturesque State Capitol.

The purpose of the trip, it seemed, was to press on the President the need for more generous irrigation and reclamation appropriations for Idaho, for spokesmen of that State, like those of other Midwestern States, apparently believe in asking while the Federal Santa Claus is here. Indeed, they have already received much, for the State is spotted with WPA projects, ranging from schools to cutting weeds along side highways.

The driver of one automobile in the caravan also said a number of hospitals was being built throughout the State and he facetiously added that they were needed because of the number of WPA workers who slip while leaning on shovels and break an arm or leg.

Idaho spokesmen also want the Treasury to continue to pay a 30-cent premium for newly mined silver after this year. The present Executive order, issued to make effective the 1933 London silver agreement, expires December 31., Representative White left with the President a petition to extend for several years more the order to buy newly mined silver at 77.5 cents an ounce. The current world price is about 47 cents.

Would Aid Pope.

However, the purpose of the visit, aside from letting the President have a good look at Idaho, seemed to be to give whatever prestige Mr. Roosevelt can to Senator Pope in his fight for re-election next year.

Pope, a supporter of the court plan and an ardent New Dealer in all respects, faces a hard and complicated fight to hold his Senate seat. His likely Democratic opponent will be either former Gov. C. Ben Ross or Representative D. Worth Clark. Ross got a cold shoulder from the President and was placed on the citizens reception committee only at the last minute and then at the behest of a prominent Republican.

Clark, on other hand, was cordially received by the President yesterday and was invited to luncheon today aboard the train, although he could not attend, due to another engagement.

Tomorrow Mr. Roosevelt will make his only formal speech of the trip at Bonneville Dam, 40 miles from Portland. Those interested in that project hope he will outline future plans for Bonneville hydroelectric power. Tomorrow night Mr. Roosevelt will reach Seattle.

Mr. Roosevelt accepted the resignation of Frank R. McNinch from the Federal Power Commission, to be effective only during the time McNinch requires to reorganize the Federal Communications Commission.

He wrote the President September 15 saying he preferred to resign the chairmanship of the power agency so that there may be no questions raised as to the propriety of his holding two jobs.

The President agreed with McNinch that there may be a "technical question" involved in his holding two positions.

Ashley L. Hawken Burial Set Today

Funeral services for Ashley L. Hawken, 33, will be at 9:30 a. m. today in Hysong's funeral parlor, 1300 N street northwest. Burial will be in Mount Ion Cemetery.

Apparently despondent over financial worries, Mr. Hawken ended his life Sunday by gas in the home of his brother, Dr. Stafford Hawken, 1621 Webster street northwest.

Census Bureau experts "as promptly as possible" for Congressional use.

In the educational campaign to precede the registration the cooperation of all State Governors will be sought, clergymen and the schools will be recruited for help, posters and window cards will be used, appeals will be made in many languages, speakers will be enlisted in all communities, and information booths will be set up in postoffices with specially trained personnel, including interpreters.

John L. Lewis, head of the Committee for Industrial Organization, said after the White House conference that a "ver, practical program" was being developed.

Boris Shiskin, representing William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said the federation "is co-operating 100 per cent." He said latest A. F. of L. estimate, based on Government reports, put the total of the unemployed at about 8,000,000.

Fred Breckman, representing L. J. Taber, head of the National Grange, pointed out there had recently been an actual shortage of labor in some sections, but approved the census plans.

Those representing industry at the conference were W. Averill Harriman, chairman of the Business Advisory Council; George H. Davis, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and Noel Sargent, secretary of the National Association of Manufacturers.

In addition to Lewis and Shiskin, labor was represented by A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

From agriculture, the leaders were Chester A. Gray, of the Farm Bureau Federation; M. W. Thatcher, president of the Farmers' National Co-operative Grain Corporation, and Breckman.

Government departments were represented by Secretary of Commerce Roper, Secretary of Labor Perkins, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Corrington Gill, assistant WPA administrator, Arthur J. Altmeyer, chairman of the Social Security Board; Stuart A. Rice, chairman of the Central Statistical Board; William L. Austin, director of the census; C. B. Uttley, superintendent of the division of postoffice service, and Alan Johnstone, counsel of the special Senate committee to investigate unemployment and relief.

Frank R. Wilson, who was director of organization for the NRA, has been made director of information for the vast undertaking, with offices in the Commerce Building.

The list of questions to be asked, it was made clear, will not include the previous record of the unemployed, as has been suggested by the national chamber of commerce.

800 Spanish Fascists Reported Executed in Rebellion Against Commanders

Loyalists Open Triple Drive on Aragon Front

Rain and Snow Impede Offensive on Three Rebel-Held Cities.

By the Associated Press.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Sept. 27.—Fierce fighting and one attempted rebellion were reported today on three major fronts in the Spanish civil war.

Both insurgent and government communiques said a triple-headed government offensive was under way along 150 miles of the Aragon front against the insurgent-held cities of Jaca, Zaragoza and Teruel.

Supported by a hail of fire from warplanes, artillery, and tanks, government detachments stormed insurgent lines around the three ctites. Heavy rain and snow impeded their advence.

Insurgent commanders in the attacked areas reported they had repulsed the government offensives after nearly 20 hours of combat.

Apparently impressed by the vigor of the government troops, insurgent Gen. Francisco Franco ordered speeding up of the insurgent drive on Gijon, last government-held port in the Spanish northwest.

Government officers said that refugees from Zaragoza told of an uprising of Falangistas (Spanish Fascists) which was ruthlessly suppressed, more than 800 persons being executed.

The refugees said the surviving Falangistas, who have been dissatisfied with the insurgent higher command, had all been disarmed. Those executed were left lying in the streets.

In a maneuver to terminate the Gijon campaign insurgent troops began an encircling movement from the east and south of Rivadesella, important coastal town east of Gijon. With its capture, the insurgents would be in a position to cut off Gijon.

Government dispatches conceded that their forces had been driven back on the Toledo front, 50 miles south of Madrid. They said the insurgent offensive was the fiercest on the central Spanish front since the government's Brunete campaign west of Madrid. Both sides suffered severe casualties.

Hurricane Cripples 2 U. S. Destroyers

Two destroyers, the Claxton and the Manley, which sailed from Norfolk, Va., September 22 for duty with Temporary Squadron 40 in European waters, were damaged so badly in a hurricane off Nova Scotia that they are proceeding to Boston Navy Yard for repairs, the Navy Department announced yesterday.

Lieut. Comdr. J. C. Talbert, commanding officer of the Manley, reported by radio that no one was injured in the storm 300 miles southeast of Sable Island. Seas swept away the Manley's whale boat and split her mainmast.

The after deckhouse and liferafts of the Claxton, commanded by Lieut. Comdr. W. V. Hamilton, were damaged and four of her portholes stove in.

The ships were to relieve destroyers Hatfield and Kane, which have been on duty in Spanish waters since fall, 1936.

Emmet Services Set for Thursday

Vienna, Sept. 27 (AP).—The body of Grenville T. Emmet, United States Minister to Austria, will lie in state in the American Legation for five hours Wednesday, it was announced today.

A memorial service for the diplomat, who died yesterday of double pneumonia two weeks after taking active charge of legation affairs, will be held Thursday in the English church. The diplomatic corps and five high officials of the Austrian government will attend. The only members of his family expected to be present were Mrs. Emmet and two daughters.

Details for transportation of the body to the United States have not been completed.

Ex-Premier Calls Off Bridal in Dowery Row

Cairo, Egypt, Sept. 27 (AP).—Maria Huebner, 17-year-old daughter of an Austrian hotel proprietor who came to Egypt to marry the 64-year-old former premier, Tewfik Nessim Pasha, will go home without a husband. The financial arrangements collapsed today. Nessim said a disagreement with the girl's father over the terms of the marriage settlement had caused the engagement to be broken.

General Strike Suspect Surrenders in Trinidad

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Sept. 27 (AP).—Uriah Butler, Negro labor organizer whose activities were said to have precipitated the general strike in Trinidad last June, surrendered today on a warrant charging him with making seditious speeches.

Butler led a strike in the island's oilfields. Sympathy strikes spread throughout Trinidad and 14 persons were killed.

Legionnaires Arrive To 'Liven Up' London

Southampton, England, Sept. 27 (AP).—More than 500 members of the American Legion promised to "liven up" London today when they arrived on the liner Queen Mary.

Bomb in General's Home.

Paris, Sept. 27 (AP).—An unexploded bomb was found today in the home of Gen. Andre Pretelat, member of France's superior war council.

Chicago Schools Reopen.

Chicago, Sept. 27 (AP).—Some 340,000 grade school pupils returned to their classes today after 30 extra days of summer vacation because of an infantile paralysis outbreak.

while carrying them safely through Indian Ocean monsoons, a heat wave in the Red Sea, mine-infested waters in the Mediterranean, Atlantic gales and Boston fog.

To the giraffes, his particular favorites, he paid reluctant farewell. He has one name for all four—Billy. His decision to stop the ship during a raging gale in order that the loosened giraffe crates on deck might be secured, probably saved their lives.

Jennier will remain several days at the Athenia animal pound to prepare diet formulas and acquaint Federal officials there with the specimens' habits.

Leopard Halts Reunion.

Mrs. Jennier boarded the Silverash shortly after she was berthed at a Staten Island pier to get the first sight of her husband since he and Malcolm Davis, the zoo's bird expert, left New York on the East Indies expedition February 11. The reunion, though joyful, had to be interrupted almost immediately because it came as a black leopard was in midair and its keeper had to see the unloading through.

The sea voyage ended with not a single visit having been made by the stork, though there were plenty of them in the hatches aft. The closest approach to a birth, Dr. Mann said, came when the nicobar pigeon laid an egg. It didn't hatch, though.

Incidentally, animals weren't the only things collected by the National Geographic-Smithsonian expedition led by Dr. Mann. He brought into New York Harbor a briefcase full of export and import permits and quarantine and health certificates which had to be presented to the proper officials before the ark could discharge its wild passengers.

"Surprise" Is Promised.

Although the incoming delegation abounds in rare an interesting members—bat parakeets that sleep upside down, the man-killing African buffalo and the Chinese alligator, to mention only a few—Dr. Mann intimated yesterday that he may have a "surprise" for the Capital when the animals are placed on exhibition.

He gave no hint, however, as to what the "surprise" might be. The secret won't be disclosed until the specimen, whatever it is, is unveiled in its Rock Creek Park quarters.

Dr. Mann, Mrs. Mann, Jennier, Davis and Gaddi, the Borneo guide who left his home in Bangkok, Siam, to help see the animals safely to America, said goodby last night to the officers and Chinese crew of the Silverash.

"The best cook that ever cracked an egg," Dr. Mann said fondly as he embraced "Charley," the Shanghai Chinese, who is wholly impervious to the English language.

I sampled his curry, hotch potch soup and pie in Halifax and Boston and am ready to testify they were well nigh unbeatable. His culinary talents apparently satisfied, as well, the Himalayan bears, cassowaries, tapirs, et al.—if their good health and high spirits upon arrival provide any criterion.

Roosevelt Arms Policy Is Praised to Veterans

Cincinnati, Sept. 27 (AP).—Counseled by President Roosevelt to "aid in every way" the cause of security, members of the Military Order of the World War heard Admiral Reginald D. Belknap, retired, reclare today that the Chief Executive himself is "making good . . . the words of every President, that a 'man strong armed keepeth his goods in peace.'"

Threat to Charge Mutiny Prevents Strike on Vessel

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—Capt. William B. Oakley, of the Panama-Pacific liner California, was about to have a sit-down strike on his the crew he would label the action hands, but he averted it by telling "mutiny on the high seas."

It started when the engine room crew threatened to strike because of the demotion of a third-class electrician to a wiper. Capt. Oakley told National Maritime Union delegates on the vessel (which arrived here today) that he would have the ship towed outside the harbor, where, if the refusal to work continued he could declare it mutiny.

This happened at Cristobal, Capt. Oakley reported. After a slight delay, he said, the engine room crew turned to and lit their fires and the ship pr .eco d deekotherh, fhf ship proceeded.

Liberal Stand in '40 Forecast by Farley

Spartanburg, S. C., Sept. 27 (AP).—James A. Farley, national Democratic Party chairman and Postmaster General, said in a speech here today that there was little possibility of a third party showing any great strenth in the 1940 elections.

"The liberals and progressives who supported Roosevelt in 1932 and 1936," he said in an interview, "will find that the 1940 Democratic nominee will run on a platform that will include their objectives and therefore will have the same appeal as the 1932 and 1936 national Democratic platforms.

"These liberals and progressives will find that their objectives can be achieved through Democratic channels."

At Greenville, Farley asserted in an address that President Roosevelt is as popular now as he was when he was re-eltec last year.

Chauffeur Expires At Wheel of Motor

John Braxton, colored chauffeur employed by the St. Joseph's Home and School, died, apparently of a heart attack, at the wheel of a car yesterday while waiting for two sisters who were in the offices of the Catholic Charity, 1441 Rhode Island avenue.

Braxton had been employed by the St. Joseph's School, where he also lived, for ten years. He had just returned from Virginia, where he attempted to determine the date of his birth.

'Feeble' Protest of U. S. In China Hit by Bishop

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 27 (AP).—Gold Star Mothers were told today by an Episcopal bishop that America's moral leadership is needed in the Far East to "ward off grave consequences to the people of the United States."

"Many of us regret that our country has seen fit to do nothing more than make a solitary and feeble protest in this situation," Bishop John C. Ward, of the Diocese of Erie, said at the annual memorial service of Erie County's Gold Star Mothers.

Dieckhoff Back in U. S.

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—Dr. Hans H. Dieckhoff, German Ambassador to the United States, returned today from a trip to his homeland, and said Berlin always was prepared to discuss means for improvement of German-American trade.

pound bombs, attempted again to destroy the important North Station in Shanghai, where Chinese troops and supplies have been arriving from Nanking. Japanese troops, reportedly reinforced by 40,000 more men from home, attempted to smash Chinese defense lines in the Lotien-Liuhang sector northwest and west of the city.

Gen. Chu announced his forces had captured Yunganchiao—"The Eternal Peace Bridge"—midway between Liuhang and Yanghang after repelling a Japanese attack.

Japanese counter-attacked immediately and the village changed hands several times. Its status at present was in doubt as the fighting grew fiercer.

Chinese forces were retreating along a 70-mile front in North China. It was admitted here Chinese troops were falling back from Paotingfu on the Peiping-Hankow Railway and from Tsangchow on the Tientsin-Pukow line. A new line was reported to have been prepared 70 miles to the south, extending from Chengting eastward to Chuanhochen, south of Tsanghsien on the Tientsin-Pukow Railroad.

Japanese Minimize Bombing.

Peiping, Sept. 27 (AP).—Japanese military and naval authorities today evinced concern over foreign reaction to Japanese aerial bombardment of Chinese cities.

Spokesmen for both service branches issued carefully prepared statements urging foreign correspondents "not to believe greatly exaggerated reports concerning Japanese bombing of the civilian population of China."

Home-Made Boat Spills, Three Youths Drowned

New Bedford, Mass., Sept. 27 (U.P.).—Coast Guardsmen tonight recovered bodies of three boys from their home-made sailboad which foundered a mile off Pasque Island in Buzzards Bay. The trio were identified as Raymond Costa, 14; Joseph Viera, 18, and Joseph Paiva, 16, owner of the 15-foot craft, all of Dartmouth. Search was continued for a fourth boy, Roland Arruda, 15.

Dysentery Kills 50.

Fukuoka, Japan, Sept. 27 (AP).—Domei, Japanese news agency, reported today 50 children have died since Saturday in an epidemic of dysentery in the City of Omuta. More than 2,000 children and adults have been afflicted.

Reds Clear Out Old Politicians Before Election

By the Associated Press.

Moscow, Sept. 27.—With Russian legislative elections in the offing, the drive against "anti-Soviet wreckers" turned today to old provincial politicians in Soviet Union border republics to stamp out any separatist sentiment.

Pravda, official Communist Party newspaper, editorially indicated the Kremlin is pushing old politicians out of the seats of power in favor of younger leaders of more reliable loyalty.

President on Trial.

Referring to the elections, Pravda said:

"After exposing and routing out hostile scum, we must open the gates wider to those younger national nuclei who have displayed self-sacrificing work and who are devoted to the party of Lenin and Stalin."

In the current drive, Pravda mentioned the following:

Trial of the president of the autonomous republic of Adjaria and ten others accused of treason in plotting with an unnamed foreign government for an armed revolt.

Removal of Premier Faisulla Khodjaeff and other officials of the Soviet Republic of Uzbekistan.

Scheduled trial in Tadjikistan of 12 high officials of the party for "violating revolutionary law" in attacking and abusing collective farmers.

Girl Says Teacher Permitted Class to Throw Mud Balls

Waynesburg, Pa., Sept. 27 (AP).—Twelve-year-old Ila June Baily faced her former country school teacher today in Greene County's colonial courthouse and testified the teacher, Mrs. Laura Elma Morris, permitted her pupils to throw paper wads and mud balls in class.

The Whiteley Township school board had referred to paper wad throwing as one of their reasons for Mrs. Morris' dismissal, which she is contesting in county court.

Ila June testified:

"She said she didn't care how many paper wads were thrown as long as they didn't make her the target."

Relief Aide Cleared Of Expense Swindle

By the United Press.

The Works Progress Administration said last night it had dropped charges of irregularities in an expense account of John Emerson, Florida employment service director, when he was an Emergency Relief Administration employe.

After a six-week investigation of a $46.72 item in connection with an automobile trip, WPA officials said the charges "could not be substantiated.

Postal Official Urges Hull for Presidency

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 27 (AP).—Karl A. Crowley, of Fort Worth, Tex., solicitor for the Postoffice Department, said today Secretary of State Cordell Hull is "the best equipped man to succeed President Roosevelt."

Western Pacific Refinancing Plan Attacked by RFC

By the Associated Press.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation criticized severely yesterday a plan advanced by the Interstate Commerce Commission's finance bureau for reorganization of the Western Pacific Railroad, saying some of the provisions are "essentially unfair."

The RFC said that as of January 1, 1938, the railroad would owe it $2,150,000 in unpaid interest. The reorganization proposal made no provision for the payment of this interest.

Criticism also was directed at a provision of the plan giving the Western Pacific Railroad Corporation, described by the RFC as an unsecured creditor, the right to buy $10,000,000 of the reorganized railroad's first mortgage 4 per cent bonds plus a "bonus" of $10,000,000 par value common stock.

U. S. Bald Eagle Is Maligned Bird, Biologist Asserts

Bald eagles, in stone and in the flesh, are in the news.

The national bird, more than once accused of snatching children and young animals, yesterday found a spirited defender in N. R. Casillo, biology teacher in the New Castle (Pa.) High School. Having spent years gathering data on the eagle's habits, Casillo reported to the American Nature Association the bird was not nearly so bad as its reputation.

Casillo has received no authenticated records of an American eagle attacking a child, sheep or goat, and he concluded from his investigation that the bird usually prefers dead fish.

Meanwhile, Arthur L. Blakeslee, an official in the architect's office of the Treasury, denied a rumor that his department's regulations were being flouted by a terra-cotta eagle in the Government sample room.

Convict Shot by Guard In Fight at San Quentin

San Quentin, Calif., Sept. 27 (AP).—Another disturbance in a California prison, the third within two weeks, led to the shooting of a convict in San Quentin today by a guard.

The convict, Cecil Duncan, 28, colored, was shot from a guard tower as he and another convict fought in the prison yard and ignored warnings to stop. Other convicts, marching from breakfast, witnessed the affair but did not interfere.

Parents Act to Regain Freddie Bartholomew

Hollywood, Sept. 27 (U.P.).—The prolonged litigation involving Freddie Bartholomew, the little Lord Fauntleroy of motion pictures, reached an anticlimax today when his parents filed a petition in Los Angeles Superior Court to set aside adoption proceedings by which his aunt became his legal guardian.

Miss Myllicent Bartholomew adopted Freddie a few months after he came to Hollywood, where he has since figured in a maze of litigation, including one suit to hold him to a $1,100-a-week movie contract.

Prisoners Send Wreath To Honor Slain Warden

Sacramento, Calif., Sept. 27 (AP).—A huge wreath inscribed "Our Warden" was among the floral pieces today at the funeral of Warden Clarence A. Larkin, who was wounded fatally September 19 in an attempted break at Folsom Prison.

The floral piece was the offering of hundreds of Folsom's convicts, who had contributed their nickels and dimes.

Four More Held For $30,000 Theft at Pepco

Nine Accused in Removal of Scrap Copper and Lead.

Four more men were arrested yesterday in connection with the theft of approximately $30,000 worth of scrap metal from the Potomac Electric Power Co.

The men, all employes of the company, were arrested by Detective Sergt. Robert Barrett and charged with grand larceny. Held at the Ninth Precinct Station, they gave their names as Samuel Staples, 23, of 606 Independence avenue southwest; Arthur A. Grubbs, 51, of 819 Delafield place northwest; Emory E. Geiger, 25, of 608 Girard street northwest, and Jeremiah VanLandingham, 27, of 313 D street northwest.

Five arrested Saturday night by police who said waste copper and lead scraps had been salvaged and sold to junk dealers by the men, were ordered held for the grand jury yesterday. Two of the men were charged grand larceny and two held for allegedly receiving stolen property.

Raymond Fainberg, 27, and his father, Louis Fainberg, 53, of 524 Quackenbos street northwest, charged with being receivers, sought preliminary hearings before Police Court Judge Hobart Newman. They were held under $2,000 bond each.

Lawrence B. Bailey, 54-year-old company foreman, of 468 Maryland avenue southwest, who was to be retired next month, was held under $500 bond on a grand larceny count. He waived preliminary hearing.

The other two men, George E. Leonard, 47, of 1516 Q street northeast, and Allie Downs, 56, 634 Fifteenth street northeast, were held under $1,000 bond each on charges of receiving stolen property and grand larceny, respectively.

"At the United States Civil Service Commission we are particularly proud of the fact that the vast majority of the employes of the Postoffice Department now are in the competitive classified civil service. Our latest report shows that more than 93 per cent of your positions are classified. We are also deeply interested in the remaining 7 per cent."—Civil Service Commissioner McMillin.

James G. Yaden, who retired Friday night as president of the A. F. G. E.'s District department, is a model of self-effacement. Some time ago, the members tried to force through an amendment that would permit him to serve a second term. Yaden did battle against it. Upon his retirement the department voted to tender him a banquet. Yaden even tried to beat that move. He carried the organization through a sea that would have wrecked anything but a good captain. And he deserved every echo of the applause he got Friday night when—at long last—he laid down the burden.

And looking back on that same meeting, it occurs that the several Indians—who were welcomed as representatives from the newly formed Indian Lodge in Interior—received the biggest hand of any group that ever appeared there. The Indians were Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Silverthrone, Walter Turnbull and Palmer Byrd. They pledged all manner of support to the organization and when an Indian does that it means exactly what it says.

The mild commotion you have heard—but failed to investigate—at the A. F. G. E. District Department meeting the other night was just another fist fight between two brother delegates. But it brought to light the traditional faultiness of those who jump in to halt a fight. Always the peacemakers' technique is bad. In this particular fight, for example, all of the peacemakers pounced on one combatant, restraining him by grips on the arms, legs and shoulders. This was very bad. It permitted the other combatant to pummel the restrained one on the head. No one thought, apparently, of holding onto both. There should be some Queensbury rules, or perhaps some Government regulation—by bureau or commission—to handle these peacemakers. The first and basic principle of stopping a fight should be the movement to seize both combatants in equally firm grips. This should be done, because boys will be boys.

The schedule tomorrow for the I. D. R. A.'s up-and-coming bowling league is: Reclamation vs: Indian Bureau, National Capital Parks vs. Administrative, Engineers vs. Secretary's Office, National Park Service vs. General Land Office, and Geological Survey vs. Buildings Management. Team captains are: Reclamation, Carl Oberheim; National Park Service, John M. Wilkinson; Indian Bureau, Jack Marchant; Geological Survey, C. R. Graham; Administrative, C. H. Peake; Engineers, John P. Sniegoski; National Capital Parks, Harold Thomas; Land Office, William F. Dawson; Buildings, C. C. Cavanaugh, and Secretary's Office, Frank Updike. Henry D. Billings, General Land Office, is secretary and official scorer.

Physicians Blame Hysteria of Youth On Mother's Death

Ernest C. Mills, 17, whose strange illness temporarily puzzled police still investigating the sudden death of his mother Saturday, last night was in a semiconscious condition in the Alexandria Hospital due to hysteria. Physicians blamed his immediate condition on news of his mother's death.

The mother, Mrs. Edith J. Mills, 37, wife of Michael B. Mills, of 316 East Raymond avenue, died an hour after she was admitted to the hospital. After an autopsy failed to explain her death, stomach contents were sent to the Federal Bureau of Investigation for analysis.

According to Dr. Martin D. Delaney, physician in attendance, Ernest was subject to infrequent fainting spells. Dr. Delaney said his present condition was the result of "pure hysteria." Ernest was stricken Saturday with convulsions similar to those which preceded his mother's death.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mills will be held today at 2 p. m. at the Christian Church, the Rev. R. W. Frame, pastor, officiating.

Nobody Will Eat Poison Eclairs, Even to Please Health Officials

Dr. John E. Noble tries to induce guinea pig to nibble chocolate eclair in hunt for bacteria that made hundreds of Washingtonians ill.

Appeal for Human Test Tubes Made in Vain, Despite Solemn Assurances That Death Is Not Very Likely.

A "human guinea pig" who will eat poisonous chocolate eclairs is wanted by the Health Department, in a search for the evasive staphylococcus, which infected 500 Washingtonians in last week's poison-food epidemic.

The department has plenty of real guinea pigs. But Dr. John E. Noble, director of the Health Department laboratories, says he is not certain guinea pig stomachs will react to the tainted food the same way human stomachs will.

So far no one has volunteered. Newsmen and others in the District Building declined firmly. They were stubborn about it, even though Melvin P. Isaminger, director of the Bureau of Public Health Education, announced that none of Washington's 500 victims had died.

Dr. Isaminger himself declined to eat the eclairs.

Officials of the health department yesterday broadcast a warning to housewives and at the same time disclosed the name of the germ that spoiled the chocolate eclairs and thereby made at least 500 persons violently ill.

The bacteria's name, it was said, is hemolytic-staphylococcus. Meantime Health Officer George C. Ruhlan din his warning to housewvies suggested that eclairs and other custard pastry be reheated to kill the germ, if it lies dormant in the food.

Refrigeration is not always enough, he said, although it is always advisable to keep the pastry in a refrigerator. The reheating, he added, does not harm the flavor of the eclair.

Scattered reports of illness from eating eclairs were still being made to the health department, although the polluted pastry was put on the market last Thursday.

German Widely Studied in U. S. As War Prejudice Is Forgotten

Number of American High Schools Offering Once Popular Language Doubled Between 1928 and 1934.

American schools are recovering from their war-time prejudice against the German language, according to a report published yesterday by the Office of Education. In 1934 German classes were held in high schools in every State except Alabama, New Mexico and Nevada, whereas in 1928 11 States reported no courses in the language.

Up to the time of the war, German was second only to Latin in its popularity. In 1915 one out of every four students in the schools reporting ot the Office of Education was studying the tongue. The full effect of anti-German sentiment was felt in 1922, when less than one student in 100 elected the subject.

From 1928 to 1934 the number of schools offering German and the number of pupils electing it nearly doubled. The highest increase was reported by schools in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Minnesota and Wisconsin. Even in Hawaii, where no school offered the language in 1928, 46 pupils now are studying it.

German was the only one of the four principal foreign languages taught which showed a percentage increase in the six-year period. Latin, whichc was studied by 50 per cent of America's high school students up to 1910, dropped to 15.6 per cent in 1934, presumably because of the gradual elimination of college Latin requirements.

Various sections of the country are sharply divided according to their linguistic tastes, the Office of Education finds. New England, Middle Atlantic and Mississippi Valley States are partial to Latin and French, while Spanish prevails in all the States along the Mexican border.

Van Devanter Busy.

Ellicott City, Md., Sept. 27 (AP).—Willis Van Devanter, who recently retired from the United States Supreme Court, said today his reasons for not addressing the American Bar Association convention had "no political or other significance." Personal business matters prevented his acceptance, he said.

HOW LONG CAN A THREE-QUARTER WIFE HOLD HER HUSBAND?

YOU have to work at marriage to make a success of it. Men may be selfish, unsympathetic, but that's the way they're made and you might as well realize it.

When your back aches and your nerves scream, don't take it out on your husband. He can't possibly know how you feel.

Vladivostok was seething with anti-Japanese feeling.

[Another Tokyo newspaper said Russia and China had negotiated a secret military alliance. A Japanese foreign office spokesman said he had "much information" about the reported pact.—Editor's note.]

Russia's two brusque notes to Japan over the week-end, warning Tokyo Moscow will not tolerate attacks on Soviet citizens or their property in China, were interpreted by diplomats as part of the general Soviet program designed to protect Russian interests in China without becoming involved in the Sino-Japanese war.

The notes, delivered to the Japanese foreign minister and to the Japanese consul general in Shanghai, stated the U. S. S. R. will hold Japan responsible for any damage to the Soviet embassy in Nanking, and asserted that "there is cause to fear that a continuation of the bombardment of the Chinese capital by Japanese airplanes threatens the embassy of the U. S. S. R., the life of its Ambassador and his staff, and the property of the embassy."

Assassination In Nazareth.

The assassination of the British district commissioner for Galilee, as he was leaving a church service in Nazareth on Sunday, is only the latest in a long series of terroristic actions that have occurred in the Holy Land during the past few years.

It is possible, of course, that the attack on the commissioner was purely the result of a personal vendetta, without political implications. It is known that the murdered commissioner, a stickler for law enforcement, had made many enemies in a district which has long been regarded as one of the most turbulent in Palestine. But the presumption is that the assassination was the work of fanatical Arabs whose anger with the mandatory power, and the Palestine government, has grown to fever heat in consequence of the recent partition proposal.

An important element of the Arab population of Palestine and Transjordania is, as it happens, inclined to favor the proposed division of the Holy Land into Jewish and Arab states, with Great Britain retaining a mandate over the holy places and a corridor to the sea. But for this very reason the extremists are more up in arms against Great Britain than ever. They feel that if they do not strike now their cause will be lost for good. And now, as in the past, the weapon they are employing is direct action. The sharp disavowal and denunciation of the present murder, promptly issued by the Arab High Committee, indicates only that these leaders have incomplete control over their followers.

To meet the threat of a reign of terror the police of Palestine recently felt compelled to offer rewards totaling £10,000 for information leading to the arrest of those responsible for recent murders. Should the disorders continue, Great Britain will no doubt add to the already considerable reinforcements of troops it has sent to the mandated area.

Whatever disposition is ultimately made of Palestine the recrudescence of violence at this time constitutes a challenge to the British government and the British authorities in the Holy Land which they are not likely to leave unanswered. The partition scheme will be difficult to carry out under any circumstances. But the situation will become impossible of peaceful solution if terrorism is not stamped out.

Penny Wise.

Some unanticipated results of undiscriminating economy were emphasized for President Roosevelt with effective force when he visited Yellowstone National Park. On the very day that the President was enjoying the beauties of this great national playground it was closing its gates to other citizens. For want of funds the Department of the Interior had ordered cessation of all travel through the park on September 26.

Fortunately, the President brought about a revocation of the order as soon as the situation was clearly presented to him. By closing the park gates prematurely only a trifling sum would be saved to the Government. Indeed, the estimated saving exceeds the estimated receipts from continued tourist traffic by only $2,000. And a delegation from the Tri-State Yellowstone Park Civic Association, which descended upon the President's headquarters, insisted that closing of the park before winter sets in would mean a loss of $100,000 in tourist business to surrounding communities.

Confronted by these convincing arguments the President lost no time in reversing, in this particular instance, the policy of saving 10 per cent of all departmental appropriations. At his request Secretary Ickes has ordered the park staff to keep the gates open for another fortnight, unless the highways should be blocked by snow. But the premature closing of the park's museums and the cessation of road work for want of funds remain unaffected by the new order.

Yellowstone National Park will be more than self-sustaining this year. Revenue collected from tourists is estimated at $460,000 and the appropriation for operation and maintenance of the park was $411,000. But these entrance fees, etc., go directly into the Treasury and are not available to the National Park Service. With the appropriation rigidly fixed, the 15 per cent increase in travel through the park this year caused a heavy drain upon available funds, and thus was partly responsible for the premature closing order.

When an arbitrary 10 per cent cut was imposed upon this inflexible arrangement frantic but futile economy gestures were inevitable. The result already appears to have involved more waste than real economy. Satisfaction that the park is to remain open for post-season use is clouded by the suspicion that Government service is being impaired in many other instances by an unscientific slashing of expenditures that effects no real savings.

"Made In Japan."

Dr. Hu Shih, whose fame as a scholar and philosopher far outruns the confines of his native China, makes an important point on arriving in this country on a special wartime mission for his government.

Japan's effort to terrorize the Chinese people by wholesale airplane bombardment of great cities, asserts Dr. Hu, is a confession of military weakness on the part of the aggressor. And it is the more to be regarded as a frantic gesture because China is about the last country in which mass slaughter of this sort is likely to be psychologically effective.

The very factors which made the Nanking government loath to resist Japan's brazen aggression also tend to minimize the effect of these bombardments. The absence of centralization, the backwardness of communications, the self-sufficiency of the various provinces all mean that the air raids, while brutal and horrible, are relatively ineffective. As a matter of fact much more is known about them in this country than in China itself, outside of the areas where the bombs actually hit.

Like all exponents of "frightfulness," the Japanese have failed to think through the full consequences of the terrorizing policy on which they have embarked. Seeking to cow the Chinese, they have advertised to their opponents that man to man, in fair combat, the Japanese soldier is in no way superior to the Chinese. And in trying to blast China into submissiveness, the Japanese have aroused a world-wide wave of moral indignation which will far outweigh the gains counted in murdered noncombatants.

Both in Great Britain and this country popular movements to boycott Japanese goods have been organized and are growing rapidly. Statements by Japanese officers that aerial bombardments "will be duly carried out," regardless of their cost to civilians, are grand recruiting slogans for these movements. And governments well acquainted with Japanese commercial policy are not, at this juncture, likely to raise any objection whatsoever to popular protests of this character.

China herself has in the past demonstrated Japan's vulnerability to the peaceful boycott weapon. If the movement now started gains headway, it will mean trade losses for Japan which further military desolation of her best potential market will in no way offset. Admiral Honda and his colleagues at Shanghai may not be thinking of this but it is a safe bet that the growing ostracism of Japanese wares is much in the mind of the businessmen of Tokyo and Osaka.

Terrorism is always a sign of desperation. As practiced by Japanese aviators on the densely populated Chinese cities, it is close to a public confession of military incapacity. The practices have now elicited official protests from several governments and public condemnation by the 23 nations represented on the League of Nation's Advisory Committee on the Far East.

But more to the point, because more directly effective, may be the silent disapproval of the millions of potential customers for whom the legend "made in Japan" is beginning to become distinctly offensive.

Communists And The C. I. O.

The officers of the Metals Trade Department of the A. F. of L. bitterly denounce the C. I. O. and John L. Lewis in particular for bringing Communists into their organization on equal terms with other members. The argument that Communists are also workers and hence cannot be ignored if unions are to achieve maximum strength is dismissed as a weak and unworthy defense.

Apparently the "Red" hunters never stop to consider the positive benefits of adopting an opportunistic policy in dealing with Communists. For some unexplained reason, they assume that the subversive views of the Communists will contaminate their less radical associates. They do not consider the effect upon the Communists themselves of being brought into contact with conservative elements. Yet experience has shown that in countries where radical political groups follow the opportunistic policy of co-operating with other parties to attain immediate, though limited objectives, they speedily become more moderate in their outlook, less violent in their demands.

There was a time when Socialists were beyond the pale—regarded as enemies of society. As they became more numerous and better represented in political life, they came to be accepted in country after country as moderate radicals, constituting no real threat to the established order. The Communists have not yet arrived at the stage where they are generally considered harmless, but in France their conduct tends to substantiate the rule that the responsibilities of political power have a chastening effect upon conduct.

If opportunism reduces the political menace of communism it is fairly certain to produce good results in dealing with communistically inclined labor groups. To assume otherwise is to admit tacitly that the average Communist has a strength of conviction and an ability to resist the influence of environment denied to the average individual with more conservative leanings.

Liberalizing Discounts.

The revision of the regulations governing discounts and advances by Federal Reserve banks for member banks was made necessary by legislative changes enacted since 1930—the date of the last revision.

As the Reserve Board explains, the banking act of 1935 liberalized and made permanent the emergency provisions of the law permitting advances to member banks on any sound assets. The revised regulations accordingly list various classes of assets acceptable as collateral for advances and provide further that the Reserve Banks may accept as security any other assets satisfactory to them.

In other words, the regulation "bars no class of paper from use as collateral for advances but merely indicates a preferred list of paper which covers all the principal fields of financing." On that preferred list installment paper and real estate loans appear—a rather startling reminder of the radical changes that have occurred in the character of the system's operations.

In the board's opinion the solvency of banks is better safeguarded by looking at the quality of paper acquired than by strict observance of the form taken by paper offered for discount. This opinion is not shared by critics like Senator Glass, who uphold the restrictive provisions of the old eligibility rules calling for short-term paper of a self-liquidating character. However, the controversy over eligibility requirements is water over the dam. The Federal Reserve act as modified required a liberalization of practice in making discounts and advances, with emphasis on quality rather than form.

As there is very little demand at present from member banks for use of discount facilities, the new regulation is not expected to have any immediate practical effect. However, a liberalization of eligibility requirements will undoubtedly influence many bankers to adopt a more liberal attitude toward applicants for loans. Ultimately, indirectly if not directly, it should have a stimulative effect in expanding commercial bank loans.

It is rather unfortunate, however, that the Reserve Board distorted the significance of the revision by referring to it as a means of implementing the system's policy of monetary ease and "an appropriate sequence" of the recent reduction of discount rates. Such assertions may have a soothing effect upon those who need assurances that easy money policies are to be continued. But as a matter of fact, the revision is the outcome of prolonged study and discussion. If the announcement had been made under different conditions, it would have been accepted merely for what it is—an implementation of changes in the law made two years ago.

Despite the board's conviction that "technical limitations on the character of eligible paper endanger rather than protect the safety of the banking structure," it is worth noting that it has suggested certain minimum standards for member banks to follow in order to make their real estate loans and installment paper acceptable as a basis for advances. This kind of advice has an educational value in raising banking standards. It serves an excellent purpose even if banks have no occasion to apply for loans.

Chantecler Crows Again.

"Chantecler," it will be remembered, was the most famous cock-of-the-walk in histrionic history. He it was who thought that the sun rose at his crow. Paradoxically, it fell to the most unassuming actress on the American stage to bring to this country the role of the rooster who suffered from delusions of grandeur. Her name was Maude Adams.

Already immensely popular because of "Peter Pan," Miss Adams won instant success in the starring role of "Chantecler." Though not particularly suited to the part in point of sex and size, she nevertheless managed to imbue the Rostand fantasy with charm. Now, a quarter of a century later, she is again bringing the barnyard egoist to life. But this time it is as director and not as actress. Miss Adams has accepted the post of counselor in dramatics at Stephens College in Columbia, Mo. And the first play which she will coach in this girls' school is the one in which she won acclaim in 1911.

It has been rumored time and again that Maude Adams would stage a "comeback." She has, in fact, appeared briefly before the footlights once or twice since 1931. But the public stands to gain much more from Miss Adams in the role of teacher than in the customary comeback. For if she manages to infuse only one student with a mastery of her own magic, she will have passed on a torch of infinitely more value than the traditional farewell tour.

Laying The Gold Ghost.

From the London Financial News.

Even if some event, such as the resumption of Russian shipments, should cause fresh uneasiness about gold prospects, there is not likely to be any recurrence of the gold scare in the sense that we came to know it during the second quarter of this year. There will be no dishoarding of gold by the millions, simply because there is not enough hoarded gold left to repeat the experience of April-June. Nor is there any likelihood of the recurrence of the wide discounts witnessed during that period. The discount was due to the impatience of hoarders to liquidate their holdings. In the absence of wholesale dishoarding, the bulk of the gold in the market will consist of newly mined metal, and the interests in charge of marketing it are not likely to sell at an absurd discount.

Nearby County Government.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a home owner and business investor in Greater Washington, the writer has lived in Montgomery County, Md., for over 18 years, and as civil service employe resided in the area for ten years previous to that time. During the latter period the operation of the county government has been a matter of considerable interest and, partly through a membership in the National Municipal League, has been the object of some study. As a result it seems to me that there is more to be said for the report of the National Resources Committee advocating enlargement of the unit of municipal government than is being said.

There are, indeed, reasons for being glad that some of the idiosyncracies of the District government do not extend to us in Maryland. But there would seem to be some opportunity for getting rid of those things and also of certain difficulties in local county politics by an extension of the District of Columbia area which carried with it the extension of a local, nonpartisan franchise and Congressional representation.

In the Virginia area (Arlington County) President Hoover extended to civil service employes the privilege of local political activity, but in Maryland this privilege is restricted to a very few small, incorporated "villages" and does not extend to the really important county government. This so restricts the highly intelligent civil service element that it might almost as well not have any local franchise at all.

Those who do vote locally necessarily take a desultory interest in local politics which is esaily influenced by misleading propaganda.

Moreover, despite the otherwise undesirable "declaration of intentions" law, it is difficult to keep machine politics from voting residents of the District who have no real interest in the county. The political atmosphere is thus surcharged with an unhealthy, civil service disdain for local politics that extends largely throughout the better class of potential voters, even to those who are not in the civil service; and the "declaration of intentions" requirement promotes this attitude of indifference. Indeed, municipal utilities are already largely controlled, as in the District, by appointive, State commissions and not by elected county commissioners. This is, I think, not true of any other community in Maryland.

The result of this state of affairs is that the membership of such a civic organization as the Civic Federation has a large element of nonvoters who cannot deliver at the polls in favor of such worthy projects or restrictions as they may desire; and it is a tribute to the character of the back-county, rural residents that the county government the practicability of a continuation is not worse than it is. Certainly, if this situation is open to serious question, and there seems little to be said from a common-sense point of view for the existence of the District of Columbia-State line in the very midst of what is essentially one commuity. It is an expensive political luxury to say the least, and constitutes a large factor in making Maryland State politics the too rigid, partisan-machine affair that it is, because of the development of a municipality which has one political leg in the political grave that is the District of Columbia.

Favors Sales Tax.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to go on record in favor of the sales tax, which is the only just form of taxation because it eliminates detail work, let every one pay a share of the taxes, gives all a chance to recuperate losses by purchasing cheaper articles, and closes all avenues of escaping taxation. The income tax defeats the purpose for which it was intended because the wealthy can invest in tax-exempt securities, capital invested in business and various other legal methods of evading the intent of the law.

On the other hand the poor only think they are not being taxed because those who can pass it on to the purchasing public, which means that they are not only paying the tax of the wealthy, but in the majority of cases a stiff bonus.

The middle class pays the majority of the taxes because they have not sufficient funds to invest in tax-exempt securities; consequently, they not only pay the increase in price of the commodities, but also the income tax.

The business-privilege tax is paradoxical. To think that in this land of the free, anyone should have to pay for earning a living!

For the sake of justice, let us have the sales tax; then the wealthy would pay the majority of taxes, on account of their elaborate entertaining and purchase of expensive articles; the poor would be better off, because there would be less of a tendency to increase the price of the merchandise. (If the price of the merchandise were increased, the wealthy would have to pay more taxes and that would not be logical.)

The middle class would pay their just share of taxes and be given the opportunity to recuperate from adversity by purchasing cheaper articles.

Animals And Humans.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Do people who advocate legislation against experimentation on animals in laboratories realize what such legislation would mean to humanity? It is all very well to be sentimental over the fates of cats, dogs, guinea pigs, etc. But if the question were asked, "Would you rather save the life of a stray cat or contribute [illegible] life to conquer disease?" what would the answer be?

Too few people realize that without the sacrifice of the lives of dumb animals, medical knowledge would not be what it is today. Epidemics of smallpox would still ravage great portions of our population. Antitoxins would be unknown. And great cattle plagues would threaten us with both disease and shortage of food. At the present time we are worried about the numerous infantile paralysis cases in this country. Would scientists be able to work on the problem and look for preventatives and cures if experimentation on animals were prohibited? Those who think that passing such legislation is progressive are very much mistaken. They would be turning back the clock and tying the hands of medical research workers.

People who want to be humane would do better to see that humans are not homeless and without food. Starving children, and there are many of them, are more of a blot on civilization than cats and dogs that are being sacrificed so that man may live.

"Words In Cellophane."

To the Edtior of The Post—Sir: For fear your state of mind may become even worse from constant brooding over the prize-winning MS. in New Statesmen and Nation, I wish to offer you the benefit of my years as phoologist and verbiotic-terpsichorean.

Understandable though it is that a writer of editorial matter becomes confused at the quoted opus, it is at the same time lamentable that so little real sympathy is shown toward the British struggle for expression. We must remember always that these people are handicapped by crowding one against the other.

For once, permit me to point out the poignant beauty hidden in the line "I haul off and walk away"—the epitomization of British discipline. Allowing the imagination further sway, it may be seen that the writer presents a winning word-picture of one-half of a horse, which same he means to compare with this unfavorite writer of his. To use modern jargon, the artist wraps his words not only in cellophane, but later in absorbent cotton.

I should judge "keep a speak," particularly since used in the first sentence, to be merely a come-on for the reader, not forgetting the sheer alliterative pleasure of that same phrase. In fact, to be entirely analytical, your mental straining over "speak" and "tongue" and the apparent conflict there-between I am sure is unwarranted. Obviously the man who has retained this gift has retained this gift of expression despite the damning effects of civilization was or perhaps still is, in the married state.

And now we come to the daring forcefulness of the statement, pure and unflinching in its condemnation, "And I don't mean maybe." Does it not recall to your mind the bravery of Knights of the Round Table?

Do not miss the sociological implications in this piece, viz., the "snowing" of the "guys and dolls" (boys and girls, undoubtedly) has its origin in the English form of government which has persisted down through the ages—eh monarchy, hence reign, hence rain.

About the last sentence I should say your surmises are not unworthy, though clearly lacking in the essence of truth. "Smush" happens to be a softish mass of letters denoting any three-letter word meaning American face—i. e., pan, man, mug, etc. To support the use of "smush" the British bring forth our household word, "sour-puss."

"Poke" is an herb (here spelled variously). The only possible explanation of this last sentence is that the writer will, at some future opportunity, insert some of this herb (it being similar to unabbreviated slime in the cooked state) into the collective smush of Mr. James' boys and girls. Although the artist does not add this, it is conceivable that the wish includes Mr. James himself.

That you who are learned in the art of word-wrestling miss the point of the essay is a sad commentary on the uses and abuses of the human mind, particularly the American same. And so, with the support of your paper and my Success Plan, I feel that an effective and enlightening campaign for the advancement of wordy understanding might well be waged. To such an end I should be most glad to dedicate my own eminence in the field and feel certain that others of equal mastery would heed your exhortation.

BARBARA BUDD.
Washington, Sept. 25.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a philologist I am hurrying to your aid to interpret the hardness with which you opaque a clarified morsel of critique from the New Statesman and Nation, of London.

Of course, such a writer as you quote does not care for the precision of Henry James. The James nicety of expression requires even repeated readings to divine its core. And the burning pace of today demands a Shirley Povich or a Tom McCarthy. The London critic would dote on the literature of Hugh Johnson, Franklyn Waltman or Mark Sullivan. One knows what they have to say, and no bizarre jumbling of terms and phrases can hide their objectives.

Changes in language are constantly in progress. New words creep in; old words fade gradually.

So, dear editor, exposed as you are to all sorts of English, including that of us letter writers, please keep your own use of the Duke of Windsor's English pure.

"Be not the first by whom the new are tried,
Nor yet the last to lay the old aside."

But, getting back to our puzzle: "I will only wish to poke them in the smush." You try to translate "smush" as "a kind of bag or sack." But that's a "poke," dummy. You wouldn't want to have him saying, "bag them in the sack," would you?

I think "smush" has something to do with a nose.

The Post Impressionist

Paul Kim.

WHEN I read of cannon and airplanes and guns and bombs and all that mess that is modern warfare roaring over northern China I can't help thinking of Paul Kim. I wonder what he is doing now!

Paul came to college, a freshman, when I was starting my senior year. The campus grapevine soon told us who he was. A Korean, the father of four children, he came to our little school to take his B. A., specializing in catechism. Then he hoped to go back home and teach the faith he had come 6,000 miles to study more thoroughly.

We admired Paul for his grit. Four years away from home—and when we thought of his wife and kids, well, that was tough. Not that Paul looked his age. He said he was 32, but none of us thought he looked more than 20. And when he beamed upon us with his charming Oriental smile there wasn't a fellow in school who wouldn't have voted him the most popular chap on the campus.

I remember the man best in two classes, public speaking and a history class dealing with the expansion of world imperialism. In the first he would rise to denounce the Japanese in queer, broken English that was kept from being ludicrous only because of the sincerity and the fire with which the speaker delivered his message. He had not forgotten Japan's theft of Korea after the Chinese war.

In the imperialism class, he continued his one-man war against Nippon. I fell afoul of his wrath one day because I said, after reading Japan's reply to the Lytton Report on Manchuria, that I thought the Japanese had answered most of the report's objections in rather interesting, if not truthful, fashion.

We were still smiling over Paul's offer to wear a freshman cap (a regulation from which he was released because of his age and the mission which had brought him to school), when a message from far-off Korea arrived to bring gloom to the campus. Paul was summoned to the office of our spiritual director and there, in stricken silence, told of the the death of his youngest daughter, a child of 5.

What could we say, what could we do, for a man at such a time? Our Anglo-Saxon backgrounds told us to walk up and tap his shoulder and say "We're sorry," and then walk away. Most of us did that, but we added a few tears to our words. There was no question of sending flowers, no question of a money collection; we gave the only thing we could—a spiritual bouquet it's called, which says how many litanies or rosaries or other prayers you'll say on behalf of a dead person so that his soul may have peace in the next world.

Some days after the bouquet had been placed on the bulletin board, Paul brought me a letter that he wanted me, as editor, to publish in the college weekly. The letter thanked all the boys and told them how much the once-smiling exile felt about their kindness. It closed with a little poem which I have stowed away somewhere in my papers. I remember it as a crystal-clear example of a man bowing to God's will, not in the sense of groveling submission, but with sublime confidence that a little Korean girl had been taken from her father to return to the source from whence she came. And a line of the poem said something about "her soul is drifting on the great yellow river, down to the sea of the Almighty's will."

When Christmas time rolled around, Paul Kim didn't forget me. I stepped out of my room one afternoon and when I returned there was a package on the bed. I opened it to find a bundle of costly, fragrant Chinese tea and a little box of incense. A holy picture, showing the Blessed Mother and the Christ Child, was with the package. On it was written in English (and I presume the Chinese or Korean characters said the same thing) the following lines:

"My very dear Mr. Paul Murray: I am very sure that God mercy upon you and makes you great success in your work through this coming glorious Christmas and Happy New Year. Your affectionate friend a little, Paul Kim."

Can you blame me if, when I read about the horrible news from Shanghai, that I begin wondering wh[illegible]s happened to "my affectionate friend a little, Paul Kim?"

PAUL, V. MURRAY.

Fond Memories.

America's vanishing cigar-store Indian has found a place of refuge in the Detroit Institute of Art, where, all veteran pipe smokers will agree, he rightly belongs. Let us do him homage.

To those who think back pleasantly to yesteryear, he will be forever and a day a token of an age when tobacconists' shops were not cluttered and contaminated with punchboards, movie magazines and women's hairnets. He will serve as a memento of quiet years when men behind the counter held forth exhaustively on the nature of tobaccos, and customers were seldom loath to pass an hour in soulfully sniffing the contents of various crocks before approving some new blend.

Verily, he is a symbol of something that has gone from America. If there were no asylum here for such a one, we would reflect that life had lost even more of its meaning. He may not be art, but the memories he revives are indeed beautiful.

Company Manners.

THE STATE VISIT of the Italian Duce to the German Fuehrer cannot fail to remind outsiders of certain points of conflict and insult contained in their respective programs. These matters will be tactfully avoided by the two rivals for the title of greatest man in the world, and no German or Italian will be guilty of the ill-mannered, not to say the suicidal folly, of stressing them at this time.

Mussolini will hear many quotations from the philosophy of the Fuehrer during his tour, but it may be flatly predicted that these gems will not include that portion of the Nazi belief which deals with the preservation of the Aryan purity.

"Every Aryan hero should marry only a blonde Aryan woman with blue, wide-open eyes, a long oval face, pink and white satin skin, a narrow nose and a small mouth," says the Nazi instruction to young men suffering from the sweet insanity. "A blond, blue-eyed man must marry no brunette, no Mediterranean type woman with short legs, black hair, hooked nose, full lips, a large mouth and an inclination to plumpness."

• • • • •

NOW THESE be fighting words to Benito Mussolini, for he is the leader of many brunette Mediterraneans with short legs and an inclination to plumpness, and the hooked nose is the pride of the Romans. In fact, the Roman bugle or schnozzle is known the world over for the elbow in the same, about four inches from the tip. It is a big, prominent conk like the wheelbase of a rocking-horse, and is worn by many of the Duce's best people as the badge of a proud and haughty aristocracy. So this gratuitous bust on the Roman beezer by the Nazi regime, although intended strictly for the guidance of the blue-eyed Aryans, cannot be interpreted otherwise than a gratuitous bust on the Roman beezer.

As for the brunette, short-legged Mediterranean types, including no few with an inclination to plumpness, the slur is equally inescapable. The entire south of the Duce's country is people with brunette, Mediterranean types with short legs, and the ladies, especially in these days of speed-up propaganda under Mussolini's orders, run to plumpness, not to say fat, in a very short time.

After a brunette, short-legged, Mediterranean type Italian lady has given four or five little ballila to the Babies Corps of the Invincible Legions, and maybe a couple of future mothers of further ballila to the Duce's reserve of military brood stock, it is not only ungentlemanly but an insult to the motherhood of Italy to refer slightingly to the fact that she has taken on heft and width. Indeed, it is not generally known that Herr Hitler himself has discovered any sure method for keeping down the weight and maintaining the youthful lines of blonde, Aryan women with blue, wide-open eyes after they have made their contribution to his Invincible Legions.

IT SEEMS to be the lot of ladies everywhere to tend to plumpness as the years advance, and the children increase, and the German hausfrau herself has traditionally been represented as a meek, gentle and altogether amiable person completely resigned to outside measurements.

On the other hand, we know that Mussolini has often expressed a very low opinion of bachelors and has taxed them heavily as slackers for avoiding their patriotic manly duty to take some deserving lady off the marriage market and produce ballila for his Invincible Legions. A prolific man himself, he has set a conspicuous example to his followers or victims, as you prefer to call them, and he even went through the formality of getting married a few years ago so as to impart to this phase of his leadership the blessing of religious regularity.

Yes, if Hitler's regime has spoken ill of the Duce's brunette, short-legged Mediterraneans, the Duce himself has said plenty back about bachelors, of whom Der Fuehrer is the most prominent in the world at present. So if anyone cracks wise about the Mediterraneans while the Duce is in Germany, and he cracks back with his well-known opinion of manliness of bachelors, there will go your Rome-Berlin axis in a swirl of insult. Unhappily nobody will.

The Once Over

Father And Son Talks.

Popper, what are barbarians?

Barbarians? Why, er, people who do barbarous things; people who are capable of atrocious deeds.

Are there any barbarian nations today?

Yes, indeed, in fact I sometimes wonder if there are any other kind.

Not any more. I think the boy next door is whistling for you.

• • • •

But, daddy, I can't get it straight. Teacher always said civilized nations and barbarian nations were entirely different.

Your teacher doesn't read the newspapers.

Don't civilized nations send out missionaries to reform barbarian nations?

They used to but they are giving it up.

Why?

It's so hard to tell which is which.

• • • •

Were the American Indians barbarians, popper?

Not by modern standards.

But my history says they were terrible savages.

That was away back 200 years ago before Europe and Asia got into their stride.

History says that the Indians were guilty of frightful atrocities, popper.

All you have to do today, my boy, is to read the daily news from places like Nanking, for instance, to realize that the American redman was an amateur That boy is still whistling.

• • • •

Popper, my history says that the Indians used to ambush people, set fire to their homes, scalp their victims and torture women and children.

Yes, but they were pretty civilized and honest compared with some of our modern nations.

How so, popper?

Well, they never pretended that it was highly honorable, quite legal, wholly ethical and all done for the best interests of their victims.

When they scalped women and children didn't they ever issue statements proclaiming their high standards of virtue and insisting that it was practically a peace movement?

No. The Indian was pretty low but he never got that low.

• • • •

Popper?

Yes, Willie.

When the Indians swooped down on a settlement and massacred everybody, did they deny it was war?

Never. That's one thing about savages: they seem to think honestly and talk straightforwardly.

But the savages have no education, no public schools, no colleges, no great statesmen, while the civilized nations have all these things, popper. Do you think maybe the savage people are really civilized and the civilized people really savages?

Huh?

I say is it possible that the countries of savages and barbarians are really civilized while the civilized countries are barbarous?

It's this way: all civilized nations were once barbarous; when some barbarous nations became civilized they civilized other barbarous nations. This kept on until most nations became so highly civilized that they became more barbarous than the barbarous countries had been in the first place before they became civilized . . . Oh, hell, run out and play hockey! You've got me all mixed up, too!

Reader Reactions To The Black Affair

Klansman Speaks

Organization Declared Free Of Racial And Religious Prejudices.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am pleased that you published in your paper of September 24 the letter of Mr. Lewis F. Tipton regarding Mr. Justice Black and the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan. Mr. Tipton's letter expresses the viewpoint of numerous persons with whom I have discussed this matter during the past few days, but his language is much more temperate than that used by many of those with whom I have talked.

There are two points in this controversy which I have not seen discussed in the press, although they are freely talked of on the street. One relates the fact that all who have written on the matter, in condemning terms, charging the Klan with being un-American, anti-Catholic, anti-Jew, anti-Negro, anti-foreign-born, bigoted and intolerant, have failed to show any facts from which such conclusions have been reached.

Why do they not give such facts so that the public may have an opportunity to judge the merits and the worth of their letters and writings? My judgment is that 99 per cent of these critics, who show more bigotry and intolerance toward the Klan than they accuse it of, write without any understanding as to the principles of the organization and solely because of prejudice or because it pays them to do so. Lets have facts hereafter, not conclusions.

I defy any man to produce one sentence from the Klan oath or refer to any literature of the Klan which indicates that it is anti-Catholic, anti-Jew, anti-Negro or that it discriminates against any church or religion or that it is unpatriotic. This challenge is directed particularly to those who have heretofore criticized the Klan on such grounds.

That the Klan is based on such principals cannot be demonstrated, but it can be shown that the Klan is composed of white native-born Protestant Americans over 18 years of age who are sworn to promote Protestantism (the same as Catholics and Jews pledge themselves to support the faith and doctrines of their respective churches), to promote the welfare of brother members of their families, to protect the chastity of womanhood, to extend charity to all, to uphold the Constitution and all constitutional laws, Federal and State, to aid and assist the duly constituted authorities of the law when called upon and to practice pure patriotism toward the United States as against all other countries, kings, rulers, potentates, etc.

It also can be shown that every Klansman is committed by solemn oath to the principles of free speech, free press, free public schools, the absolute separation of church and state and the right of all persons to worship God according to the dictates of their own conscience.

Parenthetically I may state that the Klan obligations contain a number of matters which conflict with the political activities and efforts of the Roman Catholic Church government, but certainly not with any religion. It can be further shown that being white men they are dedicated to the principle that the white race must and shall dominate, a principle to which millions of white Americans subscribe regardless of religious affiliation or club connection. There is little difference between the Klan oath and the Masonic oath.

In one way I am sorry this controversy has arisen, for it has stirred up feelings that never should have been stirred up. On the other hand, I am confident that the Klan will gain a half a million reinstatements from those men who dropped out during the depression but who still have the same strong convictions which prompted them to join the organization in the first instance.

Let's criticize the Ku Klux Klan, if criticism is due, but let's limit our criticism to what the Klan is and to its actual defects or shortcomings rather than to what we merely think it is, or, as parrots have been told it is.

A KLANSMAN.
Washington, Sept. 24.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is charged that a former Klan giant is now special assistant to the Attorney General of the United States and is also acting as "special mediator" in labor problems of a certain New York industry at the handsome salary of $17,500 per annum. One would think these two positions were incompatible.

The present Administration seems to have thrown ethics to the wind in so far as garnering the cash is concerned. Is there no limit on the part of the President's family and officials where decency would suggest that capitalization and commercialization of the exalted position should stop? JOHN FRANKLIN.

Reform Of The Judiciary.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I believe your readers are about to be "fed up" with the Black issue, but I cannot resist trying to answer some of those whose letters appeared in your columns on September 24.

I would suggest that these gentlemen do a little reading and thinking before they rush madly for pen and paper. The whole situation is that the vast majority of people do not favor Mr. Black as a justice, for the simple reason of his Klan connections. That is plain enough so far, isn't it.

Justices are supposed to be fair, impartial, unbiased. The Klan is not fair, impartial and unbiased, neither are its members. So there you have it in a nut shell. People really don't care about Senator Black one way or another. He left himself open to criticism, so why shouldn't he expect it and get it? Nobody is persecuting him that I can see just because they object to him. The court belongs to the people and is supposed to work for them. Well, why shouldn't the people at least have a little say about who the members are?

Washington, Sept. 25.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "One hundred per cent American" has been and still is the slogan of the hooded order.

Its members do not measure up to what I believe to be 100 per cent Americanism.

One hundred per cent Americanism means:

1. To take the Bible out of our courts of justice, and instead have a bound volume of the United States Constitution. The Constitution is the expressed will of a sovereign people; there can be no greater civil authority.

2. To take the Bible out of our public schools; God's book does not belong in civil educational institutions. Its rightful place is in the church, the home and the hearts of men.

3. To abolish all Sunday and religious laws; they are out of place on our statute books.

4. To tax all church property. Christ very positively instructed His followers to render to Caesar the things that belong to Caesar. Taxes belong to Caesar, therefore, Caesar should collect taxes from the church. To exempt churches means that thousands of non-church going Americans are taxed without representation.

JOHN N. QUINN.
Takoma Park, D. C., Sept. 25.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is difficult to accept the President's statement that he did not know of Senator Black's Klan affiliation when he appointed him to the Supreme Court. I—and many other people—knew that Black had been elected to the Senate largely through Klan support and that he was authentically reported to be a Klansman. It is hard to believe that I, an unimportant private citizen, am better informed politically than the President of the United States.

I believe that the President knew of Black's connection with the Klan. I believe that his appointment to the Supreme Court was a malicious gesture of defiance toward the Court and toward the Senate which had successfully frustrated, for the time being, the President's effort to control the courts of the United States.

Had the Klan charge been false, the Administration would have welcomed the investigation urged by Senator Burke and others. They would have welcomed the chance to disprove the accusation and to confound and humilate Senators Burke and Copeland and other critics of the Black appointment. But knowing the Klan charge was true, the Administration jammed the confirmation through the Senate without investigation. And Senator Black, knowing that exposure was inevitable, hastily took both oaths of office as a justice of the Court, and departed for Europe, hoping to ride out the storm.

The one thing the President did not know was that his gesture of defiance would become a boomerang. He had no idea that so violent a storm of criticism would follow publication of the proofs of Black's Klan membership. He, too, is trying to ride out the storm by going West for a few weeks until it "blows over."

The President is counting on the notoriously brief memory of the American public. It is quite possible that a sensational murder or kidnaping, or the spread of the war in Europe or the Far East, may come to his rescue and make the Black-Roosevelt scandal merely an item in last week's newspaper.

But there are some Protestants, some Catholics and some Jews who believe that civil and religious liberty is the inalienable right of every human being, and who will remember at the polls in 1938 and again in 1940, that President Roosevelt appointed to the Supreme Court a man who now seems unable to deny that he took the Klan oath.

We have heard much in the last few years of "black reactionaries." We now have a similar and synonymous term—"Black liberals."

EUGENE S. FERRIS.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It was once said of F. D. R. that he was the mere "Kerensky" for the "B-trust." But now it is clear that that was wrong. In the light of the Black backfire, he is revealed as the mere "Kerensky" for the "K-trust."

The great American press is divided over this Black mess; some are anti-F. D.; some anti-court; some anti-Congress. But the Black mess is itself clearly anti-American. Mark that!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: At long last, the foul spirit of the "invisible empire" seems to have put the visible section of this Nation to an acid test. Therefore, be we at our best! This Black-F. D. affair is like a pussy running over a rough stone street with an empty tin tied to its tail. The pussy keeps on going. The can keeps on banging. We need an expert decanner.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why don't you reprint in full the oaths taken by members of the Ku Klux Klan and the justices of the Supreme Court of the United States? As I recall it, the Klansman's oath was reprinted in the old New York World some years ago and undoubtedly you could easily obtain a copy.

The dignified and leisurely return of Justice Sutherland on S. S. Manhattan and Black's hurried departure from London, is also a study in contrast.

INTERESTED READER.
New York City, Sept. 23.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The letters in your readers' column on September 24 gave me a severe pain, but none more so than the one by Lewis F. Tifton. I trust you will give me space to answer this gentleman.

He talks of repercussions, whatever, they are, and how the enemies of former Senator Black will be treated for their dastardly attack on him. My dear Mr. Tifton, nobody gives a hoot about Senator Black. If he had stayed in the Senate, where he belonged, he could have gone on his polite little way and everything would have been splendid. But when he aspires to the Supreme Court, well, then every Tom, Dick and Harry is entitled to his word.

Mr. Tifton quotes here and there and brings up the old, wornout "Judge not, that ye be not judged." Well, if that doesn't hit Mr. Black on the head, I don't know what does. If Mr. Black does not belong to the Klan, he has nothing to worry about at all. As far as being fitted for a judge is concerned, Mr. Black is away back in the ruck.

He goes on to say that "millions of laboring people are silently for Black." Well, what of that? And that these people are not being fooled by the violent attack on Mr. Black, but know the reason for it. My dear sir, the only reason for the attacks, as you call them, on Senator Black, is because the people do not wish a Klansman to sit in judgment on them. That is the reason and the only reason why Senator Black is not wanted. We will not go into whether or not he is fitted otherwise and there is plenty of room for argument there.

And what present "economic unrest" is being talked about? Don't we realize that Mr. Roosevelt is President and has been President for several years? Don't we know that everything is pretty and things are getting better all the time? What are you talking about, then? And regarding revolutions, who are you going to revolt against? You and I and the others are the Government. Can we rebel against ourselves?

And let Mr. Tifton get it out of his head that only Catholics are against Senator Black. I am not one and the truth is that the Catholics are wary of attacking Mr. Black lest they be accused of everything under the sun. No, the people who are against Seantor Black are the people who despise and detest things and people who hide in the dark. He belonged to such a group and they naturally resent the truth. It hurts too much.

RAY NEWMAN.
Washington, Sept. 24.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why all this ado concerning the nomination of former Senator Black to be a member of the Supreme Court? What crime has he committed? Has he done anything to disqualify him for membership on the Supreme Court Bench? Suppose he did join the Klu Klux Klan 20 or more years ago when he was younger and inexperienced.

This whole controversy seems to the casual observer as merely a smoke screen to embarrass President Roosevelt. Soon after Judge Van Devanter resigned from the bench they, the opposition to President Roosevelt, were urging the President to appoint someone to take the place left vacant by the aforesaid judge's resignation.

Then, when the President appointed Senator Black to fill the the aforesaid vacancy a great protest went up from the character assassins. It was even declared there was no vacancy on the bench. It seems impossible for the President to please his friends and enemies at the same time. The President has as much respect and consideration for the Constitution as these flag wavers and so-called Constitution savers have.

The present members of the Supreme Court who are over 75 years of age could put a stop to all this trouble and agitation over packing the Court, by exercising their constitutional right of sending in their resignations now, and let the President fill the vacancies with more progressive men.

Hooded Bands

Klan Given To Pillage And Brutality, Says Alabaman.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a native and resident of Alabama, I am amazed at the letters which have appeared in your columns in defense of Klan and of Hugo Black. They must be written by Klansmen or by that blindly partisan type of New Dealer who will condone arson, torture and even murder—if it is done under the shadow of the New Deal. It is possible that some of these letters have been written by persons not sufficiently intelligent to understand the issues involved.

I am a Protestant, a Democrat and a Southerner. I believe that the supremacy of the white race is necessary to the welfare of the South, but I have never believed that that supremacy should be maintained by flogging, tarring and terrorism. Nor do I believe that the supremacy of the Anglo-Saxon race is furthered by brutal persecution of the Catholic and Jewish minorities in our communities.

I do not speak from hearsay. I have seen white-hooded bands ride into the night on their errands of pillage and brutality. I have seen men who have been flogged into unconsciousness. I have seen the smoking ruins of homes from which families have been driven for no reason except their Catholic or Hebrew faith.

These things were done—these things which I have seen with my own eyes in my own community—by fellow Klansmen of "Justice" Black. They were done by men wearing the same white-hooded robe that "Justice" Black is—or was—entitled to wear. Was "Justice" Black ever present at one of the Klan orgies? Was he ever one of those sinister hooded figures at a flogging or tarring or burning? Who knows?

If Hugo Black joined the Klan he must have known that the objectives of some of its adherents was the persecution of Catholics, Jews and Negroes. Whether he believed in that objective or whether he joined for what he could get out of it politically, the taking of the Klan oath disqualified him from sitting on any judicial tribunal before which Catholic, Jewish and Negro litigants appear.

Is "Justice" Black a friend of labor? It is politically expedient at the moment to be a "friend of labor," but is a Klansman ever a friend of Catholic or Jewish labor? Or Negro labor?

Is "Justice" Black a liberal? Did you ever hear of a "liberal" Klansman? The phrase is a contradiction in terms. The Klan is the "Invisible Empire" of bigotry and intolerance.

Every Catholic, Jew and Negro in this country should resent bitterly the appointment by the President of a former Klansman to the Supreme Court. Every American who believes in civil and religious liberty, should protest that appointment. Instead of letters from New Dealers and Klansmen defending Black, your columns should be filled with letters from Americans who resent this insult to the principles of America and of Christianity.

ROBERT T. JONES.
Fairfax, Va., Sept. 22.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There is an abundance of philosophical truth in the adage "Where there is so much smoke, there is some fire!" So back of all of this much publicized smoke that's astir about Senator Hugo L. Black's affiliation with the Klan there must be fire.

It's alleged, and I think truthfully, that the Klan as an organization is one whose policy was, when organized, and is today, for the violation and destruction of human rights and privileges.

When originally instituted in the South immediately after the Civil War, with its fallacious motto, "White Supremacy," it was solely for the purpose of so humiliating and curbing the spirit of the Negro of the South as to make him believe he was humanly inferior to his white brother, merely because the former had just emerged from slavery and also his shady color. At that time it was not intended to operate against the Jews and Catholics, but as the former began to grow popular in this country financially and the latter religiously, then the Ku Klux Klan sought to infringe upon their rights in these respects by taking an antagonistic attitude also toward them.

Therefore, Mr. Roosevelt, as the people's Chief Executive, should, I think, be requested to demand of Mr. Black as to whether he is or is not a member of the Ku Klux Klan, and if he fails to repudiate the publicized accusation, then ask his resignation. And if he will not resign, it is within the power of the lower branch of Congress to impeach him.

Inasmuch as the President desires to make the United States Supreme Court the efficient modern power of the age, then make it equally as efficiently pure.

A POST READER.
Washington, Sept. 24.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Apropos of the pro and con with reference to the Black appointment and in support of the majority of liberty-loving pure Americans who rightfully oppose the President's low level with respect to political appointments: viz. the Black appointment: I desire to call attention to the activities of Black while engaged as defense counsel in the notorious Stephenson case tried in Alabama back in 1921.

Black, it appears, defended another Klansman, "Rev." Stephenson, accused of the cold blooded, outrageous killing of a Catholic priest, Father James E. Coyle, at Birmingham, and won an acquittal for his client, due to circumstances still remembered in the locality. I am appending herewith clipping giving an account in detail of the episode.

Further, I am neither a Catholic, Jew, nor Negro—just a stanch apostle of justice and fair play, attributes which I cannot find in Black's make-up, not to forget his superficial knowledge of the law, and his utter unfitness for any position outside the State of Alabama.

Bear's Growl

By Barnet Nover

Russia's Sharp Warning To Japan.

UNTIL THIS WEEK Russia maintained an almost preternatural silence regarding the war in the Far East.

Japan's latest aggressions in North China, the attack on Shanghai, the wanton bombardment of Chinese cities and the consequent slaughter of noncombatants—these developments aroused no such wave of violent protest in the Soviet Union as had German-Italian intervention in Spain or the activities of pirate submarines in the Mediterranean.

There was no disguising the fact that what was taking place in China was of enormous concern to Russia. But the situation did not appear to be ripe for any strong stand against Japan. So the Soviet government held its tongue. Only once did it show its stand. Some weeks ago the announcement was made simultaneously in Moscow and Nanking of the signature of a Sino-Russian treaty of nonaggression. This was a development which the world regarded, and rightly, as of very considerable potential significance. But it was noted with interest that every syllable of that document was deliberately nonprovocative.

IT BEGAN to look, in fact, as though the situation that had obtained in 1931 and 1932 was about to be repeated. Then, it will be recalled, Russia took no such line as that taken by Secretary Stimson on behalf of the United States.

There were, to be sure, formal protests by Moscow against infringement of Russian rights and interests in northern Manchuria. But there was no active opposition. Feeling herself too weak to oppose Japan by force, fearful, above all, that a strong stand against Japan's course in Manchuria might provide the Kwantung army with a pretext for the invasion of Siberia, Russia gave way to Japan. And, finally, Russia disposed of its once valuable stake in the Chinese Eastern Railway for a song.

It is, therefore, of more than passing significance that Russia is now employing a very sharp tone toward Japan. Moscow has warned Tokyo that Japan will be held entirely responsible for any bombing of the Soviet Embassy in Nanking, whether such action is deliberate or accidental. And, at the same time, indignation meetings have been held in Soviet factories in protest against the Japanese bombardment of Chinese cities. The Red bear is beginning to growl; before long he may show his teeth.

• • • •

WHAT IS BEHIND this change in the Russian attitude?

In this writer's opinion three factors are outstanding. In the first place there is the circumstance that the Russian note to Tokyo is in line with and follows the precedent established by the British and American notes protesting against the bombardment of noncombatants by Japanese airplanes.

In the second place there is the fact that the very extent of the war which Japan now finds itself compelled to wage has operated to increase Russia's self-confidence. Had Russia taken its present strong line last July or even last August there was always the possibility that the Japanese armies instead of being sent to battle the Chinese would have launched an attack on Russian territory.

And, thirdly, the nature of the campaign which Japan has been waging in North China constitutes a challenge to the Soviet Union which the Kremlin cannot safely ignore.

• • • •

LET US TAKE up the last of these points first. Although overshadowed in western eyes by the spectacular fighting in the vicinity of Shanghai, not the least important theater of war, from the Japanese point of view, is in the north.

There Japan is not only seeking to consolidate its stranglehold on Hopei and Chahar provinces, but is also penetrating Suiyan and Shansi. Before they get through the Japanese may be in control of that whole buffer zone between Russian-dominated Outer Mongolia and China proper. And should the Japanese consolidate their position in that buffer area the security of Outer Mongolia and ultimately of eastern Siberia would be imperiled.

If Japan is fearful of Russia, Russia is no less fearful of Japan. And no one realizes better than do the leaders of the Soviet government that the Japanese urge for expansion is insatiable.

Manchuria did not satisfy the Nipponese militarists. Manchuria plus North China is also unlikely to satisfy them. For it is not merely economic forces that drive them on but strategic considerations as well. And these strategic considerations are of the kind which compel the indefinite extension of Japan's area of control. Certainly with China today revealing how powerful an opponent it can be, given time, the Japanese are desperately eager both to smash China and to bar the way forever for any effective cooperation between that country and Russia.

But by the same token Russia, which for years has had a nightmare of a war on two fronts, with a Japanese thrust into Siberia coinciding with an attack on the Soviet Union from the west, has reasons to do all it can to keep the path to China open.

• • • •

THIS DOES NOT mean that Russia now intends actively and openly to assist China. This cannot, of course, be ruled out as an utter impossibility. But it does mean that Russia cannot safely stand by and do nothing.

In the meantime, Japanese armies are fighting on a dozen fronts. On all of them Japan may win. But win or lose the effort will unquestionably so weaken the island empire as to remove it for some years as a potential menace to Russia.

This explains the stronger line which Russia is now taking in Europe. It also explains the sharper tone now employed toward Japan. And it feels itself all the safer in talking sharply to Japan at this time because its protests are not isolated. A moral ring is being drawn around the island empire. With this Russia has now associated herself and in perfect safety. The Russian threat has been one of the principal justifications advanced by the Japanese army chiefs for their repeated aggressions in China. That bogy is now recoiling on them.

Required Reading

A Necessary Evil?

One of the most important problems connected with the teaching of literature in schools and colleges is this; and I do not believe it has ever been successfully solved except by individual teachers of great ability and tact.

Is it true that the teaching of English classics in our prep schools and high schools, instead of awakening a love for them and for good reading in general, really arouses such loathing that for the rest of his life the pupil says, "I hate that book; I had it at school?"

• • • •

Yale was the last of the great American universities to require an examination in English for entrance; one reason for the delay was that the senior professor of English in the college, Henry A. Beers, was strenuously opposed to an entrance exam in English, fought it for years, and although finally overcome by majority vote, never changed his opinion.

Well, I have just been reading the following paragraph in a recent issue of the London Spectator:

"How do the schools of today teach English literature? And do they do well to try to teach it at all? I happen during the past week or two to have been discussing . . . novels with various young people of a generation later than my own. What did they think of Esmond? Well, they had had to do it for an exam, at school. Or Rob Roy? Well, they had had to read it as a holiday task. And so on. Nothing, it is certain, can be counted on more infallibly to wreck the taste for a good book than to have to be examined about it. Have the schools found the way to instill a love of good literature without prescribing the reading of good literature as a task? It is not an easy problem, and the wrong way of solving it is more obvious that the right."

I, myself, never studied English literature in school and did not have any entrance exam in it for college. In my boyhood the school readers helped me to love literature. Really, it is tragic in the extreme if teaching in general inculcates hatred. One should never require boys and girls to read Milton's poetry and Burke's prose; and with other books success depends mainly on the art of the teacher.

Fall Features Of Rich Worth Listed by Loew

Notable Pictures on Way to Local Screens in Next Two Months.

In corroboratoin of the popular belief that October and November are among the best "movie months" of the year, the management of Loew's, Inc., in Washington yesterday announced a list of its foremost impending attractions.

The next eight weeks will see an imposing array of features marching across the screens of the Capitol, Palace and Columbia theaters.

Heading the fall parade is "Life Begins in College," a riotous feast of comedy and music with the daft Ritz Brothers heading an imposing all-comedy cast. This deluge of nonsense opens Friday at the Capitol.

Scheduled to follow "Dead End" at the Palace, and the first big hit from M-G-M for October, is Joan Crawford's "The Bride Wore Red," in which Franchot Tone and Robert Young offer chief support. Billie Burke and Reginald Owen form an incomparable comedy team, while Lynne Carver, George Zucco and others round out the cast of this stirring romance.

Next from M. G. M. will come "Madame X," with Gladys George in a daring and fascinating portrayal of the ill-fated principal in one of screendom's greatest emotional stories. Warren William, John Beal and Reginald Owen are in support. "Madame X" is slated for Loew's Capitol early in October.

"Zenda" on List.

The harvest will reap another bounty in "The Prisoner of Zenda," which will follow "The Bride Wore Red" at the Palace. Ronald Colman, Madeleine Carroll, Douglas Fairbanks, jr., and Mary Astor head the formidable cast of this exciting entertainment.

Twentieth Century-Fox, which will contribute "Life Begins in College" to the Leow festival, will also contribute Eddie Cantor's twenty-fifth anniversary hit, "Ali Baba Goes to Town," "In Old Chicago," with Alice Faye, Tyrone Power, Alice Brady, Don Ameche, Andy Devine and many others; "Love and Hisses," with Ben Bernie continuing his merry feud. Simon Simone, Joan Davis, Bert Lahr and others will be in support.

Other attractions to enliven and make more inviting this two-month crop will be "Conquest," with Garbo and Charles Boyer; "Double Wedding," with William Powell and Myrna Loy; Robert Montgomery and Rosalind Russell in "Live, Love and Learn;" Edward Robinson in "Last Gangster" and many others.

Author Devotes Years to Study

Research work covering a period of more than 30 years and only now being utilized in the production of a motion picture was pointed to in Hollywood recently as establishing a record for exhaustive effort in film preparation.

The picture which is to use this fund of information is Frank Lloyd's new production. "Wells Fargo," featuring Joel McCrea, Bob Burns, Frances Dee, Ralph Morgan, Mary Nash and others.

The man who engaged in the research work for more than a quarter of a century is Stuart N. Lake, author of the original story from which the screen play of "Wells Fargo" has been prepared by Howard Estabrook.

A mere photograph which he sent a visiting Hollywood director may bring a film career to one Walter Florrell, handsome British tenor.

Mitchell Leisen received the photo in his mail while in London. He was impressed. To check on his own opinion, he showed the picture to about 15 women and, he says, each one raved. Then he called Florrell in, interviewed him and heard him sing.

Due back in Hollywood to begin "The Big Broadcast of 1938," he arranged with the Paramount office in London to make a test of Florrell.

"And if he screens as I think he will, he's terrific," says Leosen.

Bette Wins New European Honor

Bette Davis, who won an Academy Award for her performance in "Dangerous," has just received an international honor—the Volpi Cup, awarded by the Fifth International Cinema Exhibition which has just ended in Venice.

The award was made to Miss Davis for her performance in "Marked Woman." Other awards were made to "Winterset" (photography) and Walt Disney ("best animated cartoon").

Bette Davis comes to the Earle Theater Friday in "That Certain Woman," said to be her finest role, one which again may bring her the gold statuette of the American Motion Picture Academy.

Nelson B. Bell About The Showshops

The Inaccessible Greta Garbo Includes Her Casts In the Well-Founded Legend of Her Exclusiveness

Dozens of Hollywood Players in Her Support Have Yet to See, Let Alone Meet, the Recluse; Variety's Flying Start; Elmer Kenyon to Speak Here Thursday; Civic Theater Steps Out; Notes of the Theater.

ONE of the acute discouragements of motion picture critics visiting the Hollywood studios—not to mention casual tourists by the hundreds of thousands per year—is that they never find it possible to meet, or even see, Greta Garbo. The Great Isolationiste concedes nothing to "her public" in the matter of violating the inexorable rule of seclusion that has been built up around her like a legend.

BELL.

These disappointed wayfarers should find some amelioration of their discomfiture in the similar experience of scores of players whose daily chores are in the West Coast studios year in and year out.

There are, it seems, dozens of actors and actresses in the film colony who have played in Garbo pictures, but never have met the Swedish recluse. Blonde Gwen Lee, for instance, "worked with Garbo" in "Flesh and the Devil," "Susan Lennox" and "Mata Hari" and never met the star, since they appeared in different sequences. The late Mack Swain, mountainous comedian, played throughout "The Torrent," her first picture, as the rich landholder, with never a scene with her and hence no chance to meet her.

Prince Youcca Troubetskoy had a little better luck. Although he appeared in many scenes with John Gilbert in "Love," he never met Garbo until after the picture was completed, when, by merest chance, he was introduced to her socially. Jules Cowles, playing a waterfront character in "Anna Christie," likewise had scenes with her leading man, Charles Bickford, but never even caught a glimpse of the nebulous actress. Though they appeared with her in other pictures, Jean Hersholt and Lionel Barrymore played in "Grand Hotel" with nary a scene with Garbo. So did Wallace Beery, who never yet has been introduced to her.

Carlos De Valdez played in "Camille" and "Conquest," her current vehicle, but never had an opportunity to make the acquaintance of his star. William Von Brincken was cast in "Mata Hari" and "Love" and never managed to catch even so much as a fleeting peek at this illusory figure. Literally hundreds of other people at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, working daily and almost rubbing elbows with her, have never seen her. Among these are Tilly Losch, Ruby Mercer, Frank Morgan, Stanley Morner, Cecilia Parker and Pat Pendleton. So you see how it goes and what chance an outsider has.

One of the oddest cases is that of C. S. Pratt, who has been at the sound amplifier for a majority of her pictures. He knows every tone and intonation of her voice and from that knowledge has built up a remarkably accurate mental image of the Garbo person and personality. He can distinguish her moods by the sounds coming over his loud speaker horn. But he never has seen her.

Lieut. Comdr. Frank Wead, author of many successful screen stories, is one of the few who have met Garbo through lucky accidents. She dashed precipitately into his office one day unannounced and without knocking. Some heavy furniture was being moved down the hall by a gang of huskies and she ducked into the nearest door to let it pass by, instead of over, her. Wead was so surprised that he went temporarily mute. Again, Cliff "Ukulele Ike" Edwards encountered her on one occasion in a doorway on the lot that they both were attempting to negotiate at the same time. He raised his hat and she said "Good morning," which, under the circumstances, passes for an intimate acquaintanceship. Tony, the M.-G.-M. gardener, is another "Good morning" pal, who is so flattered by the attention that he places all of his best posies in Garbo's dressing room. Once she paused on her way from her dressing room to the sound stage to speak to a small child and both seemed to enjoy it.

So the Garbo aloofness to critics and trippers seems to be their own fault. They all should be Mexican horticulturists or in their high-chairs!

The "Old Fox" bent another one over the plate for a third strike yesterday afternoon.

As guest of honor and recipient of a life honorary associate membership card in the club for his aid to its charitable enterprises, Clark Griffith, prexy of the Washington American League Baseball Club, mixed a few "fast one" with his regular delivery to take top honors among the speakers at the first Variety Club luncheon of the season in the Willard Hotel. The luncheon was presided over by Chief Barker Carter Barron, with Alvin Newmyer, well-known Washington attorney, as a particularly facile toastmaster. Barker Barron introduced the "kings for a day"—that high-strung Southern gentleman, Sam Galanty, of Columbia Pictures; Mr. Newmyer and Tom O'Donnell, whose 24-hour eatery is a popular haunt of show people—and Rudy Berger, Washington manager for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, chairman of the club's welfare committee, made the presentation of the membership card to the silvering, but youthful, Mr. Griffith.

Another honored guest and fluent speaker was Mr. John W. Kern, who resigned as mayor of Indianapolis, Ind., less than a month ago to accept appointment to the U. S. Board of Tax Appeals and is an ardent Varieteer by reason of his long and pleasant association with the Hoosier tent of the national organization. A brief interval of song was interspersed among the short and felicitous talks by Kay Weber, songstress with Bob Crosby's band, currently playing Loew's Capitol, with Burrus Williams at the piano. Bing's brother also was a luncheon guest who received a big hand. Members of the press who helped the club in its recent charity boxing show at Griffith Stadium, were introduced from the speakers' dais and their respective tables on the floor to add a finishing touch to one of the most generously attended and most enjoyable luncheons in the history of Variety's Tent, No. 11.

Thus was the season opened with a bang and enough pledges of support of the club's humanitarian projects to make the future outlook rosy for the Capital's underprivileged for many months to come.

Due to the extreme interest being manifested in the forthcoming season of six subscription plays to be presented here by the Theater Guild and the American Theater Society of Washington, beginning with "Madame Bovary" next Monday night, the American Theater Society and the National Theater have arranged to present Mr. Elmer Kenyon, former professor of drama at the Carnegie Institute of Technology, in an informal talk in the National on Thursday morning of this week September 30 at 11 a. m.

Mr. Kenyon's topic will be "The 1937 Season in General and 'Madame Bovary' in Particular". All subscribers to the six-play season are invited to be present on this occasion. There also will be present many members of women's clubs, the school board and other organizations before which Mr. Kenyon has spoken on previous occasions.

Mr. Kenyon, incidentally, has spent 14 summers abroad, making a close study of continental drama and its correlation with our own stage. Those wishing to hear him on Thursday are urged to communicate with Bess Davis Schreiner, subscription manager of the American Theater Society, with offices in the National Theater.

Robert Hale, the unfortunate accused in "They Won't Forget," the screen play on view this week at the Metropolitan Theater, evidently would have been acquitted by a Capital jury. In the lobby voting being polled at the Met, 1,082 have to date declared him innocent and only 107 guilty. There is a telltale incident in one of the early sequences of this explosive and highly controversial picture that many of the voters seem to have overlooked—many of the 107, that is. Can you detect it?

The Washington Civic Theater is to have a new cyclorama and ground cloth. William M. Girvan, technical director, has gone to New York to make the purchase.

It will be recalled that the Civic Theater was formed by a consolidation of the former Drama Guild and Columbia Players, sponsored by the Junior Board of Commerce. The Columbia Players' charter having expired, they contributed a sum of money from their solvent treasury to provide this new equipment.

It is that sort of co-operative spirit that has made the Civic Theater a success in its first year of operation.

Shows Stellar Promise in Films

From time to time there come along on the screen obscure young actresses who immediately arrest attention by the merit of their work before the cameras. Such a one is Olympe Bradna, whose demure likeness appears above. The youthful Miss Bradna comes by her theatrical heritage naturally, being of the newest generation of a family of "show folks". Her best work to date is being done with Gary Cooper and George Raft in "Souls at Sea," current film attraction at the Earle.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, Sept. 27.—Idol Chatter: After riding one for his current picture, Eddie Cantor swears he would walk a mile to escape a camel. Nelson Eddy is almost as proud of his billiard playing as he is of his singing voice—and he is plenty proud of his voice. One word description of Olivia de Havilland, curv-i-vacious. If dancing gave Ginger Rogers that graceful carriage, every girl should take lessons. Look alikes: Joan Crawford and Adrienne Ames.

NELSON EDDY.

Never see that sad, gentle expression of Herbert Marshall's without reflecting what a swell mortician was lost when he took up acting. Cited for the Croix de Merite: Claire Trevor—not content with owning a large library, she actually reads the books. Of all the screen's masculine stars, Richard Arlen looks the least actorish. Gloria Stuart could give the average fish a handicap and beat it in a swimming race. Robert Young should be nicknamed "Wimpy"—he is that fond of hamburgers.

Today's ho-hum from the publicity barrage: "Grace Moore, camping in her trailer, sang for more than an hour to oblige the other trailer-ites camping nearby." Wallace Beery estimates that he has traveled 13,000 miles by plane and automobile in the past two months. The man who cast Rochelle Hudson and Robert Kent as sweethearts in a current picture must have had a sense of humor—there is no love lost between those two. Hollywood's champion window-shopper: Merle Oberon, Fredric March and Norma Shearer used to pose together for commercial photographers—Mrs. March and the late Irving Thalberg were schoolmates in New York.

It seems the Fates were against Bruce Cabot. For the past two or three years he has played nothing but gangsters, thugs, kidnapers and merciless killers—a profitable career but one which is not calculated to endear him to the public. In fact Bruce's fan mail has begun to show the effect of his meanie roles so plainly that Bruce is worried. About a month ago, he hired a publicity man and instructed him to launch a campaign with two objectives—first, to convince the public that Mr. Cabot, in real life, is a gentle soul unlike his screen characterizations and, second, to convince Hollywood's producers that the said Cabot might be suitable for an occasional sympathetic role. Since the great campaign has reached its climax, Bruce has landed one new job—a role in "Mad Man of Brimstone." In it he plays a likable chap whose only vice is shooting down people in cold blood.

Marion Davies seems to have a complex—she wants everyone working on her pictures to be paid far more than the Hollywood average. Not long ago Warner Brothers hired a stand-in for Marion and offered her the established Guild wage of $35 a week. But the stand-in, a Miss Burnett, held out for more money—$60 a week, to be exact—and carried her battle on so stubbornly that the studio bosses decided to replace her.

Miss Burnett told Marion of her troubles and Marion promptly rushed to the telephone and informed the front office that the workers on her pictures were not to be governed by minimum wage rules. Miss Burnett is still Marion's stand-in—and she is paid neither $35 nor $60 a week. Her check is for $75.

Speaking of complexes reminds me of my conversation today with Spencer Tracy. I asked him just what an actor must have to be outstanding in his art. Spence, not the most articulate person in the world, fumbled for 15 minutes with subtle nuance and haltingly tried to explain that inexplicable thing called "timing." Finally, with a burst of candor, he leaned across the table and, whispered—"Listen. Confidentially, the only thing an actor really needs is one hell of an exhibition complex. If he has that the technique can take care of itself!"

Eddie Arnold, Jr., With the Ritzes

Following in the footsteps of his famous father, Edward Arnold, jr., will make his screen debut in the musical-football extravaganza, "Life Begins in College," which stars the irrepressible and inimitable Ritz Brothers.

Good looking, broad-shouldered and weighing 195 pounds, the 17-year-old University High School student was declared by Director William A. Seiter to be the ideal college boy type for the picture. Arnold has two sisters, both of whom are looking forward to screen careers. They are Betty Arnold, 19, and Jane Arnold, 12.

Shirley Temple's Debut as Reporter

Since her return from Honolulu, Shirley Temple has decided that she doesn't want to be a G-man after all. She thinks she shall become a reporter instead.

Around the 20th Century-Fox lot she carries a pad and pencil and buttonholes everybody for interviews. Perfectly serious, she goes through a regular routine of the questions that were asked her in Honolulu.

After each reply she makes motions of taking copious notes and adds: "Very interesting. Very interesting," most professionally.

Wisdom Builder.

Jacques Tourneur says he is receiving a "liberal education" as a result of his directorial duties. During the past three months he directed "The Boss Didn't Say Good Morning," a study in psychology; "Romance of Radium," story of the miracle mineral, and "The Uncrowned King," historical mystery.

Warner Studio Completes Big Batch of Films

Production Head Reveals Plans for European Business Trip.

Warner Brothers Studio has reached a new high for completed productions, with 19 of its 1937-38 pictures already finished, Jack Warner, vice president in charge of production, announced in New York this week. Nine more pictures are currently in work.

Mr. Warner sails for England next week, where he will confer with Sam E. Morris, vice president in charge of foreign distribution, on productions planned at Warner Brothers studios in England. He will also be present at the closing of the title on the firm's new theater to be built on the site of the Old Daly, in London.

The 19 productions mentioned by Warner as completed are: "Larger Than Life," "Without Warning," "Submarine D-1," "Sergeant Murphy," "Sh! the Octupus," "Evidence," "The Great Garrick," "She Loved a Fireman," "Over the Goal," "Expensive Husbands," "Missing Witness," "The Perfect Specimen," "Adventurous Blonde," "First Lady," "Alcatraz Island," "It's Love I'm After," "Back in Circulation," "Blazing Sixes" and "West of Shanghai."

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, Sept. 27.

PERSONALS: The Abraham Lincoln Brigade, composed of Americans now fighting for the loyalists in Spain, has just appointed its first honorary member. His name is George Martin Lyons. He's one day old—and is the son of Sylvia and Leonard Lyons.

* * * *

EMPLOYMENT DEPT.: Herbert Bayard Swope, jr., whose father was executive editor of the New York World, was employed as a reporter for the Herald Tribune until the other day. He arrived at his office and was asked by City Editor Charles R. McLendon: "What time did you come here?" . . . "Eight minutes after one," Swope replied . . . "Eight minutes late?" McLendon returned. "You're fired" . . . While Swope was leaving he explained it all to Stanley Walker . . . "So McLendon fired you?" Walker informed. "Well, that makes the whole thing even. Because 14 years ago, when McLendon worked for the World, he was fired—by your father!"

* * * *

MUSIC DEPT.: The officials of a Pennsylvania Post of the American Legion, who arrived here for the convention, were somewhat distraught a few hours before their Fifth avenue parade was to begin. They realized that unlike most of the other posts they had no Fife and Drum Corps . . . The problem was settled quickly. They rushed to the offices of the Music Corporation of America, which books America's most famous orchestras, and hired 12 drummers and 12 buglers. American Legion band costumes were rented from Brooks Bros., the theatrical costumers.

* * * *

OBITUARY DEPT.: Ferenga Bros. are still displaying their "Welcome Legionnaires" banner . . . They're undertakers!

* * * *

CLASSIFIED SECTION: The New Theater League, which discovered Clifford Odets and Irwin Shaw, has been helping the Automat strikers and picketers . . . Will Lee, who was in "Boy Meets Girl," is in charge of assembling the talent—selecting the proper picket types!

* * * *

LOCAL NEWS: The critics reported that Noel Coward won't make any professional appearances in America this year. Coward will be on the Lucky Strike program next Wednesday . . . Two publishers, Jerry Finkelstein, of Politics, and Vera Montgomery, of the Yorkville Advance, are seeking Mahoney's indorsement for their city council candidates . . . Joe E. Howard, composer of "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now," who just received $15,000 from M-G-M, will be the producer of "The Time, the Place and the Girl" . . . "On Location," which opens Monday, has a new backer—the owner of a cut-rate theater ticket agency.

* * * *

BOOK DEPT.: Ralph Bates, the noted British author, arrived here three days ago to make a lecture tour . . . Mr. Bates' luggage was inspected by the customs officials—who decided that he'd have to pay additional duty on a number of volumes of "Rainbow Fish" . . . "Rainbow Fish" was written by Mr. Bates himself!

* * * *

POLITICS: Thomas E. Dewey, the vice investigator who has broken New York's major rackets, never has permitted cameramen to photograph the backstage workings of his office . . . a full page of photographs, showing his activities, shortly will appear in Look. And the March of Time now is screening Mr. Dewey's work . . . Mr. Dewey is a candidate for the office of district attorney.

* * * *

WAR NEWS: Gen. Smedley Butler addressed the Veterans of Foreign Wars at Buffalo, and stressed the necessity for spreading the anti-war movement . . . He pointed to a 9-year-old, blue-eyed boy in the audience, and told him to stand up. "If you gentlemen fail to assist in the movement for peace," warned Butler, "then there, gentlemen, is the Unknown Soldier of tomorrow."

* * * *

BIRTHS, WEDDINGS, ETC.: Bugs Baer was consoling an anxious husband whose wife just had been removed to a maternity ward . . . Baer watched him pace the floor nervously . . . "Take it easy," he cautioned. "If you think this is tough—how about when a porcupine gives birth!"

* * * *

CROSSWORD PUZZLE DEPT.: Subtle prolabor propaganda has been smuggled into the staid pages of the extremely conservative Herald Tribune . . . In that paper Tuesday the crossword puzzle offered the word "Strike-Breaker" . . . The solved puzzle gave the startling—startling for the Herald-Tribune—synonym . . . "Rat!"

* * * *

DRAMA DEPT.: Despite the reports, William Gaxton is not settling in Hollywood. He'll appear in a play for Vinton Freedley and Felix Ferry. The play is by the author of "Wonder Bar" and "Zola." Lawrence Riley, author of "Personal Appearance," will do the adaptation. Vernon Duke will write the score . . . Noel Coward was offered the job of replacing the late Osgood Perkins in "Susan and God," and turned it down . . . Clifford Odets, whose new play finally has been completed, couldn't find a role in it for himself. Odets confides that he's anxious to become an actor again.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

COLUMNIST'S NOTE: Is a wife subscribing to a false standard of value in preferring gallantry to tidiness in a husband? Would a really sensible woman rather her husband opened car doors for her than hang up his wet towel after a bath? Doesn't the genuinely thoughtful husband save his wife work, day in and day out, instead of contenting himself with stereotyped politeness? A man reader of this column wants to know the answers to these questions. Last Friday, three wives voted solidly for gallantry. Today, one wife snaps her fingers at skin-deep chivalry; another takes a middle-of-the-road course, and a man tells why manners are important.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Mr. "Towel Hanger Upper's" letter of September 20 struck a very responsive note in me. As my family on both sides comes from the South (Georgia and Alabama), I have come in contact with a very conservatory of flowers of Southern chivalry, so I feel qualified to offer an opinion. I have never met a man who put a great deal of emphasis on gallantry and little attentions to women whom I did not consider both insincere and lacking in some really vital quality of manliness.

* * * *

My father was the soul of courtliness, but he stayed home so little that his exquisite little attentions were better known to his friends than to his family. My brother is the beau ideal of every woman between adolescence and senility who knows him, but he has a temper like all hell unleashed. Another gentleman I know never fails to tell the assembled company that he married an angel—yes, sah! an angel!—but he lets that same angel do office work at an age and in a state of health which makes it a crime. They could live well enough on his income if he would, but "angel" has to have everything, even if she kills herself providing it.

* * * *

These are only a few examples of many I might cite, and I maintain that men who lavish small attentions on their wives use this means of getting away with murder in other respects. "Keep the little woman in a good humor and do exactly as you please, regardless of her comfort or convenience," seems to be their motto.

* * * *

My husband has never opened a car door for me in his life. He never remembers the amenities, yet he can do more really thoughtful things on the grand scale than any man I have ever known. On one occasion he drove 600 miles without stopping, except for gasoline and meals, so that he might get home by nightfall, as he knows my dread of staying alone in the house overnight. Twice when I was expecting a child he never failed to take me himself in the car to the doctor's office for periodic examination, rather than submit me to the inconvenience of street cars or taxis. He will get up at any time of the night, even in the dead of winter, to attend to the wants of the children, rather than have my rest disturbed.

* * * *

I wouldn't relinquish these unmistakable proofs of his love for me, the fact that everything concerning my welfare and happiness are of paramount importance to him, for all the superficial courtesies ever performed. I'm with "Towel Hanger-Upper" every inch of the way.

ONE MAN'S WIFE.

Dangerous Politeness.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: May I join the discussion of the respective merits of car-door-opening versus domestic tidiness in a husband. Here we have an excellent example of what happens when a husband becomes too, too polite: We were driving last Sunday and my friend's husband stopped his car in front of a store that his wife might get out. He is very polite and opened the door on the driver's side to walk around the car and open the other door for her. A taxi passed just at the moment, smashing the door just before she could alight. His polite gesture cost him $15, and had he been just a shade more polite—i.e., jumped out instead of taking his time—it might have cost him his life. Therefore, I agree with Mrs. "Incognito," whose letter you published September 24, that it is downright silly—with the traffic situation what it is in the average city today—to insist on this particular brand of gallantry.

* * * *

When a wife loves her husband, she finds pleasure in taking care of his clothes, even if it means "picking up after" him. And suppose she has been married so long that the pleasure has worn off, still she should be good sport enough to go on doing things for him anyway. If she shared an apartment with other women and had agreed to do her part toward keeping the place in order, she would clean up every day and think nothing of it.

Ego Must Be Fed.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Permit me to make a contribution to the current discussion over the naive inquiry of the perplexed husband who helps his wife by keeping the bathroom tidy but does not help her in and out of automobiles. Fifi demands personal attentions and storms. Hubby counters with his fine bathroom record, but loses out, in injured tones, he seeks vindication.

* * * *

As a good psychologist, you know that one of the most satisfying experiences of the human animal is a feeling of personal importance. The shorter label is egotism. Whatever increases this feeling is pleasant; whatever decreases it is disturbing. Good manners, so called, are based on this fundamental fact. The thought that one is important enough to be eligible to partnership with an omnipotent God is the mainstay of religion. Your friend is your friend because he thinks that you think he is important.

* * * *

While the emotions which play between persons of opposite sex arise largely from a biological basis, at the same time egotism is a very important factor. The woman never tires of hearing that she is lovely—and important, nor the man of hearing that he is strong—and important. Remembering anniversaries, opening automobile doors, lifting the hat, all say "you are important."

* * * *

It is clear that "Towel Hanger-Upper" is a poor psychologist. Though it may lacerate his ego to admit he is wrong, he should do so. His wounds will be salved when he learns how easily, how ably, he can make his wife purr with contentment just by making her think that he thinks she is important!

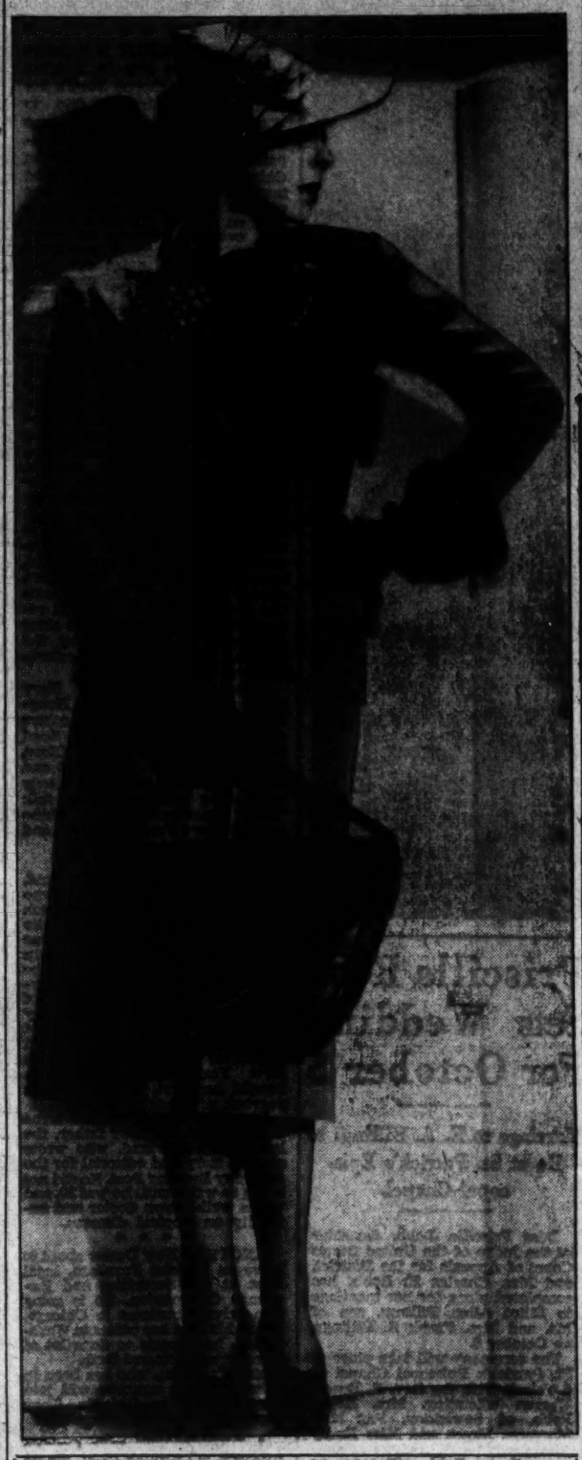
MALE EGOTIST.

Gold Service Offered For Smart Hostess

Paris (U.P.)—The smart hostess will turn to gold for distinction this season, the current displays indicate, for there are decorative plates and bowls in gold-covered porcelain; gold figures and gold trays are popular; and tumblers and ash trays in soft, rich hues have shimmering gold linings.

Simplicity, Keynote of American Design

These smart costumes, from "Walter Wanger's Vogues of 1938" in technicolor, provide a dazzling preview of the vogue for American creations. The suit (below), designed by Omar Kiam, is made of light green wool, piped with maroon bands at slashed pockets; blouse is checked crepe in three tones. Bag, pull-on gloves and hat, of maroon kidskin, by John Frederics. Metal cloth is the medium for the lovely evening gown (right), with effective draped styling.



Suiting Dress to the Occasion Is Basis of Smart Grooming

Omar Kiam, Hollywood Designer, Stresses in Telephone Interview the Importance of Planning Wardrobe to Meet Needs and Fit Personality.

With the "Walter Wanger's Vogues of 1938" creating such a furor in the fashion world, and furnishing a precedent for American clothes this fall and winter, Ethel Ehlen, The Post Fashion Editor, interviewed Omar Kiam, Hollywood, who designed clothes for the film, on long distance telephone. The following questions by the Fashion Editor and answers by Mr. Kiam, give an interesting insight into this noted designer's ideas and technique.

Do you create clothes to give a woman a youthful or sophisticated appearance?

I like to create clothes for both types of women; for I don't believe that all women fall into one class. Many women definitely belong in the youthful class, and clothes of utter sophistication would hardly accent their best points. For them, I prefer clothes of impeccable taste yet with the accent on youth. For the woman whose charm and attraction lie in her cool sophistication, clothes must be versatile, stunning and worldly.

Do clothes help a woman to be charming?

Yes. Definitely yes. A woman whose clothes are fashion-right is at ease and, therefore, at her best. A woman well-dressed is well-poised and relaxed; she can't help being amusing, attractive and charming.

What constitutes a well-chosen wardrobe; a well-dressed woman?

I should call a wardrobe well chosen if the costumes therein were suitable for every social function. Naturally, a duchess can afford a more elaborate wardrobe than a business woman, but that does not mean that the latter cannot be well-dressed and smartly groomed at all times. Similarly, a well-dressed woman expresses her personality through her clothes, choosing simple and effective ones, and wearing them well on the proper occasions.

Do you design with the materials or from sketches?

I prefer designing from sketches. It is a very satisfactory vantage point. Naturally, I always keep my fabrics in mind so that my creations can dramatize the new color schemes and fabric patterns.

What part does fabric play in your designing, especially this year?

Fabric plays a role of utmost importance in design. Especially this year when the trend is toward elegance, opulence, luxury, rather than casual sophistication. Fabrics must be suavely harnessed to the new style of distinction.

Which is more important, line or color?

As a matter of fact, both are of equal importance. No gown or costume can be considered smart if its lines are not unimpeachable. And, by the same token, an outfit designed with beauty and chic, loses immeasurably if its colors are harsh or obvious.

Which comes first in the designing—the color, fabric or line?

I have no set rule along these lines. I get ideas from any number of sources, sometimes from a rug on the floor, sometimes from a statue of ancient Greece. The one may give me a color idea, the other an idea for line. As a matter of fact, it is difficult to sum up the various moods through which a designer meanders before he concludes a new design.

Which is more important—the costume or the accessories?

How about colors in relation to the complexion?

This is a question of great importance. For many women are swept off their feet by the color mode of the moment without giving their very own complexions a single thought. This is bad procedure, for very often milady's complexion is hardly the background for vivid purples and flaring yellows. It is really an axiom that a sallow complexion should veer away from flat colors, whereas, high color hardly needs loud shades. The woman with apple-red cheeks should certainly choose subdued shades in her wardrobe.

What is glamour?

I might say this is not a simple question to answer. If you use Hollywood, the acknowledged glamour capital of the world, as your yardstick, you have your pick of Garbos, Crawfords, Bennetts, Lombards and others as models of glamour. No doubt about it, these beauties have international followings, which naturally put them on the top of the list. Glamour, of course, is an elusive quality which lifts a woman out of the crowd and registers her charm, personality and looks, with emphasis.

TODAY'S HEALTH TALK

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Toothbrush Technique.

YESTERDAY I made the point that only a few of the perhaps 45 million people in the United States and Canada who do brush their teeth, do it the right way. The right way depends on a few simple principles. The main object of brushing the teeth is to prevent pyorrhea: only secondarily is it to clean the free surfaces of the teeth. To prevent pyorrhea you must keep clean the contact surfaces of the teeth and the gum margins; you must stimulate the gums. You must prevent tartar formation, the mother of pyorrhea.

To do this, use a small toothbrush with a straight edge, and use the toe bristles to enter the crevices of the teeth and approach the gums. The brush should be held so that it goes straight, and it should be moved in a small rotary, or wiggly motion.

The teeth should be brushed in a systematic way, as if you were painting a fence—each post, along the front, around and along the back, upper and lower.

Those are the principles for good tooth brushing.

Technique is the main thing.

The kind of toothbrush is the next most important thing.

The dentrifice is of little importance—soapy or sandy, it is all the same.

It's like the great Montague, who has been in the paper so much lately, according to my dentist's simile.

The great Montague is a great golf player. His technique is so good that he can play golf with anything. He played a game with a baseball bat, a rake and a shovel as clubs; photographs of him have been published with that "bag" of clubs on his shoulder. It was technique that won.

In tooth brushing, 75 per cent of success is in the technique, 20 per cent depends on the toothbrush, and 5 per cent on the dentifrice.

As adjuncts to tooth brushing, toothpicks are grand implements.

Toothpicks do just what the toothbrush should do with proper technique: they get in between the teeth and clean the contact surfaces, and when they touch the gums, stimulate them also. They do not do it so well as the toothbrush, but they are good adjuncts.

Any kind of a toothpick will do, but I think I ought to mention a new kind that is really the most logical and scientific accomplishment in toothpicks. These are made of soft wood so that they get waterlogged from the mouth secretions and swell to touch the contact surfaces of the teeth when inserted between them. One edge is a straight edge with a groove, and the other is a saber edge. You insert with the groove edge next to the gum, and the saber edge moves down and cleans everything before it.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, Sept. 27.

IT MAY BE a sign of the times, or not, but certainly the top-flight society debuts now exploding in the nifty set here are at their gaudiest and costliest.

ALICE HUGHES.

Only the other night Gloria Baker—"Mimi" to her pals and others—was hurled bodily into "society" with a roar heard all over Long Island.

The girl is only 17, but for several years has been heralded by the press as the peachiest of the current glamour maidens. Thousands of Baltimore dollars, made by her grandpappy in the headache-powder business, went into this launching, which was far more impressive than that of a streamlined battleship. "Mimi" debooed, and how!

The daughter of the late Raymond T. Baker and of the present Mrs. Margaret Emerson, and half-sister of Alfred and George Vanderbilt, went off the ways with a lovely splash, and was the tastiest bit of fluff at her own party, though the guests included all our ace buds, such as Edwin Atwell, Esme O'Brien and Lesley Rogers. She was togged out in a lovely Vionnet picture frock of blue satin, with tight bodice and bouffant skirt. A pippin, and so was she! And all the leading "stags" of the town fluttered around her, filled with admiration and free champagne.

* * * *

Yes, the town's debut parties grow gaudy again, even as the yells and wails of the proletariat are heard over the garden wall! I noted among the guests one of the costliest debs of other years, Countess Babs Hutton, etc. I wonder what that Poor Little Rich Girl thought as she saw another tossed to the wolves!

* * * *

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—A lot of us are wondering what Mr. and Mrs. Sinclair Lewis gab about at the old family fireside these nights. Certainly it can't be politics, owing to the turn things have taken in that famed scribbling family. Mrs. L., who as Dorothy Thompson, writes a daily newspaper piece, expresses herself as a thorough Tory, while "Red," author of "It Can't Happen Here," is considered a passionate liberal. So I guess the "Red" Lewises talk about the birds and beasts and little flowers. I hope so, or the homstead might blow up with a crash some fine fall evening! . . . . . .

I've learned how business women who burn up energy so furiously here these days manage to restore their tissues and keep their physical and mental health. For three or four nights they may stay up till 3 or 4 o'clock and stagger from the sheets at 8 for more grief. Then they take a night off, go to the trundle-bed at 7, have a light supper there, and then rip off 12 hours of the needful. In this way they strike a balance. Aimee Larkin, of Collier's, and Virginia Pope, of the Times, use this dodge, and say it works just dandy . . .

* * * *

Gwill Andre, long one of our loveliest models, had necks craning and eyes popping at the Belmont races the othr day. Here was her get-up—hat with pink ostrich plumes, black dress with its loose cuff sleeves trimmed with silver fox, and over one arm a mink coat. My, oh my! All the horses in the second race finished after Gwill. She's a girl who has not quite been able to make the Hollywood riffle, in spite of her gorgeous looks. Wonder why? . . . . . .

One by one the society girls of the town are aiming to be useful as well as decorative. Now one called Wendy Iglehart says she is going to study art and designing. Well, I don't suppose such a course will hurt a soul, even Wendy.

* * * *

The other day I found my favorite tailor for kids up to the armpits in bushy gray fur. The fellow was making four beautiful opossum coats—two for the Irving Berlin little girls, two for the pair of Harvey Firestone lasses. These chunky gray coats were for sheer warmth. Their party coats are of pale blue duvetyn, with round collarettes of ermine, black paws left in. People can say what they like about money, but it certainly does buy things!

CAPITAL MANNERS

Night Parties for Youngsters Should Be Held Only on Week-Ends.

By Margaret Wallace.

THE PROBLEM of "teen age" children attending evening parties is puzzling one Washington mother, who has appealed for advice. She writes:

DEAR MISS WALLACE:

My children, a boy of 17 and a girl of 15, are interested in evening parties. As many of their friends are permitted to attend them, my husband and I are facing the problem of how to solve this issue in our own home.

We made a rule when the children were younger that they could not attend parties in the evening. Now and then we relaxed it for special occasions. In the last few months they have besieged us with requests for permission to attend evening parties almost weekly.

It is our fervent desire not to thwart our children in their natural development and to permit such social intercourse with their comrades and friends as is possible.

Of course, we realize that it is more fun for them to do as other children. But even for the 17-year-old boy we feel that 12 and 1 a. m. are too late for him to be returning home from parties, although both of the children assure us that the fun just begins about that time.

We would appreciate any suggestions from you.

This is a common problem. Many mothers have had to yield to the point of view of the young people that girls of 15 and 16 are old enough to attend evening parties. Of course, boys of 16 and 17 regard themselves as quite capable of making their own decisions in such matters.

Yet one cannot put out of his or her mind all the possibilities of accident, overexcitement, lack of sleep, and resultant inattention to studies that too much evening social activity brings to "teen-age" children.

The first and last rule should be that the boy or girl could not attend evening parties on any school night. It is too much to ask of a growing child that he stay up until 1 a. m. or even 12, and still get sufficient rest and be able to get up at the same hours in the morning to go to his classes.

Parents who permit their children to give evening parties on school days are very unwise, and those who permit their children to attend them are equally short-sighted.

It is good form to direct your children to decline such invitations by stating frankly that they are not permitted to attend evening parties on school days. There should be no embarrassment to the children in making this statement, as parents certainly have the right to decide such matters.

It might be well, too, if the parties are given by close friends to consult with the mothers or fathers, or both, and point out that all might cooperate by abstaining from evening parties except at infrequent intervals and on nonschool nights. A little common sense on the part of parents can do much to solve such problems as these.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

WE HAVE a few remarks to get out of our system on the subject of twin beds. In the first place, we think they're all right in their place, but they've been going a lot of places the last few years that they haven't any business being. The average bedroom in the average house is too small for two beds and when they are used there, they eat up all the floor space and tend to make the room look very awkward. So before you go off the deep end and decide on twin beds instead of a double bed, do some measuring and floor planning to make sure that you'll have a graceful amount of floor space left in the room after the beds are in.

Another point to think about is the added expense of two beds. Remember that you have to invest about twice as much in springs, mattresses and blankets. Not to mention the double laundry you'll always have and the double number of beds to make.

Then we're old fashioned enough to think that a fine big double bed looks handsomer in most rooms, though, of course, there are large rooms where twin beds fit with distinction. We also like the luxury of wide expanse of bed to spread our covers over.

But there's plenty to be said in favor of twin beds. Mainly that many people like to sleep alone. On that score we'd say that if it's your own permanent bed you're deciding on, it's better to stretch any number of points and get the kind of a bed you'll find most comfortable because you'll spend a lot of your life there. But if you're buying for a guest room, you can count on the fact that guests usually come singly, so the like-to-sleep-aloners will usually have it to themselves anyway. And when they do come in pairs, they'll probably survive sharing a good innerspring mattress for a night or two to accommodate a gracious hostess.

If you're still bound to have twin beds, investigate those new space savers—two beds with a single headboard. They look like one double bed because they stand together.

YOUR FIGURE, MADAME!

By Ida Jean Kain.

PARIS GAVE a party! And what has that to do with your figure, madame? Everything!

The Directoire ball started a revolution in fashion. Everyone was there in her best bib and tucker, designed after the fashions worn by the Empress Josephine. You think you won't wear them? Well, you were the Empress Eugenie hats, didn't you?

Maybe you can't exactly picture the effect of these gowns on your figure. The curved-in bodice emphasizes the bust contour, the skirt begins right under the arms and sweeps down to the floor in a long, unbroken line; the waist is conspicious for an absence of belt or stitching. These were evening gowns, but the fashion prophets warn that this line will be carried into daytime clothes. It's my opinion that the figure was never more exposed to criticism, even in a bathing suit.

Now will you exercise? Obviously, your figure program should stress exercises for the bust, waist, hips and thighline.

Normal position of the bust is maintained by strong pectoral muscles. With regard to action, the pectoralis major is a muscle of the arm rather than of the chest. This muscle originates on the chest, but it inserts itself in the upper arm. For this reason, arm exercises are advised for lifting the bust to high, lovely position. The following wand exercise is very effective:

Position: Standing erect, feet slightly apart, grasping wand with both hands. Hold the wand chest high.

Movement: Thrust the wand arm length, straight out in front at the chest. Without bending the elbows, raise the wand straight overhead, then bend the elbows and bring the wand down behind the shoulders. Raise it overhead again, out in front, and return to chest. Do the exercise rhythmically and to count. You can make your own wand by cutting off the handle of an old broom.

Follow through with an exercise for the waistline. If you expect to wear any of the fall clothes, you'll have to have a slender waist.

Position: Standing erect, arms stretched high overhead, hands grasping wand. Have the feet apart for balance.

Now, twist at the waist and bend to the side back. Return to position, twist in the opposite direction, and bend side back. Hold the arms high overhead throughout. For a more stringent measure, stretch high with the wand, and bend sideward to touch end of wand to floor without bending the knees. Stretching pulls out any spare-tire effect along the waist.

To reduce the hips and thighs, grasp the wand near the ends and, holding it straight out in front, shoulder level, kick the right hand with the left toe and the left hand with the right toe. Do not lower the wand.

These wand exercises comprise a very complete figure program by which you may restrain your curves to conform to the most exacting demands of Paris fashions.

Curved-in Bodice Emphasizes Bust and Waist Contours.

1 head of new cabbage
1 12-ounce can of corned beef
¼ cup of butter
2 tablespoons of lemon juice

Cut the new cabbage into coarse slices and boil in salted water for 8 to 10 minutes. The savory or curley cabbage may be used. Open the can of corned beef and slice. Place in a strainer or sieve and steam until hot over the boiling cabbage. Keep the meat above the level of the boiling water. Drain the cabbage, season with butter mixed with the lemon juice. Place the slices of corned beef in the center of the serving platter and surround with the cabbage.

Poles Here Planning for Pulaski Day

Count Potocki Expected Back in U. S. to Help Oct. 5.

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

Maybe it's just the regular autumnal return of diplomats to the Capital, or maybe it's because Pulaski day is coming up early next month and the Ambassador is on his way back—anyway, whatever the reason, the Polish Embassy seems to be taking on new life.

With Count Jerzy Potocki expected to arrive October 5, after spending most of the summer at his estate in Poland, and with plans for a reception on Pulaski day—October 11—now being worked out, the embassy is now a beehive of activity.

It's beginning to look as if the celebration is going to be a memorable one in many ways, what with the President speaking over a Nation-wide hookup in honor of the famous Revolutionary War hero and the Polish National Alliance sponsoring a dinner and a dance at the Wardman Park Hotel, with a special address by the Attorney General, Homer S. Cummings, as a feature of the former.

Memory of Two Men To Be Honored

According to present plans, Ambassador Potocki wil go to New York for the Polish celebration and then come back to the Capital the following day to be present at the Pulaski day festivities and the military funeral for Gen. Wladimir Bonaventura Kryzanowski, Polish-American Civil War general, whose remains will be buried in Arlington Cemetery after being brought here from Brooklyn. Following this service, which will be attended by hundreds of Polish men and women from all over the East, the Ambassador will receive his countrymen at the embassy.

Two days before the Pulaski day celebration, another member of the embassy staff, Rafel Lepkowsi, Attache, is expected to return after spending a holiday in his homeland, Michael Budney, the other attache, recently returned from an extended trip through the West, where he visited Hollywood and then motored up the West Coast to New Brunswick.

The Charge d'Affaires of the Embassy, Witold Wankowicz, who has been around the Capital most of the summer, now has his family—or most of it—with him. Mme. Wankowicz, who spent the past few months in Eaglesmere, Pa., returned last week, and is now busy getting her three younger children started in school. Mary and Yola Wankowicz will be in Visitation Convent, and Paul will attend the Landon School. The elder daughter—Miss Irene Wankowicz—is now in Warsaw, Poland, having arrived there September 20. She plans to be back in Washington some time in January.

Judging from accounts, Mme. Wankowicz had a most enjoyable summer at Eaglesmere. She was there for almost three months with the exception of a few days, when she visited Mrs. Ernest G. Draper, wife of the Assistant Secretary of Commerce, in the latter's home in Connecticut.

Famous Finn to Be Feted Today

Arriving in these parts without the fanfare generally accorded to visiting celebrities, Miss Stina Gripenberg, of Helsingfors, Finland, noted oceanologist, will be the guest in whose honor Mme. Jarnefelt will receive a few friends at the Finnish Legation this afternoon.

Miss Gripenberg, who got her Ph. D. degree by writing a thesis on facts gleaned by studying the bottom of the Baltic Sea from a glass-based boat, will soon be on her way to the West Coast, where she plans to continue her research, this time off the coast of San Diego, Calif. Since she has received signal recognition by scientific groups in the United States, Miss Gripenberg already has a number of friends and acquaintances in the Capital. Many of these also know her brother, George Gripenberg, Minister of Finland to the Court of St. James.

More About The Buds-to-Be

Another definite debut date is added to the list. Miss Fanchon Aldrich will be presented by her uncle and aunt, Representative and Mrs. Jesse P. Walcott, at a tea dance December 27. . . . Just now, however, she's enjoying an extended vacation in Port Huron, Mich., and doesn't expect to return to the Capital until next month.

Miss Beverly Moffett, daughter of Mrs. William A. Moffett and the late Rear Admiral Moffett, will have a long trip before she makes her bow. Some time next week she and her mother will be off for California. Plans for her debut will be pretty well worked out, however, before she leaves. More about this later.

Misses Ann and Eleanor Meem, who with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grant Meem, landed in New York Sunday after a trip abroad, will return to Washington on Thursday. Meanwhile, they're looking about the Gotham shops to see what well-dressed debs will wear this season. Another sister team—Misses Sally and Nancy Fleming, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Irwin Fleming—are beginning the term at Wells College. Plans for a debut this year are to come along later—if at all.

Matron of Honor Soon Will Be Hostess to Bride She Attended

MRS. IRVING BROTMAN, wife of Dr. Brotman (left), has just returned from New York City, where she attended Mrs. Richard Leighton Johnson (below), as matron of honor at her wedding Saturday in the Little Church Around the Corner. When Mr. and Mrs. Johnson return in two weeks to make their home in Washington, Mrs. Brotman will be their hostess at a dinner party.

Harris & Ewing.

MRS. RICHARD Leighton Johnson before her marriage Saturday was Miss Stacy Williams, daughter of Randolph Williams, of North Carolina. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, now on their wedding trip, plan to live at the Westchester, where they will be neighbors of Dr. and Mrs. Brotman.

Miss Sheehan Names Sister Her Attendant

Mgr. Sheen to Conduct Nuptial Mass Here Tomorrow.

Miss Frances Juliana Sheehan, whose marriage to Dr. William Cusack will take place tomorrow, will have as her matron of honor and only attendant her sister, Mrs. T. Donald Healy, of Garden City, Long Island.

Mgr. Fulton H. Sheen, the noted religious author, will officiate at the nuptial mass in Dahlgren Chapel, Georgetown University. Edward T. Donvan will sing two solos preceding the ceremony.

Dr. Matthew E. Donohue will serve as best man, and ushers will be Thomas Manfan, jr., and Bernard Wise, both of Washington, and Ralph Counselman and Daniel O'Connor, of Boston.

Following the marriage, there will be a reception of the Mayflower Hotel, at which the bride's mother, Mrs. Sheehan, will receive, assisted by Mr. Sheehan and the bridegroom's father, Cornelius Cusack. The couple will spend their honeymoon in Bermuda, and will return to make their home at the Century Apartments on Sixteenth and Fuller streets.

Miss Sheehan is a graduate of Trinity College, while Dr. Cusack attended Georgetown University and Medical School, where he is now a member of the faculty.

The Grosvenors Will Be Honored

Guests at Luncheon Today of Women's Press Club.

Dr. Gilbert H. Grosvenor, president of the National Geographic Society, and Mrs. Grosvenor, who recently returned from a 22,000-mile trip to the Orient, will be guests of honor at the luncheon meeting today of the Women's National Press Club at the Willard Hotel.

Another guest speaker will be F. Cowles Strickland, new director of the Washington Civic Theater, who will discuss production plans of the theater for the women of the press and their guests.

Last season the Civic was singled out by Stage Magazine for special honors as "one of our best community theaters." This year, seven major productions are scheduled. Mr. Strickland comes to the Capital after four years with the St. Louis Little Theater. He is founder of the Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge, Mass.

W. T. Bobb Will Marry 'Miss Maryland, 1937'

Miss eGorgia Louise Grove, who last April was chosen "Miss Maryland of 1937" at the University of Maryland, will become the bride of William Taylor Bobb on October 9, according to an announcement made by her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Balous Grove.

The prospective bride is a graduate of Hyattsville High School and attended Maryland University. Mr. Bobb, who is the son of Judge and Mrs. William A. Bobb, of Cottage City, Md., attended George Washington University after finishing Hyattsville High School.

The wedding will take place in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

Mr. and Mrs. John Tilden Burch, whose marriage took place Saturday evening at the Methodist Episcopal Church, are now on a motor trip to Florida and will go to Havana, Cuba and Nassau before returning to Washington November 15 to make their home.

The Methodist Episcopal Church was the scene of their wedding at which the Rev. S. Carroll Cole, assisted by the Rev. Walter M. Michael, officiated.

Given in marriage by her brother, Cashell Shoemaker, the bride wore a gown of eggshell satin with a bodice of Alencon lace, long tight sleeves and a full skirt, sweeping into a train. Her ivory tulle veil was held in place with a Mary Stuart cap and she carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Louise Shoemaker, cousin of the bride and her maid of honor, wore a frock of light blue slipper satin, fashioned with puff sleeves, a full skirt and velvet accents. She carried Talisman roses.

Other attendants were Mrs. Cashell Shoemaker, Mrs. Kenneth Jones, Miss Maybelle Shoemaker and Miss Rina Sari, and wore gowns of rust satin, trimmed in brown velvet. Their bouquets were yellow and rust chrysanthemums.

Edgar Burch, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man, and ushers were Kenneth Jones, Pierce Michael, John Payne and William Shelton.

THIS CERTAINLY is a brave new world we live in, judging from Mrs. Langhorne Bond's account of her airplane trip to Washington from San Francisco not long ago. She was accompanied by her tiny baby, born in China, and before the trip held many a conference with air line officials concerning her baby's food en route. Finally a system was evolved whereby at every stop on the way the former Kitty Dunlop and her infant were met by an important air executive carrying specially prepared formulas and sterilized bottles.

AVIATION AND CHINA—mostly China—were the chief topics of conversation at a small supper party at Mary Cootes' home the other evening. It was quite a reunion of people-who-had-lived-there, and one of the guests was Jack Poole, who roomed with Mary's brother, Merritt Cootes, when the latter was vice consul at Honkkong. Mr. Poole, who is one of those rare individuals who can sit down at a piano and hold listeners absolutely spell-bound, spent a brief time in Washington during leave from his post with the foreign service. He will return there next month, but since Hongkong is controlled by the British, he is not particularly worried about his fate.

Both Mrs. Cootes and Mary spent several months in Hongkong last winter, and others among the guests who had lived there were Lieut. Forrest Close, of the Navy; Mrs. Nora Bell and Mrs. Langhorne Bond. The only ones there who could not talk "from experience" about China were Herbert Ford, Billy Bell and Henry Rowland.

HENRY'S sister, Diane Rowland, is one of these lucky authors who have never had a piece sent back with one of those so-polite little rejection slips attached. It is true that she has submitted only six stories, but this is because she can't be bothered to write anything unless in desperate need of a new dress or a piece of jewelry which her allowance won't stretch to cover. She has just sold her latest story to a well-known New York newspaper, which bought her first, written for the yearbok of Madeira School.

Diane no doubt inherits some of her talent from her father, the late Henry Rowland, who wrote many a story and editorial for the Saturday Evening Post. He did not begin to write until he was 30, and was a well-known doctor and authority on tropical diseases.

Pen Women Ratify Three New Officers

Margaret Bailey, Publicity Chief, Once Taught School in N. C.

At the meeting of the executive board of the District branch of the National League of American Pen Women Friday night, appointments by the president of the following chairmen were ratified: Membership, Hattie Meyers Junkin; publicity, Margaret Jean Bailey; studio, Mattie Richards Tyler. The new chairmen were introduced at the business meeting last night at the Grafton Hotel.

Although Hattie Meyers Junkin was born into a New Jersey newspaper family, she did not begin to write until after her marriage to George B. Weaver and later to E. J. Junkin. Both men were pioneers in commercial aviation and part owners in Weaver Aircraft Co., now known as Waco. Mrs. Junkin's first writing was done at the request of an aviation magazine editor and was an analysis of aviation and the reaction of the world thereto. Her unique, lively form of expression gave pulsing interest to technical details.

In 1931 Mrs. Junkin took part in the national glider meet at Elmira, N. Y., and won the first F. A. I. soaring license which was awarded to an American woman. She has written accounts of her experiences for United States Air Service Magazine and for Popular Aeronautics. Recently she was the guest of Mary Mason on Home Forum hour, N. B. C., and also broadcast on "Pioneering in Glider Flying" at Plattsburg, N. Y., over WMFF.

Mrs. Junkin received a bachelor of laws degree in 1935 and is a member of Phi Delta Fraternity. She joined the League of American Pen Women in 1931 and served for one year as registrar of the District of Columbia branch. Her first poem recently was published in the Crown Anthology of Verse; another is to appear in Christmas Lyrics.

Margaret Jean Bailey is a native of Greenville, S. C., where her father edited a newspaper for many years. She was educated at Winthrop College for Women, Rock Hill, S. C., and at Peabody College for Teachers, Nashville, Tenn. Her feature and biographical articles have been published in several South Carolina newspapers, in the Evening Star and The Washington Post, and in the Christian Observer, Louisville, Ky.

Before coming to Washington she was a teacher of high school history in Wade and Rowan counties, N. C. Since she became a member of the League of American Pen Women in 1931 she has served as chairman of journalism, registrar, corresponding secretary and co-editor of the N. L. A. P. W. Bulletin. She won first and second prizes in the Isabel Anderson feature article contest in 1932, honorable mention in the National League of American Pen Women feature article contest in 1936, second prize in the National juvenile story contest in 1936, and second prize and second honorable mention in the Isabel Anderson short story contest in 1937.

Her past two summers have been spent in Europe and in studying fiction at Harvard University Summer School.

Mattie Richards Tyler, born in Louisville, Ky., was graduated from Centenary College Conservatory, Cleveland, Tenn., and Anna Morgan Studio of Dramatic Art, Chicago. She taught dramatic art in Louisville; coached plays in Louisville and in Chicago. She has been connected with the United States Public Debt Service for 18 years. Mrs. Tyler has written and produced two plays for amateurs. Her poems have been published in the Washington Herald, The Washington Post, the Blue Moon, the Tidewater Trail, several church periodicals, and the Urn, of Beta Sigma Omicron. She has won several L. A. P. W. prizes.

Mrs. Tyler is a member of St. Thomas Episcopal Church, Beta Sigma Omicron National Sorority, serves on Pine Mountain Com., D. C. alumnae national magazine editor for three years. She has just returned from the Westover Bicentennial celebration.

Her great-great-great-grandfather, Peter Fontaine, was rector of Old Bird Parish for 40 years. She was a guest this summer at the old President Tyler home, Sherwood Forest, and also visited Williamsburg and Richmond.

MISS EARLENE WHITE. Messler Studio.

Business Women Hear Call to Learn About Own Communities.

Miss Earlene White, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women, last night sounded a call to arms for the 65,000 women of 48 States in her organization to learn about their own communities. The plea was made at the banquet in her honor given by the District of Columbia Business and Professional Women's Clubs at the Raleigh Hotel last night.

Miss White explained that the program of the organization for the year is built on the theme "Our Town's Business."

Under a plan drawn up by Ryllis Alexander Goslin and Omar Pancoast Goslin, each club will "check its own town." The plan includes the use of maps and charts which will guide the clubs in this checkup with a viewpoint of the topography of the surrounding country, the desirability of private or public ownership and the civic and welfare life and opportunities of their towns. The checkup will deal with educational and vocational opportunities, undeveloped resources, faulty distribution of recreational facilities, cultural assets and the use made of them and kindred matters of great value to the communities.

Miss White pointed out that the programs of the clubs for the year will include discussion of various angles of the analyses. The investigation of their home communities by the different branches of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs is part of a ten-year plan designed with the motto of the federation in mind, "Better Business Women in a Better Business World."

Miss White is a member of the District club and succeeded Miss Carl Williams, also a member of the District club.

Miss Nina Kinsella, president of the D. C. club, presided at the banquet and introduced Miss White. Miss Martha Edwards was chairman of the general committee for the banquet. The program, in charge of Miss Mary Robinson, included dramatic readings by Mrs. Syovia Siskind and community singing.

Miss White Outlines Year's Program at Banquet in Her Honor.

Quota Board Backs Loyalty Day Drive

Board Indorses Movement of Religious Committee.

The board of directors of the Quota Club International, Incorporated, has indorsed the program of the National Committe for Religion and Welfare Recovery and has requested local Quota Clubs throughout the United States to co-operate in their local committee in their local communities.

The National Committee for Religion and Welfare Recovery is a nonsecretarian committee composed of Catholic, Protestan and Jewish clergymen and laymen who have designated October 2 and 3 as Loyalty Days on which citizens are rquested to attend services in their various churches and to consider ways in which moral and spiritual values may be encouraged and fostered in their communities.

One of the objectives of Quota Clubs is "to foster the ideal of service to country and community" and local clubs are making plans to co-operate in the work of the National Committee for Religion and Welfare Recovery, and to participate in the observance of Loyalty Days.

Meriden, Conn., Club Presents Discussion of Home Problems

N. C. C. W. Convention Studies Family and Parent Education; Miss Mary Duffy, Supreme Regent of Catholic Daughters, Is Here.

At the N. C. C. W. convention yesterday, the Catholic Family and Parent Education Study Club of Meriden, Conn., presented a panel discussion at the luncheon sponsored by the national committee of the N. C. C. W. on Family and Parent Education and Catholic Parent-Teacher Association.

Mrs. Thomas J. Horrigan, who four years ago invited Catholic mothers of Meriden to form a study club for parent education and Catholic standards in child training, presided.

Mrs. Joseph T. McNulty spoke of the organization and program of a Parent Education Study Club. Mrs. McNulty expressed the aims of such a study group as "to preserve family integrity and stability in this chaotic period of childless marriages and easy divorce; to plant in the minds of youth and even children the understanding that marriage is a sacrament; that building a home is a worthwhile career for women, a profession for husband and wife for which intelligent preparation is necessary. Finally, it aims to instill a respect for large families and it emphasizes the rewards of sacrifice."

Home Planning Urged.

"The Home and Parent Responsibility" was the topic discussed by Mrs. Joseph F. Murphy. Stating that "we mothers are responsible for the mothers of the next generation," Mrs. Murphy said that in order to achieve a "happy home" it is well "for the husband and wife to sit down and plan out this home business together just as they would any other kind of an enterprise."

Following Mrs. Murphy's talk another member of the Meriden Catholic Parent Education Study Club gave an interesting and informative paper on "Spiritual, Physical and Material Aspects." Mrs. Edward G. Knell said that "religious training is the essential element of the true Christian home, and yet, until it is definitely brought to our attention, we are apt to regard it superficially, to depend too much upon the school, the Sunday school and the church to perform a duty that is ours." Mrs. Knell's paper further stated that "religious education means more than teaching a child his prayers and catechism. Teaching our children the habit of obedience is perhaps the hardest single task that confronts us mothers. We must use 'no' and 'don't' economically. Most of us parents err by saying 'no' and 'don't' without giving due thought to the command. Obedience to commands, given clearly and firmly, must be steadfastly required of older children."

Club Benefits Reviewed.

Mrs. Arthur J. Mallinson, jr., ended the panel discussion with a brief explanation of the "benefits derived" from the Parent Education Study Club. Mrs. Mallinson said that "those who dropped in out of curiosity to visit the club remained to humbly admit that just being a parent is not enough." Mrs. Mallinson further said that one of the greatest achievements of the club has been to arouse interest on the part of the fathers. "Too often father thinks his responsibility is to provide the house and the money to keep it going. He leaves the duty of child care to mother. We were urged to talk over with father the subjects presented and convince him that the problems and cares of child training must be shared to an extent by both parents."

Mrs. John Bell Hood, of Jonestown, Miss., closed the family and parent education and Catholic Parent-Teacher Association program with a report on the second international congress for the return of the working mother to the home and congress for the Christian family, both of which she attended in Europe this past summer as a representative of the National Council of Catholic Women.

Supreme Regent to Visit.

Miss Mary C. Duffy, supreme regent of the Catholic Daughters of America, will be in Washington during the convention. The officers and members of Court District of Columbia held a reception in honor of Miss Duffy last night in the Chinese Room of the Mayflower Hotel. A committee from the local court will be hostesses and ushers at the Sunday evening meeting of the convention of the N. C. C. W.

A meeting of the junior councilors of Court District will be held at the home of the grand regent, Miss Augusta E. Uhl, 2712 Cortland place northwest, on Thursday evening.

More than 200 members attended the meeting of the court at the Willard last Tuesday evening, which was followed by a program and reception in honor of the Rev. John K. Cartwright, the new chaplain. Mrs. Mary Cassidy sang, accompanied by Miss Rita Dolphin at the piano.

A report from the chairman of membership, Miss Dorothea Barrett, showed more than 60 applications received. Reception of new members will be held on October 31.

Roper Will Talk To Democrats

District League Will Hear Commerce Secretary at Luncheon Saturday.

The Democratic League of the District of Columbia will open its fall meeting with a luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel Saturday at 1:15 p. m. Daniel C. Roper, Secretary of Commerce, will be the guest speaker. At the opening meeting the Rev. Gerhard E. Lenski, pastor of the Grace Luther Church, will give the invocation, and Mrs. Joseph Robichaux will sing. Mr. Hugh V. Kaiser, president of the league, will preside. It is expected between 300 and 900 members and friends will attend. All honorary vice presidents will attend, as well as many Democratic leaders. Mr. Roper will be accompanied by Mrs. Roper.

John L. Montgomery To Give a Dinner for Dozen This Evening

The United States Minister to Hungary, John Flournoy Montgomery, is occupying a suite at the Carlton Hotel while in Washington. This evening he will entertain at a dinner for 12 guests.

Mrs. Montgomery, who, with the Minister, spent the summer at the Cascades, their home in Manchester, Vt., is expected this week at the Pierre in New York, where Mr. Montgomery will join her later. They returned to the United States from Budapest in June.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

Copyright, 1937, for The Washington Post.

I was twitting a young Washington diplomat about the easy life he leads.

"Your day begins about noon, doesn't it?" I said tauntingly. "That's a softer graft than a columnist's."

* * * *

"Yes," he said, "but often I am forced to represent my country until 3 or 4 a. m. . . . And it takes me an hour or more for my toilette in the morning. We can't be shaggy like you journalists."

* * * *

"Is that so!" I retorted apily. "For instance?"

"First I spend five minutes under the suntamp at my rowing machine. Ambassadors may have paunches, but attaches mustn't."

"—a brisk row in the sun."

"You might go a little lighter on the hors d'ouevres at the cocktail parties," I suggested. He ignored the thrust.

"Then I must brush my teeth, gargle some mouthwash or cognac, use some of your ingenious American dental floss, and maybe polish my teeth with little strips of sandpaper, to dazzle your young ladies."

* * * *

"They're easily dazzled," I observed, "even by your bon mots."

"Then I massage my hair with a brush and a rubber curry comb. I hope I can afford one of those electric machines before I go bald. Then some tonic and maybe some shampoo, and into the tub and under the shower."

* * * *

"Yes, you diplomats must spend a lot of time in the tub, washing your sins away."

"Not only that," he replied. "Each morning I take some pills, some effervescent powder, and drink two glasses of hot water."

"All the while worrying about the foreign situation, of course."

"Certainly. But first I have lathered and shaved and later put on some face lotion, and maybe some eyewash, to make by eyes sparkle after a bad evening."

* * * *

"All this time do they keep bringing code messages into your bathroom?"

"No, I keep in touch with things through a small radio in my bathroom . . . Sometimes I get some good recorded music while trimming my mustache. For removing hair from ears, of course, I use my electric razor; it's good for that."

"—the old tin wash basin."

"For trimming my eyebrows and the hair which flourishes so vigorously in my nose I use a small pair of scissors. Otherwise, I would have eyebrows like your charming Mr. Lewis."

"When you're an ambassador," I suggested, "your valet will do all that, eh?" I kept thinking about the old tin wash basin on the back porch o' pioneers.

* * * *

"When I'm an ambassador, I'll let all my hair grow," quoth the attache. "But now I must even clip some of the hair off my chest in the summer, or bathing season, with a small pair of clippers . . . We are a very hairy family, my people, and your athletes seem to have so little hair on their chests."

* * * *

"Then are you ready to have lunch with a debutante, and begin work in earnest?" I inquired, with the naivete of the Great Plains.

"Yes," he said, "after I have put a little hand lotion on my hands, and a dab of brilliantine on my hair, and some styptic pencil on my razor wounds, then I'm ready to face you American imperialists, if I can find a clean shirt."

New Class Planned.

Catholic View Of Feminism GivenCouncil

Extremists DamageFamily, Favor Free Love, She Says.

What equality means to Catholic women—as well as to what it does not mean—was discussed last night by Mrs. Mary G. Hawks, of Buffalo, at the seventeenth annual convention of the National Council of Catholic Women in the Mayflower Hotel.

Unlike the rampant feminist who seeks to be in all things possible like a man, Miss Hawks said, the Christian feminist perceives that there are psychological differences between woman and man, but at the same time believes that these differencs need not curtail a woman's aspirations or achievements.

"The Catholic Church," Miss Hawks said, "places no restraining hand upon woman's aspirations or achievements. She bids them to go forward in God's name, but she asks that they be true to their God-given aptitudes and attitudes; to walk worthy of the Mother of Christ and their mother, and those great women who through Christian ages have sacrificed individualism for the salvation of the world."

Defines Equality.

Discussing the kind of equality to which Catholic women do not subscribe, Miss Hawks said:

"We may not ignore, however, a feminism which is more concerned with individual rights than with social values; that holds all differences other than the undeniable physiological ones to be man-made discriminations.

"For its exponents, equality means that women shall hold the same position, do the same work, enjoy legal protection only as far as may be necessary for the function of maternity. In its ultimate expressions, it is destructive of the family as a social unit, favors free love, facilitates divorce, exaggerates the physical in motherhood, belittles its spiritual value and office or makes it a pul lic service to bear children for the state to educate and control.

"Consciously or, in some cases, unconsciously, they are driven by the impetuosity of individualism to foster antagonisms and create new dislocations of the social order, in the name of equality. Their notion of equality is poles apart from ours.

"What we, as Catholic women, mean by equality places upon us grave social obligations to a harmonious social order based on justice and charity.'"

Miss Hawks, a former president of the National Council of Catholic Women, based her speech on views propounded at a meeting in Brussels last spring of the Internatoinal Union of Catholic Women's Leagues, to which she was a delegate. When she concluded last night, hearty applause swept the ballroom of the Mayflower.

Blames War on Russia.

At the morning session, an American-born woman, recently held prisoner in Madrid, told the delegates that the Spanish war is a revolution fostered by Soviet Russia as a "steping stone to world supremacy." She was Marquesa de Cienfuegos, formerly Jane Anderson, of Atlanta, Ga., who, after serving as a newspaper correspondent in Spain, married a Spanish nobleman. She was under arrest for 43 days and condemned to die, but was released through the intervention of the American Government.

"The Loyalist government," she told the council, "is a government of phantoms. "These great forces unchained are ruling the country under the direction of one man, under the direction of one supreme power. Not one crumb of bread is given the starving population without his consent. And who is this man? Who is this great and noble Spaniard who has risen to the occasion? . . . is name is Marcell Rosenberg, first ambassador of the Soviets to the Free Republic of Spain."

Charles A. McMahon, editor of Catholic Action, last night sketched the history and outlined the works of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, and paid tribute to the bishops who founded it after the World War and have since fostered its manifold functions. Dr. Sabina H. Connally, of New Haven, Conn., spoke on "The Web of Sanctity."

After attending an 8 o'clock mass this morning in St. Matthew's Church, the delegation will assemble in the Mayflower ballroom to consider industrial and social service problems. The convention will close with a banquet tomorrow night.

Bode Is Cremated; Starved on $35,000

The body of Herman Bode, former New Jersey resident, who died here last week of undernourishment and exposure with $1,494 in his pickets and leaving an estate of $35,000, was cremated yesterday at the Lee funeral home, Fourth street and Massachusetts avenue northeast.

The cremation took place on cabled instructions from Adolph Meyer, of Hanover, Germany, named by Bode in a will found by the police as executor of his estate. The ashes will be held at the funeral home until further instructions are received.

Bode divided his estate equally among a sister, a brother and two nieces in Germany.

D. A. Skinner, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, carries on as chairman of the utilities group in the Red Cross roll call, despite a leg injury. He is shown with Miss Arman Bokshian, Red Cross aide.

D. A. Skinner Heads Utilities Division; Edgar Morris Firm Leads Early Reports With Perfect Enrollment.

Undaunted by a severe leg injury, D. A. Skinner, secretary of the United States Chamber of Commerce, announced yestrday he will continue to serve as chairman of the Red Cross roll call in the Utilities Group.

He is being assisted in the roll call by Charles Clagett, of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.

Meanwhile enrollment continued throughout the city. Although the first reports are not due until tonight, several groups reported results.

The list was led by the Edgar Morris Sales Co., with all 45 employes enrolled. Morris is aiding the Red Cross as chairman of the Business Group.

Others listing 100 per cent were the American Express Co., Washington offices of the TVA, Lanman Engraving Co and Canadian Pacific Railway Co., Fourteenth street and New York avenue.

Enrollment of the Government departments got under way yesterday under direction of Gen. Fred W. Boschen, chief of Army finance. Last year, under Gen. Boschen, 58,000 Government employes joined the Red Cross.

Chairman of the professional group, E. Barrett Prettyman, former corporation counsel for the District, said his divisions would set aside specific days for enrollment. Solicitations among physicians is under Dr. William F. Burdick.

The residential group is headed by Mrs. Cary T. Grayson, wife of the national chairman of the Red Cross. Mrs. Grayson reported that Mrs. Walter Barrows, of 2000 Connecticut avenue, was the first to submit a preliminary report on the progress of enrollment in the apartment house of which she is "captain."

While most of the memberships are the regular $1 annual, a large number of contributing, sustaining and supporting memberships have also been received. These are $5, $10 and $25. In addition, two $1,000 donations have been reported.

Taxicab Drivers Get Safety Prizes At Annual Dinner

Nearly 400 cabs left the streets last night as their drivers, members of the Premier Cab Association, gathered at the Burlington Hotel, 1120 Vermont avenue northwest, for their second annual banquet.

William A. Van Duzer, director of traffic, praised the association, and presented safety certificates to 63 drivers, including 5 members who have driven for the association without an accident since its founding in 1932. Awards for four years' service without an accident were given to 25 drivers, and the others received certificates for safety records of at least three years.

Association members receiving safety certificates for five years' service: P. McLelland, B. J. Rubin, R. P. Royer, R. Culp and J. Gray.

Speedy in Stretch, Policewoman Nips Shoplifter Suspect

In an impromptu footrace staged yesterday between six policewomen of the Women's Bureau and Lulu Beli, alleged shoplifter, Alice Parrish proved to be the swiftest woman in the bureau.

Policewoman Parrish arrested the woman on a charge of shoplifting and took her to the Women's Bureau for questioning. Turning her back for a brief moment to look up her record in the police file, Miss Parrish wheeled just in time to see her charge running out the door.

The six women rushed out of the building in pursuit of the fugitive. Down Ridge street the seven women dashed, with Capt. Milligan in the lead.

As the women turned the quarter-mile mark at M street and New Jersey avenue Policewoman Parrish pushed to the front and, with one supreme effort, grasped the flying skirts of the fugitive, who last night was locked safely in a cell at the bureau.

Business Tax Returns Lag; Time Short

1,000 Are Received at Allen's Office; 15,000 Are Still Due.

10% Penalty Mandatory After Friday; Number Affected Revised.

Nearly 1,000 business privilege tax returns poured into the office of Tax Assessor Fred D. Allen yesterday, but some 15,000 more are due before Friday if the taxpayers are to escape a 10 per cent penalty.

Allen warned no extension of time will be granted for filing of returns, and pointed out that the penalty is mandatory.

Taxpayers flocked into the basement floor subdivision of the tax assessor's office yesterday as a half dozen clerks were kept busy answering inquiries.

The tax assessor has revised his estimate of the number who will pay the new levy of three-fifths of 1 per cent on gross receipts, because so many business and professional men have reported they were under the $2,000 exemption in 1936.

Whereas it formerly was estimated 20,000 would be liable to pay the tax, tax officials said yesterday they believed the number will not exceed 18,000.

Less than 2,000 licenses have been issued under the new law, despite the fact every business and professional man, regardless of whether or not he pays the tax, must obtain a permit.

Of this number 1,000 have paid pays the tax, and about 600 have got the permits for nothing on the ground their gross receipts amount to less than $2,000 a year.

The time limit for obtaining licenses, however, is October 15, a fortnight beyond the deadline for filing the tax returns.

Allen also said realty tax bills are now available at the District Building. The tax is payable in October istead of September, due to the hike in the rate.

J. A. Wilner Again Heads Adas Israel

The members of Adas Israel congregation, 600 I street northwest, elected Joseph A. Wilner president for the tenth consecutive term at a meeting Sunday evening. Adas Isreal, established in 1869, is the largest conservative Hebrew congregation in the city, with a membership of more than 500.

Abe Shefferman was elected to the new post of executive director in addition to being chosen financial secretary. Other officers elected were Herman Robbin, vice president; Joseph Blumenthal, treasurer, and Lester Levy, recording secretary. A managing board of 24 was named. Rabbi Solomon H. Metz, Cantor Louis Novick and Sexton B. Crossberg were re-elected and given salary increases.

Spencer Howell Dead in Virginia

Washington friends of Spencer P. Howell, explosives engineer, U. S. Bureau of Mines, were notified yesterday of his death Saturday at Virginia Beach, Va.

At the time of his death, Howell was a member of the technical staff of the bureau's experimental station at Pittsburgh. For a time, however, he was attached to the administrative headuarters of the bureau and resided in Washington from 1924 to 1927.

Howell, who had devoted 29 years in research, was one of the world's foremost authorities on explosives used in mining. He supervised use of explosives in the construction of the Panama Canal.

Howell left a wife, Sarah Deem Howell, and a son DeWitt Clinton Howell, 19. Funeral services will be held tomorrow in Pittsburgh.

H. J. Clay Takes Sweepstakes At Woodridge Flower Show

Virginia De Athey, 10, of 1921 Lawrence street northeast, holds one of the exhibits at the annual fall flower show of the Woodridge Garden Club.

11th Annual Exhibit Held at Sherwood Sunday School Building; Frank Goetzer Captures Dahlia Award; Nathan Gammon Has Best Rose.

With more than 200 exhibitors competing in 90 classes, the Woodbridge Garden Club held its eleventh fall flower and garden show last night in the Sherwood Presbyterian Sunday School Building, Twenty-second street and Rhode Island avenue northeast.

I. J. Clay, of 2603 Monroe street northeast, captured the Michell silver medal for highest total points, based on individual flowers and arrangements.

Award for the best dahlia of the show went to Frank Goetzger, of Mount Rainier, for his "Lord of Autumn," a yellow flower. Nathan Gammon, of 2211 Franklin street northeast, displayed the best rose, "Etoile d'Holland."

The classes, most of which were devoted to dahlia displays, included one for children under 14. A dozen entrants exhibited arrangements of display blooms of roses. Other classes were displays of grapes, apples, pears, potatoes, beans, tomatoes and other fruits and vegetables.

Three commercial displays were also shown. Both the Maryland Dahlia Gardens of Baltimore, and the Dahliadel Nurseries in New Jersey, exhibited various varieties of dahlias, from tiny pompoms to giant exhibition-type blooms. A third exhibitor, R. M. Shenk, landscape architect, of Takoma Park, Md., displayed an Indian stone garden.

Other winners were Mrs. Henry Crosswhite, of Riverdale, Md., arrangement of home-grown fruits and vegetables grouped around a 15-inch dried sunflower seed pod; her son, Bobby Crosswhite, 9, flower arrangements for children under 14; George Marshall, of Brentwood, Md., chairman of the show, with his display of rose arrangements.

Mrs. M. C. Kissinger, of Washington, arrangements of flowers other than dahlias and roses; R. H. Shenk, Takoma Park, novelty display; Mrs. Henry Linger, of Washington, miniature arrangements; Mrs. Fulton Lewis, of Chevy Chase, display of dahlias and other flower arrangements; W. H. Gannoway, miniature and pompom dahlias; Mrs. R. Rubott of Takoma Park, specimens of orchid-flowering dahlias; Mrs. Mary Porter and Mrs. M. H. Sutton, arrangements of other flowers.

Judges were Miss Virginia M. Parten, art instructor at Taft Junior High School, who judged artistic arrangements, and Prof. J. B. S. Norton, University of Maryland, who judged all other classes.

Other members were Miss Alice Besore, Mrs. R. C. Peterson, Mrs. August Hoffman, Mrs. Ida McKeown, Mrs. George N. Wells, Mrs. Mary S. Porter, Mrs. A. L. Foster, Mrs. H. M. Crosswhite, W. E. Bower, F. Fulton, A. G. Davis, H. H. Sachtler, W. H. Gannaway, H. I. G. Goddard, W. H. Hosterman, R. C. Kinner, August Hoffman, Mrs. W. Lewis, E. W. Harkins, Robert E. Lee and Sewell Shreve.

Labor Officer Kills Self by Gas Here

Paul V. Friedman, 27, member of the Pacific Coast Labor Bureau, in San Francisco, was found dead last night in the gas-filled kitchen of an apartment at 1820 Clydesdale place northwest.

Coroner A. Magruder McDonald said a certificate of suicide would be issued.

Friedman, his head on a pillow, was discovered by Amos Mayhew, gas company employe sent to investigate the apartment after meters recorded an abnormal flow of gas. He had been dead about eight hours, according to Dr. McDonald.

Friedman, a former resident of Washington, returned here Friday from California. He last was seen alive early yesterday by James Jackson, apartment janitor.

Mid-City Unit Asks Cut, Not Budget Rise

Citizens Association Condemns $65,000,000 Expense Plan.

Heavy Increases Cited in Resolution; Tax Is Opposed.

The Midcity Citizens Association, in its first fall meeting, held at Thomson School, Twelfth and L streets, last night adopted a resolution protesting the proposed $65,000,000 District budget for the fiscal year 1939.

Citing bureau estimate increases ranging from 50 per cent to 168 per cent, the citizens' group associated themselves with the Washington Board of Trade and Federation of Businessmen's Associations in demanding that requests of the various departments be drastically reduced.

Other resolutions adopted by the association called for repeal of the gross receipts tax, restoration of the old No. 2 Precinct Police Station on Fifth street between M and N and priority for the Midcity district in Washington's street-widening program.

A resolution ordering investigation of alleged immorality and spread of social disease in connection with overnight parking of interstate vans was referred to the executive committee.

Association members charged that disorderly and promiscuous conduct was common among drivers who park their vans in the neighborhood of New York avenue between Fifth and Seventh streets.

Dr. Emma H. Eichelberger, employed in the Social Hygiene Clinic at 512 I street, stated that women venereal patients often meet drivers on the sidewalk in front of the clinic.

Territory Causes Row.

Emphatic opposition to encroachment allegedly threatened by an Edgewood citizens organization was expressed last night by E. B. Lawless, president of the North Capitol Citizens Association, at its first fall meeting held in the McKinley School.

Headed by Robert Yost, former president of the North Capitol group, several members supported Lawless in his assertion that no territory would be ceded to the proposed Edgewood Society. Yost said that the area involved embraces a trianle bounded by North Capitol street Michigan avenue, and Trinity College grounds and Glenwood Cemetery. He added that he thought the encroachment was accidental.

The association approved a resolution, proposed by Yost, urging District authorities to pave an alley connecting Girard street and Michigan avenue. The alley, said to be continually used by through traffic as well as by neighborhood residents, is "in deplorable condition," it was stated.

The need for traffic lights at "dangerous intersections" at Michigan avenue and North Capitol street and Michigan avenue and Lincoln road was also stressed.

Community activities scheduled for the Fall and Winter were outlined in a letter received by the association from Mrs. D. E. Middleton, secretary of the Langley-McKinley Community Center. The program includes meetings of the Boys' and Young Men's Club, a women's physical exercise group, classes in handicrafts and the arts, two drama groups and Sunday organ recitals in the McKinley auditorium.

Mrs. Middleton and Miss Pauline Oak were commended by the secretary, James A. Crooks, for their work on "Our Constitution," a pageant presented last July.

The president appointed a nominating committee, including Mrs. F. L. Bach, Mrs. F. C. Ehling, John H. Hardie, Guy W. Numbers and C. A. Cavanaugh.

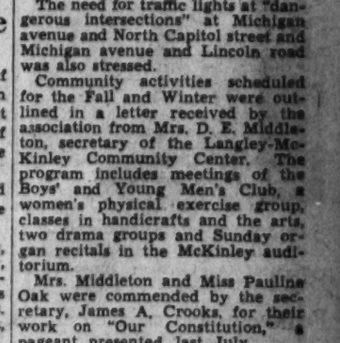
'Greater D. C.' Opposed

Formation of a "metropolitan city" by consolidation of a number of nearby Maryland communities was discussed last night at the first fall meeting of the Prince Georges Chamber of Commerce.

Members unanimously adopted a resolution to oppose the suggestion made by the National Resources Committee that a number of the Maryland communities be made a part of Washington.

W. F. Mulligan, president of the organization, announced that a committee would be appointed at the meeting of the executive committee Monday night to discuss feasibility of consolidating such towns as Mount Rainier, Cottage City, Colmar Manor and Hyattsville into one metropolitan area.



Policeman Clings to Horse's Neck Four Blocks When Two Steeds Run Away From Academy

Two horses took leave of absence from a riding academy on the east end of the Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge last night and cantered up Pennsylvania avenue.

On the way up the avenue, the runaways were frightened by automobile horns, traffic lights, neon signs and other things which, naturally, would make a horse wary.

So they bolted. And then things began to happen.

At Sixth street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast they were spotted by Policemen R. G. Kirby and J. F. Bowers, who were patrolling in a cruiser.

Clinging to the running board, Bowers urged Kirby to trail one of the horses, which had a seven-length start on the police car.

The other horse took another course.

Dodging in and out of traffic, the police car drew abreast of the galloping stallion, and Kirby threw his arms about the beast and clung on for dear life.

Four blocks the steed carried his man.

Horse Doping Hinted at Havre de Grace as Favorite Falters in Race

GULDAHL, COOPER DEFEATED IN $12,000 TOURNEY

The Washington Post Spor

16 WASHINGTON: TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1937 X ****

This Morning

Step Right Up, Meet Mr. Haworth.

By Shirley Povich.

"In-trow-du-cing . . . in this corner . . . from the Scottish Battalion . . . First Brigade . . . Australian Division . . . his weight . . . 126 . . . Paul E. Haworth."

And if he wanted to be more specific, the British announcer at the Allied Armies tournament bouts in London during that summer of 1918 might have added: . . . The only American who fought with the Australian troops in the Battle of Dardanelles—and he doesn't scare easily!"

POVICH.

He's the District of Columbia's new boxing commissioner now—Paul E. Haworth, attorney at law, former clerk of the War Claims Commission and a Kansas boy who didn't make good in his first attempt to enlist in the Australian army.

They didn't want any blarsted foreigners fighting for the King, they told 19-year-old Haworth that August day in Sydney, New South Wales, in 1914, a few days after England got mixed up in the war. It wasn't going to last long, anyway, the stiff-necked recruiting officer told the lad who was vacationing in Sydney before the start of college in the fall.

• • • •

They took him next day, though, when he told another recruiting officer he lived in Canada. They took him and shipped him to Egypt with 20,000 Australian troops for a siege of training and marching behind what Haworth is convinced is the world's worst marching music—a Scottish bagpipe band.

• • • •

The British were having an awful time of it in the spring of 1915 trying to batter their way through the Dardanelles to Constantinople and thus attempting to draw the attention of the German forces away from the Western European front. Seems that those forts the British had erected for the Turks in the amicable days of the decade before were too well built and resisted every assault.

PAUL HAWORTH.

• • • •

But on April 25, the Australians went overboard from the British gunboats and by dint of wading through water up to their armpits, landed from small boats near the Gallipolis shore. They equipped Haworth and his crowd with three days' rations—one in their haversacks and two in their packs—and then the command went out to heave away their packs. From that Sunday to the next Friday when supplies arrived, the Australians subsisted on one day's scanty rations—and no water.

• • • •

Well, the Anzacs dug in there on their little strip of land and waited, just waited, until the order came to advance nearly three months later, on August 6. Their trenches weren't 20 yards removed from the Turks' and when they wern't slinging hand grenades at each other the Australians and the Turks were downright friendly. Some of 'em could talk English and one Turk in particular had been a native of Brisbane. He was a waiter in a well-known restaurant there and said he was delighted to be so close to some of his own friends. "Here, split this up among you; no sense of being mad at each other!" he shouted across to the Anzacs. Three Australian soldiers reached for the object the Turk threw. They never found out what it was. It exploded, killing all three.

• • • •

"We got the orders, finally, to go over the top about 5 p. m. on August 6," Haworth narrated. "They told us they had silenced all the Turks' field pieces and driven the Turks out of their trenches. All we had to do was go into those empty trenches and occupy 'em.

• • • •

"Well, that was a fine piece of silencing they did for us. Eleven hundred of us went over the top and they murdered us. Those Turk trenches were alive with machine guns. Only 96 out of that 1,100 reached those trenches without a bullet or shrapnel in him. I spent the night in a shell hole with a

Full Inquiry Is Ordered On Carvola

Jockey Pulls Filly as She 'Staggers' in Race; Was Favorite.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Havre de Grace, Md., Sept. 27.—Stewards are investigating the possibility that E. K. Bryson's Carvola was the victim of tampering before her appearance in the Southfield Purse, today's feature race. The speedy daughter of Carlaris was installed the favorite in the mile and 70 yar : event, and was pulled up by Jockey Hilton Dabson after running in dull fashion for a half mile.

An examination was ordered after the race and the track veterinarian reported that he could find nothing wrong with the filly. Stewards, however, ordered a thorough examination and said that they would issue a report tomorrow. Jockey Dabson told track officials that Carvola refused to exert herself from the start and staggered as if she would fall after she reached the backstretch.

The race was won by Threadneedle, Western-owned filly, which turned in her second victory of the meeting. Jockey Basil James had the mount and brought her home 2 lengths in advance of Coronium. Careful Miss was third in the field of five.

Threadneedle had a host of backers at a $6.50 mutuel and ran the distance in 1:43.4-5.

The combination of a favorite, Sir Steel, and a $61.60 shot, De Chile, served to bring a $352.30 daily double. Sir Steel was ridden by Jockey James. De Chile was making his first start on any track and outclassed his opposition to win by six lengths.

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt watched his Tedium graduate from the maiden ranks in the third race. Backed into $3.80 favoritism, the son of Teddy simply galloped along in front. The fourth race found Evening Tide winning at an $11.50 payoff. Little Shaver, winner of two racese here, was out of the money after getting away poorly.

Little Shaver, the favorite, had trouble, breaking sideways while Evening Tide was away winging. Jockey De Camillis rushed Little Shaver up to press the ultimate winner's pace, but the Bomar sprinter tired in the stretch and finished fifth. Evening Tide won by two lengths over Biologist, with Merrymood third. The winner was clocked in 1:12.4-5 for the 6 furlongs.

Kinross, paying a $13.40 mutuel, won by a half length over Combatant in the seventh race. Silver Braid was third in the limit field of 12. Sir Windsor took a photo verdict over Sea Gull in the sixth race to return $11.70.

Dixie Howell Makes Debut As Redskin

Brooklyn Eagles Face Rose Bowl Hero on Sunday.

Millard (Dixie) Howell, Alabama's Rose Bowl hero of New Year's Day, 1936, will be in the Redskins' line-up against the Brooklyn Eagles on Sunday at Griffith Stadium, Coach Ray Flaherty announced with undisguised pleasure after his squad's workout yesterday.

Sadly in need of a running attack to vary Sammy Baugh's passing, the Redskins will be bolstered by Howell's presence in the line-up for the first time. The slick-running halfback has been confined to the bench with an ailing knee, but yesterday for the first time gave evidence that he is ready to play.

Flaherty this week is taking the lid off the Redskins' entire repertoire of plays and with Cliff Battles losing the rust of inactivity, a more deceptive offensive is promised. Howell, who will replace Baugh as the Redskins' pass heaver whenever Flaherty deems it advisable to rest Slinging Sammy, is also regarded as Baugh's superior at the running game.

The Dodgers' stock in the National League soared over the week-end when they romped to a 9-7 victory over the Cleveland Rams, and the Redskins, after their loss to the Cardinals, will be risking their Eastern Division championship ambitions.

With Ben Smith nursing an injured collar bone in Georgetown University Hospital, an injury that will keep him out of the line-up for three weeks, Flaherty yesterday drafted Vic Carroll for center duty to understudy the veteran Ed Kawal.

BASEBALL'S BIG SIX!

As six of the major league clubs were idle yesterday, there was little activity among the batting leaders, and only one change in the "big six." Charlie Gehringer, of the Tigers, going hitless against the Indians, dropped three points to .377, but still held a wide margin over Lou Gehrig and Cecil Travis. The other members of the "big six" did not play.

Giants Wallop Bees Twice, 5-4 and 3-1

Increase Lead Over Cubs to 4½ Games; Lohrman Wins His First Start, Holds Boston to 5 Hits; Lou Fette Loses Second Contest.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 27.—The league-leading Giants tacked another half game to their margin over the Chicago Cubs today by sweeping through a double-header with the Boston Bees. The Terrymen won the first, 5 to 4, on six hits, and the nightcap, 3 to 1 on four hits.

The Giants broke a 1-to-1 tie in the eighth inning of the second game after Jim Turner, bidding for his twentieth victory of the year, had set them down in 1-2-3 order for six innings.

Burgess Whitehead singled with one out and then came the break. Turner fumbled a bunt by Bill Lohrman, got Joe Moore, the next batter, to force Lohrman, but had the game shot out from under him as Dick Bartell rifled a double to left center that scored both Whitehead and Moore.

Lohrman, a 20-game winner for Baltimore of the International, thus came out on top in his first big-league start.

Cards Are Jubilant, But Bergman Worries

By Lewis F. Atchison.

"Dutch" Bergman, the noted Brookland bird fancier, returned from Buffalo last night with his prize collection of Redbrids, fresh from their decisive and somewhat surprising victory over Canisius Sunday.

But while Bergman's birdmen jubilantly preened their feathers and smilingly acknowledged the cheers of a small band of faithful supporters on hand to welcome them home he immediately began worrying about the game with Loyola of the South coming up Saturday.

"The boys looked fine," he admitted, biting down on a cigar with emphasis. "Played heads-up ball every minute, showed plenty of aggressiveness and, best of all, came through without a serious injury. But how about Loyola? They won their opener handily, didn't they?"

Loyola . .on Easily.

Loyola did, whipping Spring Hill, 19-0, without trying in its first game under "Moon" Mullins, one of Rockne's last great Notre Dame fullbacks, but what about your line, it looked rather good didn't it?

"You bet it did," he replied. "And I'm gonna tell you something. If it plays as well against all the rest of our opponents—and we don't have any serious injuries, of course, I won't have any worries up there. Ambrose, Katalinas, Sochon, well, all of 'em played great ball. I just hope they continue their great work. But, let me tell you something else, Loyola is going to have a good line, too, this Saturday. Big and fast, and they . . ."

But wait up a minute, "Dutch," what about the backfield, it looked pretty smooth, didn't it.

"Oh, yes. Our backfield clicked nicely. Timing was improved. Bud Munhall selected his plays well and Carroll, Vidnovic and Pirro worked nicely with him. They make a nice backfield, but Loyola has a back who really figures to give us some trouble Saturday."

You mean Clay Calhoun, don't you "Dutch."

Have Great Back.

"Yes, that's the boy and he IS a back. You know, Carroll and Vidnovic supply our speed, deception, punting and passing. We have Pirro for the tough line plunger who can get those 2 yards when you need them for a first down, and Munhall makes a nice field general. But this Calhoun is a one-man backfield.

"If there's anything he can't do I don't know about it," Bergman clamped down on his stubby stogie emphatically and continued. "He gave us 60 minutes of trouble last year. Every time he took the ball it was like a tank piling into a frame dwelling. He kicks, passes and runs like an All-American, and if we expect to win Saturday we've got to stop that boy. Yessir, if he gets going we're sunk."

Greenbrier Military Team Seeks Games

Lewisburg, W. Va., Sept. 27.—Greenbrier Military School wishes to schedule a home football game for Saturday, October 2, to fill a date left open when a college whose freshmen Greenbrier has played some years decided to eliminate their freshmen and reserve teams.

Coach G. E. Turley should be reached immediately by telegraph or telephone by any high, preparatory or college freshmen coach desiring to have his team brought to Lewisburg Saturday. Greenbrier also has October 3 open and athletic authorities would be willing to schedule a good home game.

Navy Scrimmages In Monday Drill

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 27.—Breaking through a practice of years, Coach Hank Hardwick ordered a scrimmage this afternoon for the players who took part in the match game Saturday against William and Mary.

With two exceptions the starting varsity was the same as that which began the game against the Indians. Capt. Du Bois, right guard, and Cy Emrich, right end, were rested today, their places being taken, respectively, by Herman Spector and George Ghesquiere.

Irwin Fike, the lusty left end, who did not play Saturday, also rested today, though he was in uniform. Coach Hardwick explained that Fike has an old injury and is being rested, but could get in the game at any time.

Guldahl Beaten

HENRY PICARD, The Winner.

RALPH GULDAHL, The Loser.

'By' Nelson, Picard Top Rich Event

Favorites Upset in Semi-Finals; Guldahl Bows by 7 and 6.

By the Associated Press.

Belmont, Mass., Sept. 27.—Two Pennsylvania golfing neighbors and Ryder Cup teammates, Henry Picard, of Hershey, and Byron Nelson, of Reading, today qualified for the final round of the $12,000 Belmont Open match play tourney with lop-sided victories over more eminent rivals.

Picard advanced into the battle for the winner's share of the largest purse ever put up for a final in the history of American golf, $5,000, by overwhelming Ralph Guldhal, of Chicago, the National Open champion, 7 and 6, with a 6 under par performance for the 30 holes of their semifinal. Nelson drubbed "Lighthorse Harry" Cooper, another Chicagoan and the season's leading money winner, by a 5 and 4 margin.

The Hershey star, competing for the first time in his native State since his caddying days in historic Plymouth, was never down to the Open titlist at any stage of their match. He put together a 68, 3 under par for the 6,517-yard course, this morning to go to lunch with a four-hole lead. He was also 4 under for his 12 afternoon holes, during which he picked up three more against the champion, who used up 121 strokes for the day's 30 holes, 3 over par.

Picard won 10 holes against Guldahl's three and had four birdies and two eagle-threes, both gained by reaching the green of the 500-yard fourth with terrific drives and well-aimed iron shots. Guldahl was under par four times during the two rounds and two of his birdies won holes for him.

Cooper, however, had a two-hole lead on Nelson after their first six, but the former started three-putting at the seventh and his margin was wiped out when Nelson got around his half-stymie on the eighth green for a birdie three. They made the turn all square.

"Lighthorse" Harry made another threat, rapping in an eight-foot putt for a birdie 3 on the eleventh green, but he flubbed his second shot on the next hole to drop back on even terms and was never up after Nelson got the first of his two eagle 3s on the 512-yard twelfth.

Nelson had a 3-hole lead on Cooper when he ended his morning round with a 71, against a 74, and he went to 5 up by winning two of the first three afternoon holes where Cooper's wood shots became erratic.

From three on, Cooper managed to hold his opponent even, winning two, losing two and halving seven before the match ra nout on the thirty-seventh green.

Cooper, who won $12,273.69 in his previous starts this season, received $700 when he was eliminated, as did Guldahl. Win or lose, Picard will move into second place on the 1937 prize list, through Slammin Sam Snead, beaten in the second round, for he is assured of at least the $2,000 runner-up's share, which will boost his total of $10,000. Nelson came here as golf's twelfth leading money-winner, with a totalf o $3,562.

Baptism!

Krakauskas to Receive Baptism of Fire Against Yanks.

Blond Joe Krakauskas, who looms as a powerful figure in Washington's 1938 pitching plans, today faces his severest test of the season. He will go to the mound against the New York Yankees in the opening game of a double-header at Griffith Stadium.

The twin bill today was occasioned by the postponement of yesterday's game on account of wet grounds and will find a pair of Washington pitching rookies opposing the Yankees if Ken Chase's arm has recovered from a mild soreness.

Jimmy DeShong will pitch the second game if Chase is granted an additional day of rest.

Today's program will inaugurate a series of five double-headers on successive afternoons by the Nats. Following the departure of the Yankees tonight, the Boston Red Sox will invade Griffith Stadium for double bills tomorrow and Thursday and the Nats will then entrain for two double-headers at Philadelphia.

Krakauskas, who broke into the league with a flourish by holding the Athletics to one hit in a seven-inning relief shift, has since beaten the Browns and Indians and has lost only one decision.

Hartnett Equals Schalk's Record

Cincinnati, Sept. 27 (AP).—Gabby Hartnett, veteran Chicago backstop, equaled a major league mark in today's Cincinnati-Chicago contest. It was the 100th game he has caught this season, giving him a record of 12 seasons in which he has caught that many or more games, equaling the record set up by Ray Schalk, former Chicago White Sox star.

Jeffra, Archibald and Gevinson Headline Benefit Boxing Show Oct. 18

Police, Fire Departments To Aid Show

Griffith Gives Stadium Free for Children's Fund Drive.

By Jack Paulus.
Sports Editor of The Post.

Harry Jeffra, the little Baltimore whirlwind who defeated Sixto Escobar for the world's bantamweight championship at Mike Jacobs' "Carnival of Champions" last Thursday night, Joey Archibald, a Providence puncher, who has become a local favorite, and Lou Gevinson, the District's candidate for world featherweight honors, will headline a boxing show at Griffith Stadium October 18 to set up a free lunch fund for District needy school children.

This announcement was made late last night by Goldie Ahearn, who teams up with Joe Turner as the District's lone fight promotional team.

Ahearn and Turner plan to pitch either Jeffra or Gevinson against Archibald. Matt Twomey, manager of the Southwest slugger, said, "We're ready to meet Archibald any time. Lou wants to show Washington that his defeat at Joey's hands was one of those accidents. We'll go any time Goldie and Joe say the word." If Jeffra comes through, Gevinson will be retained on the show with another opponent.

Max Waxman, Jeffra's pilot, was not as enthused about the show as Twomey. In a wire to Ahearn last night Waxman said, "Will be in Washington Tuesday evening regarding benefit show."

The benefit affair, a civic drive to provide funds for free lunches for needy school children, was originally scheduled for October 11. Following a luncheon of the committee in charge at the Mayflower yesterday the date was advanced to October 18 in an effort to line up a better show and enable the committee to have more time for ticket sales.

Jeffra, the new bantam king, has signed for an over-the-weight match with an unnamed opponent in Philadelphia next month and must give Sixto Escobar, the dethroned champion, a return title match within 90 days. Having shown here several times in the past, however, it is entirely within the realms of possibility that he will accept the Washington offer.

Supporting matches were being planned by Ahearn and will probably include such well-known local figures as Sixto Escobar, Eddie Hogan, Jorge Brescia, Bob Tow, Cowboy Howard Scott, Johnny Dean, Georgie Abrams, and a well-known colored fighter.

The District Police and Fire departments will co-operate with the benefit venture by taking active part in the ticket sales. Assistant Superintendent L. I. T. Edwards, of the Police Department, and Battalion Chief S. T. Porter, of the firemen, were on hand at yesterday's luncheon to assure the committee of the service divisions' co-operation.

Members of the committee who attended yesterday's luncheon were Mrs. John Boyle, jr., Donald I. Sheehan, Arthur C. Smith, Dean John R. Fitzpatrick, Frank Buckley, Joe Turner and Goldie Ahearn.

D. C. Women In Match Play

By the Associated Press.

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 27.—Mrs. Opal S. Hill, the Kansas City, Mo., veteran of the fairways, toured the Belle Meade Country Club course in 74 strokes today, 2 under par, to win the medal in the second annual Southeastern Women's Invitation Golf tournament.

Seven strokes back in second place were Jane Cothran Jameson and Kathryn Hemphill, both of Columbia, S. C. Helen Dettweiler, of Washington, D. C., carded 82, one stroke in front of Marion Miley, Cincinnati star.

Other low scorers were Martha Daniel, Rome, Ga., 84; Mrs. Bert Weil, Cincinnati, 85, and Mrs. R. H. Trilck, of Birmingham, and Ellen Kincaid, Washington, D. C., with 90 stroke each.

Cubs Trim Reds, 7 to 4, In Opener

By the Associated Press.

Cincinnati, Sept. 27.—The Chicago Cubs, still trying to catch up with the first-place Giants, won the opening game of a series with the Reds today, 7 to 4, but saw their deficit increased to four and a half games as the Giants won two from Boston.

Behind fancy flinging by Curt Davis, who shut out the Reds from the second through the eighth, Charley Grimm's crew unloaded an 11-hit attack, featuring Stan Hack and Phil Cavaretta, that scored in the first, second, sixth and seventh on Al Hollingsworth.

Hack got three hits, one a triple that opened the two-run seventh, while Cavarretta weighed in with three singles.

A walk to Billy Herman and Gabby Hartnett's single put Chicago in the lead right at the start, a lead that was short-lived as the Reds put together four hits and a wild throw by "Tut" Stainback for three runs in their half of the first.

The Cubs tied it up in the second, Herman's double driving home two runs; went out front in the sixth, as Augie Galan's two-bagger scored Cavarretta and Stainback, who had singled, and picked up two more in the seventh, on Hack's triple, a double by Frank Demaree and another one-bagger by Cavarretta.

A's-Newsom Split Pair, 6-2 and 0-6

Big Buck Wins First But Is Driven to Cover Early in Second.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Sept. 26.—Big Buck Newsom and the Red Sox split with the Philadelphia Athletics today when the big Boston righthander, after winning the opener, started the second game and was shelled off the mound in three innings.

Two home runs by Jimmy Foxx that accounted for four runs, carried Newsom and Boston to a 6-2 victory in the first game, but the Boston bats were silent and Newsom wild as the Athletics won, 6-0, in the abbreviated nightcap, called after the sixth inning because of darkness.

Newsom turned in a five-hitter in the opener as his mates blasted George Caster off the hill in the first inning with a fur-run splurge. Herman Fink, who relieved Caster, was hit with regularity, but quelled any sustained attacks.

By banging out two homers, Foxx ran his total for the season to 36.

Court Rules O'Hara Victor

Providence, R. I., Sept. 27 (AP).—Walter E. O'Hara, embroiled for weeks in a heated battle over his post as president and managing director of the wealthy Narragansett Race Track, today won a major victory, when a superior court judge turned down a plea for a receivership for the track.

Declaring no "compelling need" had been shown, Judge Alexander L. Churchill granted the motion of track attorneys for dismissal of the receivership petition filed September 16 by Henry E. Crowe, Pawtucket attorney and former probate judge.

Judge Churchill, in an eight-page opinion, held that appointment of a receiver would be a "distress signal" which might be followed by lowering of the track's credit.

The next action facing O'Hara is a hearing set for Thursday in district court here on criminal libel charges brought by William E. Beehan, Larchmont (N. Y.) advertising man. Beehan charged O'Hara called him a "briber" in a midnight extra edition of O'Hara's Providence Star-Tribune.

TigersTriumph asAuker Wins 16th; Decisive Run Forced In.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Sept. 27.—The Indians said their 1937 good-by to Cleveland today with a 2-1 loss to Detroit's Tigers.

Eldon Auker, submarine right-hander of the Tigers, torpedoed the Indians when trouble threatened, and won his sixteenth game, against nine defeats, even though the Indians outbatted his teammates seven hits to four.

Detroit's Jo Jo White opened the game with a triple and scored on an infield out. In the seventh, with the bases loaded and only one man down, Kroner batted for Harder and hit into a double play.

Hughes made the Indians' only score on a pass, Averill's single, White's fumble and Trosky's fly.

Titans Drop Laterals.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 27.—Lateral passes will be used sparingly by Detroit University this season, at least against teams in the Titans' class. Coach "Gus" Dorais concedes their value as crowd pleasers, but doesn't think it worth the risk of losing the ball involved.

POST NOTES ON Fishin'

BY BILL ACKERMAN

ACKERMAN

It is an odd fact, but to be found in almost every section where several or more fishermen are working, that when the ordinary run of the mill fishing slacks down a little, there is generally one or two of them that are not satisfied to stand by and wait for it to pick up again. They go hunting to see if it isn't possible that there is a bet that they have overlooked—and they usually find something that is well worth while.

Take Capt. Jim Whaley at Ocean City, Md., when the white marlin left the Jacks Pot this month; he didn't wait around hoping that they might come back; he teamed up with Capt. William Bunting and went hunting for them.

They found them too, but only after a 7-hour run that took them to the Gulf Stream, some 70-odd miles offshore, with a temperature of 15 to 20 degrees higher than that of the water inshore.

They hooked 11 white marlin, of which they boated two; a blue marlin, estimated to weigh well over 200, was hooked, broke the rod and then after the line had been transferred to another cut it with his bill. Two tuna came alongside that were over 10 feet in length, which transferred to poundage means from 700 to 900. And those spoil-sports of the offshore fisherman, sharks, were every bit as plentiful as they ever get at Bimini, noted far and near as having them in great numbers.

This fishing is something to think about, regardless of the fact that it takes big able boats with twin engine installations and two good men to run them. It is safe to say that it won't be long before any fairly decent day will find not only one or two, but many sport fishermen working the waters of the stream off Ocean City.

Channel bass are back for their last 30 to 40-day stand in the Virginia surf from Cape Charles up to Ocean City. Some fairly large ones have been taken during the past week, a few in excess of 50 pounds. A report from Wachapregue gives the boats from three to eight a day. Not bad fishing at any time, and, in this section, good sometimes until well into November.

The run of Spanish mackerel in the bay this summer has more than one fisherman wise to the fineness of their flesh when broiled. While most of them have come from the nets (those at Flag Pond just above Cove Point have lifted them, from a dozen to several bushels almost daily for the past two months) still many anglers have been lucky enough to get in them for a few, both bottom fishing and trolling. The latter method is the normal procedure in catching them, while the former is just as much out of the ordinary as is their being in the bay at all. It is to be hoped that they will show up every year, but far from likely.

There have been less fishing places than the fingers on one hand that can point back over the summer as having consistently good angling. Shadyside and the whole West River area is one of them. Not only past, but present, and in all likelihood to continue through this month and maybe part of November.

Although consistent in their striking, it doesn't mean that all an angler has to do to catch them is to go down. The weather has considerable bearing on their coming to the top to feed. As a rule the late evening fishing is best, but only if it is fairly quiet. That shoal of rock that has been there ever since early June is still on the job, with plenty of big ones in it. The general average is from four to six pounds. The small blues are also there, out in front, as Shadysiders say, which means anywhere from Niggerhead Buoy to the black can off Cedarhurst. Four pounds is about the best that can be taken, but the trout average somewhere close to four, and many of them going up to between six and seven pounds. Outside of Piney Point, the best place that we can recommend with more than a good chance to come home with a real string of fish.

Two local anglers, Aubrey Harris and Jack Saks, have every earmark of being real fishermen, and this is conceded them in spite of the fact that previous engagements always seemed to keep them from going with us to Ocean City for marlin, to Atlantic City for tuna, or to the Fishing Fair at Solomons, but from now on Post Notes must have authentic evidence if it is to use any news of fish caught by Aubrey Harris, for the battle isn't on only while actually catching fish, but continues on and on, even to the extent of sending several telegrams from New York when Jack isn't present to do verbal battle. We like to see a good fight anytime—we'll even go beyond that and help, but there must be some Scotch in our makeup, for if you want to play, you've got to pay—the freight both ways on the telegrams.

He couldn't negotiate a transfer to the American Army when the United States entered the war, Haworth related. The American consul in Paris was politely told by British authorities that they wouldn't transfer Haworth. "Not that I was so important," he explained, "but those British just figured it the business way they had taken me as a raw rookie when I was worth only so many pounds, so many shillings, so many sixpence, and now that I was a trained soldier worth so many more pounds, so many more shillings, so many more sixpence, that they were entitled to keep me. They didn't want to take a loss on the deal."

He had done some boxing back in high school at Lawrence, Kans., and thought he was pretty good until a British featherweight bumped him off in the first round of the first of the weekly tournament bouts. But he went on to the finals of the featherweight division in his next try, winning four bouts in the same night before he was licked.

"But I wouldn't say that the competition was so tough in those fights. Joe Beckett, the British heavyweight, was in the tournament and he won four straight bouts by knockouts. That ought to be the tip off."

Hanson, Cox On Mat Card

A Frenchman and a Dutchman will have it out on the semiwindup bout to the feature wrestling match between Joe Cox and Billy Hanson Thursday night at Turner's Arena.

Henri Piers, the Flying Dutchman, and Al Mercier, the Flying Frenchman, yesterday were booked for a 45-minute battle.

Mercier, who campaigns out of Boston, but was born in Bordeaux, came up from a preliminary role to the headline spot last Thursday night, only to lose to Ray Steele. Piers is a crafty grappler, and is quite a favorite with Washington fans.

Phillies Bat Hard to Beat Dodgers, 11-3

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, Sept. 27.—Chuck Klein's thirteenth and fourteenth homers of the year and another by Earl Browne with two men on were the big blows today as the Phillies pounded out a dozen hits to whip the Dodgers, 11 to 3.

The defeat ran Brooklyn's losing streak to 12 games and cut their sixth-place lead over the Phils to a game and a half.

Claude Passeau, winning his fourteenth decision, went the route for the Phils and gave up nine hits. His mates landed on three of the four Brooklyn pitchers, only Buck Marrow escaping unharmed in the one inning he worked.

Roy Henshaw, who started and was charged with the defeat, and Jim Lindsey gave up nine runs, the Phils getting their last two on three hits and two walks off Long Tom Winsett, Burleigh Grimes' problem outfielder who hurled the last two frames.

Spencer and Albertus Finish Second With 135.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

George Diffenbaugh and Volney Burnett, Indian Spring's top-ranking pro-amateur duo, were crowned District champions yesterday as they toured Manor's woody layout in a best ball of 133 strokes, 5 under regulation figures over the 36 holes. It was the first city pro-amateur championship to be held.

Cliff Spencer hit a birdie streak in the afternoon round to finish in second place with his simon-pure partner, Bob Albertus, at 135, while Frank Cunningham and Russ Hollebaugh collected show money at 136.

The winning duo played the morning nines in one under par each to lead by a stroke at the halfway mark over Cunningham and Hollebaugh. They increased the lead with a subpar 32 in the woods nine of the afternoon round and played the next in one under, despite a bogey five on the finishing hole.

Burnett, who shot six birdies over the day-long play, started the afternoon by scoring 2-3 on the second and third holes and putted for them on the next four. After driving on the seventh he suddenly doubled with indigestion pains. After a brief rest he continued play and although troubled throughout the day's play he completed the round and helped on several holes from their to the finish.

All in Par.

Spencer and Albertus played every hole in par in the morning and continued through the fifth hole of the next round. Albertus rammed home a birdie 3 at this point and Spencer followed on the eighth, eleventh and twelfth to go 4 under par. They slipped over on thirteen to lose their final chance to overtake the leaders.

A pair of sand-wedge shots on the third and sixteenth holes by Frank Cunningham that found the cup were the telling blows in the third place duo nosing out the host pair, Al Treder and Harry Pitt. Both shots were over 30 yards from the cup and saved a total of at least three strokes.

Burnett and Diffenbaugh collected 11 birdies between them over the distance. The Four Corners professional was usually steady, but when he slipped over his partner was waiting with a par or birdie. The final hole was their jinx, losing two strokes with a 5 each time.

Roland MacKenzie and Billy Shea scored the lowest nine of the day, a 30 on the woods course in the afternoon. Cunningham and Hollebaugh boasted a "hot" streak on the second nine, with birdies on four of the first five holes, two by each.

Auto Racer Dies In Crash at Fair

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 27 (AP).—Howdy Cox, of Dallas, Tex., an automobile racer, was killed today in a crash at the State fair races. Four others were injured.

Those reported hurt were Vern Orenduff, Tallahassee, Fla.; Ted Horn and Duke Nalon, both of Chicago, and Carl Beal, Ashville, Ky.

The accident occurred on the twentieth lap of the feature event, the 25-mile sweepstakes. Nalon, leading by a lap, was declared winner after the crash.

Jacobs May Re-Match Farr With Max Baer

New York, Sept 27 (U.P.).—Promoter Mike Jacobs opened negotiations today to match former Heavyweight Maxie Baer and Tommy Farr, of Wales, in a 10-round return bout at Madison Square Garden in January.

Mike telephoned to Baer's manager, Ancil Hoffman, at Sacramento, Calif. Hoffman said the match was agreeable to him and Maxie if suitable terms could be arranged. Jacobs said Farr was willing to accept the bout, if he could make a trip home to Britain in the meantime. Mike may close the match when Farr returns to New York from Detroit tomorrow.

Feller to Barnstorm.

Cleveland, Sept. 27 (AP).—Bob Feller, the Iowa farm boy who came up from the cornbelt to the Cleveland Indians and equaled the major league strikeout record will display his pitching arm on a Western barnstorming tour at the close of the American League season.

Tulane-Auburn Ready.

New Orleans, Sept. 27.—One of the biggest October rivalries in Southern football will be renewed here Saturday when Tulane and Auburn meet. More than 20,000 fans are expected to witness the battle, which has become one of the guaranteed thrillers for New Orleans fans. The two battled to a scoreless tie last autumn.

Variety Club Honors Clark Griffith

D.C. Women Stars Play In National

Two of Washington's entrants in the forty-first women's national championship, starting next Monday, October 4, over the Memphis, Tenn., Country Club course, are among the last eight off the tee in the qualifying round.

Mrs. Bishop Hill, Chevy Chase, playing with Miss Elizabeth Falls Dunscomb, of the host club, starts play at 1:50, while Ellen Kincaid, Congressional, is next to the last starter, paired with Miss Margaret Giles, of Chattanooga.

Helen Dettweiler, the third local entrant, draws one of the outstanding favorites as a medal play partner, being paired with Kathryn Hemphill, the Columbia, S. C., sensation, at 10:05.

Marion Brown is paired with Miss Dorothy Kirby, of Atlanta, but the Manor representative is not expected to make the trip. Other pairings of local interest, find Mrs. T. E. Schluderberg, Baltimore Country Club, with Miss Ann Thompson, of Fort Worth, Tex., and Miss Lillie Harper, Princess Anne Club, of Virginia Beach, with Mrs. Sam, of New Orleans.

Pam Barton, the 1936 titleholder, will forego the defense of her crown, but otherwise the field includes virtually every top-ranking linkswoman, including the 1936 Irish champion, Miss Clarrie Tiernan.

Name golfers in the field include Maureen Orcutt, 1936 finalist, and Mrs. Edwin H. Vare, jr., six-time former champion. Marion Hollins, winner at Deal, N. J., 16 years ago; Beatrice Barrett, Marion Miley, Mrs. Opal Hill, Charlotte Glutting, Dorothy Traung, Betty Jameson, Virginia Guilfoil and Mrs. Russell Mann.

Prominent pairings for the qualifying rounds follow:

Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite, Fort Worth, Tex., and Charlotte Glutting, West Orange, N. J.; Jean Bauer, East Providence, R. I., and Marion Miley, Cincinnati; Mrs. Edwin H. Vare, jr., former champion, from Philadelphia, and Mrs. Marion Turpie, Plandome, N. Y.; Maureen Orcutt, Haworth, N. J., and Clara Callender, Del Monte, Calif.; Dorothy Traung, San Francisco, and Mrs. Russell Holman, Sound Beach, Conn.

Spartans Find Music And Football Don't Mix

East Lansing, Mich., Sept. 27.—Music and football do not mix—in practice. That's why the Michigan State College Band has a football field all its own on which to practice gridiron maneuvers. Heretofore the musicians have been trooping down to College Field nearly every afternoon of the autumn and sometimes they got in the way of football players; occasionally a prancing halfback came perilously close to having a tuba in his lap when the play finished.

Cornell Captain Back.

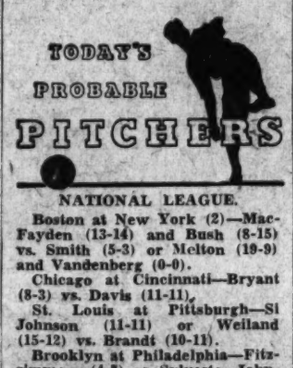
Cascabelito Wins.

Chicago, Sept. 27 (AP).—Cascabelito, a 4-year-old colt from the Argentine, making his first North American start, came from far back to win his debut at Hawthorne today. Cascabelito has been named for the Hawthorne Handicap next Saturday and qualified in fine style for his stake engagement.

Georgetown Challenged.

The Washington Cardinals challenge Georgetown A. C. to a baseball game for next Sunday. Call Manager Tass at AT. 7321-J.



NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Boston at New York (2)—MacFayden (13-14) and Bush (8-15) vs. Smith (5-3) or Melton (19-9) and Vandenberg (0-0).

Chicago at Cincinnati—Bryant (8-3) vs. Davis (11-11).

St. Louis at Pittsburgh—Si Johnson (11-11) or Weiland (15-12) vs. Brandt (10-11).

Brooklyn at Philadelphia—Fitzsimmons (4-7) vs. Sylvester Johnson (4-10) or Mulcahy (8-17).

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

New York at Washington (2)—Ruffing (8-17) and Wicker (6-3) vs. Weaver (12-8) and DeShong (14-13).

Detroit at St. Louis—Lawson (18-7) vs. Hildebrand (8-17).

Cleveland at Chicago (2)—Galehouse (9-14) and Hudlin (12-11) vs. Cox (0-0) and Lee (11-9).

Easton Fans Rally To Save Franchise

Easton, Md., Sept. 27 (AP).—The prospect of losing their Eastern Shore baseball franchise to Milford, Del., spurred Easton fans to prompt and effective action.

They arranged a rousing mass meeting, invited George (Doc) Jacobs, Villanova College coach who managed the club last season down, and at the end of the meeting announced:

"The franchise will remain in Easton. Mr. Jacobs will be back next year as manager and a committee is working out plans to meet his demands. Spring training will begin April 1 at Easton."

Huntington Takes S. Md. League Title

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 28.—Huntingtown won yesterday, 6 to 4, from Cedar Grove in a game which was decisive of the championship of the Southern Maryland League, and made good its sectional leadership by defeating Annapolis here this afternoon, 4 to 3, in a ten-inning contest.

Trailing 3-0 as it reached its half of the eighth, Annapolis tied the score when Wahler was passed and Myers, Johnson and Wynne singled successively and Scible made a poor throw toward home.

In the tenth Huntingtown won out when Dixon was hit by Watt, took third on Scible's single and scored on Hardesty's out.

'Masked Marvels' Goal Of Spartans' Grid Coach

East Lansing, Mich., Sept. 27.—Charley Bachman has promised to make "masked marvels" out of all his football players in practice sessions. A collision between two of his regulars in signal practice which sent both to the hospital for repairs gave Bachman the idea.

"Boxers wear head guards in training, why not some protection for football players in practice?" he asks. "A broken nose sustained in practice hurts just as much and keeps a player out of the game as long as one gained in a game."

Youngest Senior.

East Lansing, Mich., Sept. 27.—Michigan State College nominates Frank Gaines as the youngest college senior playing his third year of varsity football in the country. He is 19. Gaines won his first letter as a sophomore when he was only 17. He has been campus heavyweight champion boxer for two years and represented the Spartans in intercollegiate ring matches. He rules the senior class as president.

N. C. State Ready.

College Station, Raleigh, Sept. 25. North Carolina vs. N. C. State appears on the Southern Conference football schedule next week. These age-old grid rivals will clash in State's Riddick Stadium on Saturday afternoon, October 2, at 3 o'clock in what is carded as the feature game next week, involving Southern Conference schools.

Thirty-six Teams Enter Mixed Event

Post Entries May Boost Chevy Chase Field.

The District Golf Association's mixed two-ball handicap tournament, scheduled tomorrow at Chevy Chase, will boast a field of 32 teams. Post entries to be accepted by Dr. W. C. Barr, are expected to boost the field.

The first pair off the tee are among the favorites, Mrs. Betty Meckley and Volney Burnett, while other leading pairings include Mrs. Moorman and Billy Shea, Mr. and Mrs. Page Hufty, Mrs. Charlotte Stern and Tom Belshe, and Marion Brown and Buddy Sharkey.

Dr. Barr, secretary of the association, will personally accept entries through tonight. Suitable prizes will be awarded.

Impressive Record.

Lawrence, Kans., Sept. 27.—A football coach who had a squad of 85 boys in a high school of 165 pupils and whose teams lost only 13 games in 13 years is the new freshman coach at the University of Kansas. His name is Ralph L. Conger.

Jay Turner, G. W. Back, In Hospital

Fullback Injures Rib; Maryland's Line Is Shifted by Coach.

Jay Turner, rugged and ambitious fullback, threw George Washington's coaching staff into confusion yesterday when he bruised a rib in practice and had to be hauled off to the hospital for an examination.

The revealing rays of X-ray disclosed no break, nor even a fracture but physicians said that in any event the Colonial line-cracker will not be able to appear against Wake Forest Friday night in the season's inaugural. This announcement immediately raised Elmer Hogg to the status of starting back, provided, of course, the medicos' diagnosis is correct.

Meanwhile, the other positions are fairly well settled. Joey Kaufman, Bruce Mahan and "Nig" Tihila will round out the ball-carrying quartet. Al Hallberg will hold down center, surrounded by Izzy Weinberg and Guy Renzagliar at guards; Rebholtz and Schiering will be at tackles, and at the ends, well . . .

Leon Morris, Tippy Holt, Pete Yurwitz and Lloyd Berry have been fighting like a couple of League of Nations members for those positions since practice started. Morris has come along like autumn and has an honest-to-goodness chance of beating out Holt for the left wing berth, but Yurwitz and Berry are about on par.

At Maryland Coach Frank Dobson scrimmaged his first two elevens against the freshmen, and concluded by replacing John DeArmey, a tackle who started against St. John's Saturday, with Frank Albarino. The latter looked good, offensively and defensively against the Johnnies, and probably will get the call Saturday against Penn at Philadelphia.

Dobson is pleased with the performance of his backs, even though a majority of them need more hours of schooling than he can possibly give them before invading Quakertown. Frank Cronin, a 440-yard track star, was particularly impressive, and will be groomed for a climax runner.

Generalissimo Jack Hagerty returned to duty yesterday at headquarters and his presence was immediately felt on the practice field as the Hoyas plunged into their final week of practice for the curtain lifter with Shenandoah. Mr. Hagerty, after hearing reports of his confederates and viewing films of Saturday's scrimmage with the Frosh, let it be known in loud and no uncertain terms that he views with alarm the Hoyas' fate unless they improve.

Most of Hagerty's problems are centered in the backfield, where he has yet to find a smooth-functioning backfield. He left no doubt in the boys' minds that if marked improvement is not shown this week none of them will start Saturday. He'll probably use linemen both fore and aft.

De Chile Gets Away Last, Wins, Pays $61

Havre de Grace, Md., Sept. 27 (AP).—De Chile, T. Lee Evans' 2-year-old colt, went to the post here today for the first time, and:

1—Got confused and was last away;

2—Took over the lead after a short chase;

3—Held it easily to win the 6-furlong dash;

4—Paid $61.60 for $2;

Wheat Prices Advance With Heavy Exports

Foreign Purchases Were Estimated at 1,500,000 Bushels.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—Jumps of as much as 3¼ cents a bushel in Chicago wheat prices today resulted largely from big export purchasing estimated at 1,500,000 bushels.

Two-thirds of this export business apparently consisted of wheat from the United States, the remainder from Canada. More than half of the day's maximum upturn of wheat was held at the last, despite lively profit-taking on the part of holders.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1⅛@2⅛ cents a bushel higher than Saturday's finish, September $1.06¼@1.06⅝, December $1.07⅝@1.07¾, May $1.08¼@1.08⅜; corn unchanged to ½ cent lower, October 73⅛, December 64¾@65, May 65¼@65⅝; oats ¼ off to ½ up, December 30⅞@31, and rye varying from ¾ decline to an equal advance, December 80⅜@80½. Provisions results were unchanged to 10 cents dearer.

Business Trend Downward, but Above Year Ago

Industrial Production Drops With Lowering of Backlogs.

New York, Sept. 27.—In its weekly summary of the general business situation, the Standard Statistics Co., of New York, currently comments as follows:

"Numerous cross currents are still at work in the business situation, but in the main, the trend of activity is still moderately downward. A number of important industries are curtailing production, as backlogs built up earlier in the year are being steadily reduced and new orders have failed to come up to eariler expectations. This is particularly true in such industries as textiles, steel, copper and brass products, and shoes.

"Aggregate manufacturing activity is still holding well above last year's levels, but with the exception of the important automobile industry, none of the major lines is likely to show much, if any, improvement from present levels over the next several months. The trend of textile activity is still downward, mill schedules are being reduced and because of an uncertain price structure new buying continues light. Railroad equipment demand has been in the doldrums for several months, and the railroads are not likely to enter the market again in an important way until the wage and rate problems have been settled and the outlook for traffic is more clearly defined. Building activity is continuing to lag, and the seasonal trend will be downward until the early months of next year."

The Market

Special Correspondent.

Stocks Higher at Open Then Decline and Recover in Late Trading.

New York, Sept. 27.—Government bonds were rather steady and others swung with stocks, which were erratic, but closed with gains in nearly all on a turnover of around 2,200,000 shares. Commodities were lower, with the exception of grain, the trading element finding the market sympathetic with stocks. December wheat rose 2⅛ to 107¾ cents a bushel.

Many persons in the financial community went home over the week-end with reinforced doubts over the outlook for business, doubts rooted in the Administration's general policy with respect to capital. On his Western tour, the President restates his unchanged intention to continue with his distribution-of-wealth program, repeats his honeyed assurances that no one need worry about the Government debt. It is essentially the New Deal's readiness to toss wealth around willy-nilly—that is, the taxpayers' wealth—that is now causing so much distrust among the producers of wealth, reflected in the stock market. Without a stimulus to production of wealth, there isn't much point in talking about distribution of wealth.

That is the situation with credit. Ever since the Government's inflationary program began in 1933, or a year or two before, the supply of credit and money has been overabundant. Right now, in spite of the gold sterilization program and the jacking up of bank reserves, excess credit ready for use far exceeds any figure ever before considered necessary to carry on business at much higher rates of operation and price levels than now obtain. The trouble is far from being any lack of credit, or fear that a shortage will develop. What makes businessmen hesitate is that they won't come out ahead if they do use the credit; that their profits will be taken away if made, and that with rising costs, countless ways to get into labor difficulties, and harrying by the Government, it will be impossible or not worth while to try for profits.

Something Else Needed.

Those uncertainties make, to say the least, futile the successive attempts of the Government to force more credit into use. When what is needed is a little reassurance of Government good will toward business and common sense in conducting Government affairs, what is obtained is a rather panicky manifesto on credit, issued each time the stock market sinks to new low levels. All informed people know that easy money was not in danger a month ago when the Federal Reserve Bank of New York was forced to cut its discount rate from 1 per cent to one-half of 1 per cent, the lowest on record for any central bank.

They knew equally well that, two weeks later when the Treasury announced it would pour $300,000,000 of sequestrated gold into the credit market, no new need for credit had developed. They are aware that this morning's news of further removal of credit restrictions was quite unnecessary. The inescapable conclusion is therefore that, in spite of recent optimistic addresses by Cabinet members and others on the prosperous state of business, the fall in stock prices has raised the wind in Washington almost to gale force.

Late Rally.

Stocks opened moderately higher, with short covering bring 1 to 4 point gains in a few stocks. The buying soon gave way when margin selling reappeared, and by noon the whole market was descending rapidly with volume large enough to send the stock ticker behind the trading. Activity lessened as a slow rally got under way, and in the last hour improvement again set in, with a late ticker at times.

Steel had an erratic day. It opened 2½ points higher at 82½, sold down to 77¼ and ralled above 80 in the late dealings. In the market's late best, Chrysler got up 5 points, General Motors rose more than 2 points and a wide list regained a point or more. Westinghouse gave up its initial gain of 3¾ points in the break, but recovered about that much. Most of the oils were steady, but Standard was rather easy. Rails had a fair day.

New Low Prices.

The average number of issues dealt in each week this month has been 1,100. Of this number all but 50 common stocks and a few preferreds have reached their worst levels of the year. A few have duplicated their previous low prices. Steel's, Loew's, Sacony-Vacuum and National Steel are still quoted above the January low level. Eastman Kodak, American Can, Corn Products, Paramount, Radio and Zenith are among the fw stocks that also were quoted lower earlier in the year.

D. C. Insurance Sales Are 11% Over Year Ago

New Business Written in August Totaled $5,428,000.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

During the first eight months of 1937, new life insurance sold in Washington surpassed last year's comparative period by 11 per cent, the monthly survey of the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau of Hartford, Conn., reveals. Sales for the District of Columbia aggregated $52,304,000 and the local percentage gain exceeded the country's average which was 5 per cent over the corresponding period a year ago.

Sales in the Capital for August, however, reflected a 3 per cent recession from those of the same month last year but 52 per cent of the companies engaged in business here reported advances over the month a year ago. Local agents wrote $5,428,000 new business last month.

The country's average for August, 1937, was 2 per cent in advance of August, 1936. Maryland's new business showed a 6 per cent gain in the August comparison and a 7 per cent increase in that of the eight months. August policies amounting to $7,751,000 and the eight months to $68,750,000.

Virginia sales declined 3 per cent for the month but were up for the eight months by 11 per cent, totalling $61,503,000. West Virginia recorded a 4 per cent upturn for August with a volume of $5,246,000 but the eight months' comparison revealed a 4 per cent decline.

The local gain for the eight months of 11 per cent bettered the records of Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Los Angeles, New York, Philadelphia and St. Louis and was exceeded only by that of Detroit with an improvement of 14 per cent.

Auditors to Hear Marx.

Members of the auditors section of the District of Columbia Bankers Association are in receipt of the program for the thirteenth annual convention of the National Association of Bank Auditors and Comptrollers to be held in Boston, October 11 to 14, the same time and place that the American Bankers Association will hold its annual convention.

Arthur J. Linn, comptroller of the Hamilton National Bank, is first vice president of the national association and, according to precedent, will be elevated to the presidency. Mr. Linn has long been active in the affairs of the national group and is well qualified to assume this important office. He is a member fo the Board of governors of the District of Columbia Institute of Certified Public Accountants and a past chairman of the auditors section of the District Bankers Association, being one of its organizers.

The program lists several interesting talks, one to be delivered by Raymond G. Marx, comptroller of Riggs National Bank of this city, on "Budgetary Control." Harry L. Downey, manager of the accounting department of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., and chairman of the local section, states the following have expressed their intention of attending the convention: Raymond G. Marx, comptroller, Riggs National Bank; Arthur J. Linn, comptroller, Hamilton National Bank; Gerald E. Keene, assistant cashier, Second National Bank; William M. Harris, auditor, Lincoln National Bank; H. Norman Glasco, Union Trust Co.; Harry L. Downey, manager accounting department, Washington Loan & Trust Co.; James C. Elgin, member of the firm, W. B. Hibbs & Co.

Lee Joins Phoenix Life.

The Washington office of the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Co. has announced that Frederick S. Lee has been added to its staff. Mr. Lee is the son of Ralph W. Lee, who has been well-known in Washington in the general insurance business for many years. He was graduated from West Point in the class of 1922, and resigned from the Army after a few years' service in order to enter the investment business in Philadelphia.

He was later connected with a well-known brokerage firm in Washington for several years, when serious illness necessitated his retirement from active business. Mr. Lee returned to active duty in the Army in connection with Civilian Conservation Corps and commanded a number of C. C. C. camps for more than four years, resigning in order to make his present connection.

Installed cost of equipment sold by the members of the Air Conditioning Manufacturers Association in August totaled $3,269,792, as compared to $3,621,885 in August, 1936, a decrease of 9.7 per cent, William B. Henderson, executive vice president, announced yesterday. It was the first decrease of the year below a 1936 comparison period.

"Seasonal trends moved forward this year, the great upturn of March and April coming for example, at a time earlier than in previous years," Mr. Henderson said. "Another advance is expected for the final quarter of 1937.

"The 1937 total now has reached $71,575,967, virtually twice the $36,151,088 attained in the same months of 1936 and 40.3 per cent greater than for all 1936, when the manufacturers reported an installed cost aggregate of $49,942,301."

GET STARTED HERE WITH THE STORY OF TERRY AND THE PIRATES

TERRY

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

Terry Lee, an American boy, is traveling in China with a soldier of fortune, Pat Ryan, and an amusing young Chinese, called Connie.

The present adventure of this trio of young thrill seekers started in a barren trading camp when Pat ran into Normandie, the girl he loves and had planned to marry. Not knowing she was married, he kissed her in the presence of her jealous, unscrupulous husband.

In his insane urge to get even, Sandhurst, Normandie's husband, aroused the natives and his own men by refusing to order provisions for the winter and leaving the natives faced with starvation. Sandhurst was captured and tortured by the natives and subsequently saved by the heroism of Pat, Terry and Connie.

Pat became ill from exposure on his dangerous mission to save Sandhurst and was taken back to the nearest port for hospitalization. After he had recovered, he was arrested and tried on a number of charges, including inciting a riot, filed by Sandhurst.

Just as it looked as if Pat would be convicted, his friends in Sandhurst's employ came into the courtroom and told the true story. Pat was freed and Sandhurst, in his embarrassment, fled from the predicament that had resulted from his plan to jail Pat.

Pat, desiring to free Normandie from her insanely jealous husband, and in love with her himself, made up his mind to offer her his fraternity pin as a token of his love.

Normandie was confined with an illness resulting from the strain of the trial and previous events at the camp. Pat was en route to see her and ask her to divorce her husband when he was seized by a band of rowdies.

In the scuffle during their capture, Pat lost the fraternity pin and Big Stoop, his mute Chinese friend, was left, presumably dead, hanging by his neck from an improvised scaffold. But the Big Stoop was not dead. After being freed by police, the faithful mute found Pat's fraternity pin and set out to locate him.

As we join today's adventure, we find Pat, Connie and Terry jailed by their unknown captor. The captor is dressed in a weird, fantastic costume to hide identification. Big Stoop is on the lookout for his friends and Pat is seeking a means of escape.

Can Pat's present predicament be a scheme of Sandhurst, or is there another unsuspected enemy on Pat's trail? What will become of Normandie? Will Pat reach her and win her love or will Sandhurst return and take her away?

These are but a few of the questions that only the story of this quartet of adventurers can reveal. Pick up the story here and follow the thrill-packed trail of Pat and Terry daily and Sunday, exclusively in The Post.

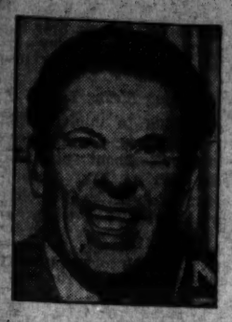
Bob Burns Says—



Not long ago when Grandpaw Snazzy came out to visit me, I thought I would be bored to death showin' him the sights of Hollywood, but when I found he wasn't interested in anything, I pret' near broke my neck tryin' to get him excited.

He yawned all day when I was showin' him through the movin' picture studio and that night when I took him down Hollywood Boulevard to show him the neon signs, he went sound asleep. I knew he would at least get a big thrill out of seein' the ocean for the first time, so I drove down there while he was still asleep.

Just as the sun came up, grandpaw began to stir. The tide had risen so that the front wheels of the car were standin' in the edge of the water. When grandpaw looked out at the ocean and then leaned over and saw the front wheels in the water, a wild look came in his eyes and he nudged me and said, "You better stop in at the first garage—you got a pretty bad leak in your radiator."

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — And Not a Plumber in Sight. — By Milton Caniff

FOR HOURS THEY SEARCH THE BARE ROOM—BUT FIND NO MEANS OF ESCAPE.. FINALLY TERRY AND CONNIE FALL ASLEEP..
THIS IS A COCKEYED SITUATION—IF I COULD ONLY THINK OF SOME REASON WHY WE WERE BROUGHT HERE!
...AND JUST WHERE ARE WE?—AND WHAT TIME IS IT?—WHAT ABOUT NORMANDIE? SHE'LL THINK I'VE DESERTED HER!
...AND... HEY! WHAT'S THIS?—THE FLOOR'S COVERED WITH WATER! —HOLY SMOKE!—I THOUGHT THIS WAS JUST A DAMP CELLAR....

Grades Pupils To Be Enlisted In Safety Drive

Capital Club to Distribute 60,000 Badges and Certificates.

Just as their bigger brothers and sisters in high schools have done, elementary school students in public, private, and parochial institutions are ready to support Washington's latest move for traffic safety.

Under the banner of the Capital Safety Club, organized by Gilbert Hahn, local merchant, youngsters of grade-school age will band together in a program designed to reduce child fatalities and accidents.

Hahn is prepared to distribute 60,000 badges and certificates to schools in the city. He has secured approval of the Board of Education. In their move to prevent accidents, the younger group will be supervised by members of the newly formed High School Safety League.

Any elementary school student may join the Capital Safety Club by signing the pledge.

Cathedral Services For Mrs. Ida Dexter

Funeral services were held yesterday in the Washington Cathedral for Mrs. Ida Morton Dexter, 87, who died Saturday at her home, 1869 Mintwood place. The Very Rev. Noble C. Powell, dean of the Cathedral, officiated. Burial will be at 1 p. m. today in the Cemetery of the Church of Our Savior, Charlottesville, Va.

Mrs. Dexter, a Washington resident for 12 years, left her Boston home for the West in 1870 as the bride of the late Timothy Dexter. Until she became ill last week, Mrs. Dexter had been writing of early days in Nevada and California.

Mrs. Dexter is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Mary Walton and Miss Isobel Gregory Dexter with whom she made her home in Washington; Mrs. George Sellers and Miss Caroline Morton Dexter, both of New York, and two sons, Howard W. Dexter, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Arthur C. Dexter, of Seattle, Wash.

Michael McCarten, 71, Dies in Hospital Here

Funeral services for Michael M. McCarten, 71, of Dubuque, Iowa, who died at Providence Hospital yesterday, will be held tomorrow at St. Dominic's Catholic Church at 11 a. m.

For the past year Mr. McCarten had lived with his sister, Mrs. Henry F. Haardt, of 184 Sixth street southwest.

Mr. McCarten is survived by another sister, Miss Katherine McCarten, of Washington, and two brothers, Hugh B. McCarten, Dubuque, Iowa, and Clement W. McCarten, of Omaha, Nebr.

Burial will be in Dubuque.

Miss Elizabeth Brown Funeral Set for Today

Funeral services for Miss E. Elizabeth Brown, 1603 Hobart street, who died Sunday at the Georgetown Hospital, will be held at 8:30 a. m. today at the Zurhorst funeral home.

Miss Brown was a lifelong resident of Washington. She was educated at the Norwood Institute and later completed an education in art and music in Europe. She leaves no survivors.

Burial will be at the Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mrs. John Bennett Succeeds Husband as Head of Mission

New Director Founded Children's Emergency Home Here.

MRS. JOHN S. BENNETT.

Mrs. John S. Bennett yesterday accepted appointment as superintendent of the Central Union Mission, succeeding her late husband. She was named by the mission board of directors.

During her husband's long illness, Mrs. Bennett carried on the work which he conducted for more than 22 years. She served the mission without pay, although she founded and conducted the Children's Emergency Home of the Mission and Camp Bennett, the camp for underprivileged children at Brookeville, Md.

A native of Philadelphia and an alumnus of Bryn Mawr College, Mrs. Bennett came to Washington in 1915, when her husband was summoned to head the mission. With $150, she took a 12-room house at 458 C street and founded the Children's Emergency Home.

By 1924, Mrs. Bennett had collected $65,000 and the following year interested Mrs. John J. Duff in the project. Mrs. Duff later gave $100,000 for the erection of the present building. Again in 1931 she raised approximately $12,500 for the children's project by persuading Phillips Lord, better known as Seth Parker, a personal friend, and Homer Rodenheaver, then a song leader in Billy Sunday's chorus, to stage a benefit concert at Constitution Hall.

In addition to her mission activities, Mrs. Bennett has been identified with a number of Washington club and civic organizations. She served as director of the South Atlantic region of the American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs, president of the Women's City Club, member of the international relations committee of the national board of business and professional women's clubs, and a number of other organizations.

The weekly broadcast, conducted by her husband for eight years, will be resumed by Mrs. Bennett Sunday.

1 Dead, 4 Hurt By Crashes in Capital Region

Child, 9, Woman, 72, Are Among Those Injured by Cars.

Early Spencer, 30, of Groveton, near Alexandria, Va., burned to death at 3 p. m., when his automobile crashed into a tree near Port Royal, Va.

Among the more seriously injured were Mary Stevenson, 9, of T. B., Md., who was struck by an auto when she stepped from behind a school bus on route 5, near her home, and a 72-year-old inmate of the Home for Incurables, Mrs. Mary L. Revercomb, who was hit by an auto while crossing Wisconsin avenue near Tenley Circle.

John L. Carpenter, 5316 Dorsey place northwest, and G. C. Nivens, 5111 Cathedral avenue, escaped critical injury or death in a spectacular crash on Conduit road, near Brookmont, Md. Their car plunged down a 40-foot embankment, wound around itself several feet of electric wire and landed upside down against a light pole.

Spencer was alone in the car. Skid marks showed that he ran into a ditch on the right-hand side of the highway, cut across the road to the left, and into the tree.

Spencer was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Seaton Spencer, of Lovingston, Va., and was employed by the Evergreen Supply Co., 820 Jefferson Davis highway.

The Stevenson girl suffered a fractured leg and a possible fracture of the skull when struck by an auto police said was operated by George R. Cooksey, of Westwood, Md. She was taken to Casualty Hospital.

The driver of the car that struck Mrs. Revercomb was charged with reckless driving pending the outcome of her injuries—fractured pelvis, severe cuts and shock. Police gave his name as David M. Miller, 34, of Alexandria, Va. The woman was in Georgetown Hospital, where physicians said her condition was critical.

Mrs. Revercomb, whose home was at 3220 Fifth street, North Arlington, Va., had been a patient at the home since November.

Carpenter and Nivens lay beneath their wrecked machine for several minutes while residents cut away the wire that was entwined around the car.

Carpenter suffered a fractured collar bone and cuts. Nivens was shaken up.

J. B. Shinn Dies; Was D. C. Official

John B. Shinn, 55, engineer and former District assistant surveyor, died of a heart attack yesterday in his office at the Insurance Building on Fifteenth street.

Entering the office of the District surveyor in 1901, Shinn became assistant surveyor in 1908. He later served under Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, then chief surveyor, resigning his post in 1918 to join the Army.

Following the war, he went to Richmond, Va., but returned here a few years later to open a private engineering office. His home was at 4421 Lowell street.

Shinn left his widow, Mrs. Holly Shinn, and a daughter, Martha, 5. Date for funeral services will be announced today.

Rayburn, Boland Scoff at 3d Term

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 27 (AP).—Majority Leader Sam Rayburn, of Texas, today scoffed at speculations the President might "attempt or consider" seeking a third term.

Representative Patrick Boland, of Pennsylvania, Majority Whip, said he believed third-term talk was "rubbish," adding "as for the President's delaying an announcement that he will not be a candidate, you must remember that Coolidge, Woodrow Wilson and other Presidents waited until just before nomination time to renounce formally thought of a third term."

Dr. Walsh Opens Georgetown Term

Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president, declared at a convocation opening the academic year at Georgetown University yesterday that students should be trained to live in a democracy, not to "live off" a democratic government. He said: "To prepare you for the difficult art of living in a democracy, not for living off a democratic government, will be an important function of the education you will receive here.

Rain Is Forecast In Capital; Storm Warnings Issued

More rain was forecast for the District of Columbia today by the Weather Bureau as storm warnings were issued for the Central Atlantic seabord from Cape Hatteras to Southport, N. C.

Yesterday's low temperature occurred at 9 a. m., when the mercury stood at 49. The prediction for today was for little change and continued cloudiness.

An Associated Press dispatch stated that northeast storm warnings were ordered displayed at 10 a. m. yesterday, as the Weather Bureau's hurricane warning system advised a disturbance was developing off the north Florida coast.

Fastidious Freedom.

Providence, R. I. Sept. 27 (AP).—Testimony that his wife forced him to wear work clothes on Sunday won a divorce today for George T. Gilkenson, bakery foreman, on the grounds of extreme cruelty.

Man Who Rode 1,300,000 Miles On D. C. Street Cars Dies at 76

JAMES T. ROLAND.

James T. Roland, who travelled 1,300,000 miles on street cars and at his retirement in November 1935, had served the Capital Transit Co. longer than any of its operators, died last night in his seventy-sixth year.

Since his retirement he had lived on his pension in a rooming house at 643 N street southwest.

Mr. Roland drove street cars for 52 years. He operated horse cars for the old Metropolitan Railroad Co. back in 1883. When these were replaced by the faster electric cars, he kept pace with progress and learned to pilot a trolley.

In the earlier days of his career he worked 12 hours a day for 12 cents an hour. Eventually Mr. Roland's wages went as high as 65 cents an hour for nine—or less—hours of work.

Mr. Roland became fond of trolleys, but he never could like buses.

Funeral services will be held at his home on Thursday at 11 a. m., with burial in Congressional Cemetery. Survivors include two sisters, Mrs. Charles H. Lambert and Mrs. Bernice R. Sweetman, and a brother, William H. Elliott, all of Washington.

Building Feud Again Rumbles Within A. F. L.

Denver, Sept. 27.—A new civil war threatened tonight to break out in the American Federation of Labor.

While most of the delegates on hand for the federation's annual convention were talking of little but the C. I. O. revolt, building trades union leaders were making strenuous efforts to prevent a renewal of their old feud.

Wants Pact Revived.

"Big Hutch," as he is commonly called in labor circles, has let the building trades union leaders know that J. W. Williams must be deposed as president of the A. F. of L. building trades department.

He also has sent word he will demand revision of the agreement that ended the last building trades feud two years ago.

Williams, also a carpenter, opposed Hutcheson's re-election at their union's convention in Lakeland, Fla., last November, with the support of a group of delegates who felt "Big Hutch" had fought the Roosevelt Administration too hard.

Hutcheson was chairman of the Republican National Committee's labor division in the last campaign.

Joint Meeting Urged.

John P. Frey, president of the metal trades department, told his department's convention that anti-union employers soon would try to get Congress to enact legislation "placing unfair and unjustified handicaps" on trade unions.

Jack Williams, delegate from the Seattle Metal Trades Council, offered a resolution calling for a national convention of delegates from all local unions, A. F. of L. and C. I. O., to try to end labor's big civil war.

The metal trades convention named Arthur Wharton, president of the machinists' union and John L. Lewis' No. 1 enemy in the labor movement, to head its resolutions committee.

Cornerstone Robbed.

Paducah, Ky., Sept. 27 (AP).—Vandals last night pried out the cornerstone of Grace Episcopal Church, taking records and souvenirs sealed in the stone since 1873, the Rev. Custis Fletcher, rector, said.

President's Idaho Talk Text

By the Associated Press.

Boise, Idaho, Sept. 27.—The text of President Roosevelt's address at the State Fair Grounds today:

Gov. (Barzilla W.) Clark: And I am going to say what Senator Borah said: "Friends and neighbors."

I shall never forget this morning. And when I look back on today's visit to Boise, I shall think chiefly of two things:

First, the beautiful tree-lined streets, and secondly, your children. And I take it, being a Roosevelt, that you will follow a sound Rooseveltian creed and that the population is not going to die out. You know there is something about children and trees that makes me think of permanency.

It isn't by any means one of the tasks of the President—the sole task—to think about the present. One of the first obligations of the Presidency is to think about the future.

Resources Wasted.

We have been through 150 years of constitutional existence. In the past we have been a wasteful people. We have wasted natural resources and very often we have wasted human resources. And one of the reasons why the President of the United States ought to travel throughout the country and become familiar with every State is that he has a great obligation on him to think about the duties when he is no longer President. To think about the next generation and the generation after that. That is one reason why I am particularly glad on this trip to see a part of the State of Idaho that I have never see before. I have traveled through the eastern part of the State and through the northern part of the State and now I am seeing something that makes me very proud of this part of the country.

And in these travels I am not just thinking of the more or less petty problems of the day—the trials and disputes of the moment.

Planning Means Lot.

I am trying to think of the bigger objectives of American life—to think about planning. Planning isn't much of a word, but there isn't a better one. Trying to think about how we are to make a better America for those children I passed this morning; to think about the conservation of the natural resources of the country; to think about the greater prosperity of agriculture; to think about the saving of the timber; to think about a better co-ordination of our industrial activities and greater distribution of our resources. That sounds like Senator Borah. And to think constantly of the influence the United States should have on the rest of the world in behalf of peace. And that sounds like Senator Pope and Senator Borah, too.

I wish I could physically take time to spend more days and more weeks going about the country. There was an old mythologist, who was supposed, every time his feet touched the ground to redouble his strength. When I go about the country—after long weeks and months tied up in Washington—for Washington is one of the narrowest places in the world, I feel that I regain my strength by just meeting the American people.

And so, my friends, I am grateful to you for giving me this wonderful reception today in the Capitol of the State.

I am grateful for your coming out and saying "howdy" today, just like the plain folks all of us are.

I am happy to have made this acquaintance. I hope some day to come back and renew it. I have had a wonderful morning.
